4-CYLINDER HUPMOBILE

A National Reputation Made International

We believe the Hupmobile to be the best car of its class in the world.

Evidence of an extraordinary sort supports this conviction.

The work it is doing the world over is nothing short of wonderful.

In Bombay, India, it has been given semi-official recognition.

HUPMOBILES KEPT; OTHER CARS SOLD.

No other car will be used there, hereafter, by the British government.

At the end of the campaign in German East Africa, the British government sold at auction all the surplus motor cars in its possession.

These cars had been used in its war operations.

The government ordered, however, that all its Hupmobiles should be retained in service; and has since ordered several hundred more Hupmobiles for military use.

BORDER PERFORMANCE CALLED REMARKABLE

On our own border, reports of Hupmobile performance are so remarkable that, for military reasons, propriety forbids their publication. In the mountains of Mexico, Hupmobiles owned by the rebel chieftain Villa have borne the brunt of his road operations.

His representatives have sought and been refused, two hundred Hupmobiles to be used as the backbone of their army transport system.

WAR WORK SHOWS GREATER VALUE

These evidences of rugged fitness for war work are merely sidelights, which make the greater value of the Hupmobile stand out in bold relief.

That greater value is in the service of the home.

Not without reason has the Hupmobile been called the car of the American family.

It is the car of cars for the domestic circle seeking service free from excessive cost.

RE-SALE VALUE VERY HIGH

It is economical because of its simple four cylinder construction, standardized by years of progression.

It is rugged; it is superlatively smooth; and it is astonishingly swift in pick-up.

It asks no odds on any point of performance, from any multi-cylinder car it may meet in competition.

It has a very high re-sale value.

SAFE, SOUND, SURE INVESTMENT

From every angle, it is not only a most excellent and efficient motor car—but a safe, a sure, and sound investment.

To repeat—now, more than ever, we believe the Hupmobile to be the best car of its class in the world.

CITY SEEKING POWER

Plea For "Room to Grow" Termed Subterfuge

Opponents Claim Suburbs Are Enjoying Cheap County Form Of Government, Which Should Not Be Taken From Them Without Their Consent.

(Prepared by the Baltimore County Non-Partisan Citizens' Protective Committee.)

What is a city?

Many persons believe that it is a large collection of people and houses, with streets, railroad terminals, trolley cars, street lighting and other facilities for business and comfort. Others seem to think that a city consists of a mayor and city council, a multitude of other office holders, a bonded debt, high taxes, minor privileges and similar things which are characteristic of municipal governments. The opponents of annexation urge that the actual city is not necessarily the same in extent as the political city, and may grow at liberty, regardless of the boundaries of the latter.

Baltimore, they urge, in its true sense, and as it is known to business men elsewhere, consists of the whole big settlement located about the navigable portion of the Patapsco river. Part of it is under the control of a mayor and city council and has the other municipal features mentioned above, the remainder is under the governments of Baltimore and Anne Arundel counties. The residents of each section, it is asserted, are satisfied with their present form of government.

Governments For the People.

The settlements came first; the county and city governments came afterward to facilitate the business, safety, comfort and pleasure of the settlers. The governments were created for the people, not the people for the governments.

Lack of proper consideration of this fact, it is claimed, causes some persons unwittingly to fall in with the scheme to extend the political boundaries of Baltimore. These boundaries were set to define the section over which the people residing therein wished the city government to have control of their public affairs. The city officials, it is urged, have no inherent right to extend their sway over people without their consent. It is a fundamental maxim of law that all government should be by and with the consent of the governed.

The county people allege that the cry that "Baltimore must have room to grow" is a subterfuge. They insist that the city, in its real sense of a large collection of people, with all their paraphernalia of business and pleasure, is growing all the time—much faster than if it were all controlled by the Mayor and City Council. Within the past few years, owing to a great expansion in manufacturing, the rate of increase in population and property values in the suburban sections has been very rapid.

No Factories In Annex Of 1888.

The annexationists claim that this influx of big business would have come just the same, even if the city had controlled all the territory in which these factories are located. The answer of their opponents is that the city now has thousands of acres of vacant land in the Annex of 1888, and not one factory of any consequence has been located there. On the contrary, they say, there are many instances where large plants have been located just across the line—in the counties—and purposely, to be beyond the jurisdiction of the city government.

County Government Cheaper.

The counties have the commission form of government, which is cheaper than that of the city. The salary roll of office holders of the city was $1,219,392.11 in 1915, the last year for which a published City Comptroller's report is available, according to statements of the anti-annexationists, who point out that the corresponding pay roll for Baltimore county was $108,973.74. The tax rate of Baltimore county this year is $1.06, while that of the city is $1.98. But the county pays all its expenses from its tax levy.

