n.d. Galloway C. Morris Incoming Letters (Emily Hollingsworth) 1994

SIDE TWO

and books removed from the Library at Solitude, and getting settled at Miss Martin's, where I expect to spend the winter. Miss M. allowed me to furnish my rooms here, & I was obliged to take the front, as well as back room, as I found it difficult to dispose of my furniture, otherwise. I went to a Public Storage House in Chch st, with Mr Parker, the mover, and both of us felt, decidedly, those accommodations would not answer at all, so I am. Gunner has let me have her parlour, front 3d story room & a good shed in her yard to put the barrels of China in, & she will take good care of my things & it is a comfort to me to pay her the Storage rather than the Proprietor of the Storage House, he asked very high, also. I sent the old Book case, (Grand father Wilson's) to Tom and some boxes (2 in No.) of books, to fill the shelves. The side-board, Grandmother Hollingsworth's little settee, & two barrels of China I sent to dear Mary at Nett River, and then, furnished my rooms here. So you may suppose, dear friends, I have been pretty busy, and was pretty well used up, when it was over. But I am thankful to have it accomplished without breakage. I hear of you, through dear Annie, I did not see Herbert when he was in town, last week, a the week before, but Annie said, he reported you all pretty well. Last week, I received sad tidings from our friends the Babcocks; their brother William
