My dear Gally

Day after day has again slipped away without my being able to acknowledge your welcome letter, and now it is after half past ten at night and I do not know how much I can do. The family have all gone sailing excepting the children Mary and myself and she is staying with Mrs Geo Colhoun who has been quite sick for a week with a remittent bilious fever, so I am to all intents and purposes alone. The sailing party ought to have left Galesville at five o'clock, and at half past seven, they were just going round Dutch Manus, moving along steadily. But since then it has been very calm, a little breeze and muttering of thunder at present!! I think there is every prospect of their

to you and Good bye for the present. Please give very much love to Han and to Herbert, in both of which the family would join were they at home as well as to your self

Your loving sister