Claim City Wants More Power.

To enjoy the lighter taxes and other attractions which the county has to offer in the way of fewer restrictions and more room and quiet, some of the former residents of the corporate city have moved into Baltimore county. Many more have gone into that section from other parts of Maryland and from other States. The opponents of annexation claim that the rulers of the political Baltimore, which they insist is not at all identical with the real city, want to grasp all these people and all the wealth of the suburbs and thereby acquire the power which this mass of people and taxable property would give them—a power which it is alleged would enable them to expand the limits of the city at will thereafter and control the political affairs of the State. It is contended that if the voters of Maryland will this fall elect the Democratic candidates for State Comptroller and the Legislature this plan will fail, for the Democratic party has declared in favor of annexation, but with a referendum. The opponents of the proposed bill claim that it is so drastic that its framers know the people of the suburbs will not vote to enter the

CHILDREN'S CORNER

LETTER FROM DETROIT SCHOOL GIRL

Dear Grandma & Grandpa.

Your letter received, glad to hear from you; Also got the "Sentinel" from Westminster. It seemed like old times hearing the town news of Westminster, its people and our friends. We do wish you would send the Westminster papers to us every week. All are well at present. Sunday we went over to Bell—Isle to hear the band concert. A man sang a song called, "So long mother". It was about a soldier giving his mother good by. We all felt that; because so many soldiers are saying good-by, never to come back again. We had a tremendous parade here, on the 18th to see the drafted Soldiers, start away. The crowd was so wild the policemen could not manage them, so some children got hurt and some people fainted. I heard about fifty were overcome in the crowd which was about 300,000.

We have started to school. Evelyn is going to kindergation. As we are some distance across car tracts we will take our lunch.

Baby Frances is very cute, but she kept me so busy running after and taking care of her. I did not enjoy my vacation very much. Are you going to the York Fair? I wish I could go with you. Ask Elizabeth to please write to me. I would be so glad to have her tell me the Westminster news. Now I must close and study my lessons for tomorrow. All send love and best wishes to you both, from your little girl M.

WHEN THINGS ARE NOT WHAT THEY SEEM
By Ella Johnson

One thing I'm sure Id like to know:
Why you can never tell
Just what a word is going to mean,
Until you've learned it well.

An ear of corn and on a boy
Are different as can be;
And my dog's bark is most unlike
The kind found on a tree.

There's pupils that recite in school,
And pupils in your eyes;
'Twixt leaves in books and those on trees
A world of difference lies.

The butcher's and the birdie's bill
Are very different things;
And just suppose the old clock's hands
Should take to wearing rings!

And what would happen if the comb
With which you smoothed your hair
Should be the kind the honey-bees
Have made with so much care?

A word should mean a single thing,
And not mix children so;
And when I'm big and write the books,
Such words will have to go.

He taught us
To hold
In loving reverence
Poor men and their work,
Great men and their work,
God and His work.
—John Ruskin.

PAPER BOATS

Day by day I float my paper boats
one by one down the running stream.
In big black letters I write my name on them and the name of the village where I live.

I hope that some one in some strange land will find them and know who I am.

I load my little boats with shinli flowers from our garden, and hope that these blooms of the dawn will be carried safely to land in the night.

I launch my paper boats and look up into the sky and see the little clouds setting their white bulging sails.

I know not what playmate of mine in the sky sends them down the air to race with my boats!

When night comes I bury my face
in my arms and dream that my paper boats float on and on under the midnight stars.

The fairies of sleep are sailing in them, and the lading is their baskets full of dreams.

—Rabindranath Tagore.

Rabindranath Tagore is a great poet of India. In this poem he tells us how the Indian children play with toy boats just as children here in America love to do. When I was a child we used to make boats of wood—clumsy things they were, too,—and sail them on the brook in the meadow at the farm where fe had many a happy summer visit.

Robert Lewis Steveson tells us in one of his poems how the children he knew lovd to sail boats, too. How like little brothers and sisters are all the children of the world!

A POPULAR GIRL

"Give me a license to marry the best girl on earth," ordered the namored swain. "Sure," commented the clerk, filling out a blank. "That makes thirteen hundred licenses for that girl this season."

THE REASON FOR HAVING TEACHERS

Tommy, "I wonder why the words is spelled in such a funny way?" Jimmy: "'Cause they was made in the first place by the school-teachers, and they made 'em so's they would have to be hired to teach how to spell 'em.

NEW NEIGHBORS

Ethel has the gift of graphic description. Until recently she was a little country girl; now she lives in a large town. The first letter she wrote back to her old home began like this: "This is a queer place. Next door is fastened on to our house."

STORIES FROM VARIOUS

HOW DID THEY GET IN?

An editor, reviewing a school books, says: "The work is full of omissions."

A LOGICAL ANSWER

Domestic Science Teacher—"How do you cook soft boiled eggs?" Cooking Girl—"Boil them in soft water."

THE ONLY REASON

He—People are saying you married me for my money.

She—Well, I had to give them some reason.

THE NEW EDUCATION

"Well, how did things come out in your school contest?" "Trifle mixed. A girl won the hammer trowing contest and a boy took first prize for fruit cake."

THE MOUNTAIN BROOK

I float and I splash forever,
I never get tired of play.
I babble and leap o'er the peddles,
Throughout the sunny day.

On my banks the violets hover,
Just to catch one sparkling drop
Of my water, that shines like silver,
As I flow and I never stop.

—Natalie Walker, Sixth Grade, Utah Normal Training School.

SWEET AIR

Miss Catherine Conaway spent Sunday with Miss Bessie Hood.

Mr. Elmer Hood and daughter Sophronia spent Sunday with Mr. Grafton Condon and family, of Taylorsville.

Mr. and Mrs. Joe Pickett, of Winfield, called on friends near this place Sunday.

TO BAR CAMP VISITORS

The draftees from Baltimore and Maryland and other places who have been longing for the night when they could "hang around the corner" with the fellows back home and then lure sweet slumber in their own downy beds need wish for this no longer.

They never will sleep upon the mattress in the house they left behind until they get back from France. It was an nounced at headquarters this afternoon that no passes would be granted enlisted men to remain at home at night, except in case of death in a draftee's family or for some other equally important reason. The officer who announced the ruling said that "there is only a short time for training at this camp and the authorities here want every minute of it used to the best advantage." All men who are given passes must be back at the camp by taps, 10 o'clock.

The authorities want to check an onrush of visitors to the camp but do not want to work any hardships on the relatives of the men. The camp will be open to visitors on Sunday, October 14, but admission will be by pass only. The members of the various companies will apply to their captains for them and forward them. Visitors are not wanted at the camp now and sentries have been instructed to see that such wishes are carried out.

As the first step in the preparation of the Baltimoreans, they were sent out on hikes this morning and drilled this afternoon. In other words they got their first real lessons in the new military school, a school which has 19,000 pupils, thereby surpassing any school of its kind that had existed prior to the calling out of the draft army.

One does not have to look long at the rookies to see that many of them do not know the first rudiments about military life. There are Clumsy Clauds galore. But every man is doing his best. In a short time these men will be soldierly. They will get the ruggedness and tan and brown that are to be acquired only through a healthy, active, athletic, muscle-strengthening life in the out-of-doors. This is a broad out-of-doors here, for the camp covers 20 square miles.

KISS HIM THAT GOODBY

It was a bright September day.
The train in waiting stood,
To take the soldier boys away,
For they were "Sammies" good.

Amid the rattling and the jar
A sweetheart, somewhat shy,
Had found her way up to the car,
To kiss him that Goodby.

There are eight boys who will leave Saturday from Waynesboro for Camp Meade.

Mrs. Kate Crouse spent from Saturday till Tuesday with friends in Waynesboro.

An automobile driven by William Jones, of Arlington, and a motorcycle ridder by F. G. Rosensteel, 3810 Reisterstown road, collided yesterday morning about 11.30 o'clock at Reisterstown road and Garrison avenue, near the Arlington Police Station. The automobile, in which were Mr. Jones and his father, Joshua Jones, was traveling northward along the Reisterstown road, having just made the turn at Garrison avenue when the motorcycle, going south, crushed into it. Mr. Rosensteel was thrown to the ground, his lower lip was cut and he received lacerations back of the left ear. He was also bruised about the body. The motorcycle was bent in several places and the mud guard of the automobile was damaged. A moment later another automobile traveling southward along the Reisterstown road, owned by David Snader, of Medford, near this city struck A. J. Levering and injured his foot.

Owing to business engagements your correspondent was unable to be present much to her regret.

Private A. Adrean of Baltimore, attached to the one Hundred and Seventeenth Trench Mortar Battery of the Sixty-seventh Artillery Brigade, Camp Mills, Garden City. L. I., took up washing Wednesday. Private Adrean, it is reported, comes from a wealthy family. He suddenly found himself "broke" and payday a long way off. He volunteered to do the family washing for any man at 50 cents a wash. Along toward evening it was reported that he had played the scrub board to the tune of $25, which either speaks well for his epergy or reveals laziness some where in camp.
