n.d. Galloway C. Morris Incoming Letters (Emily Hollingsworth) 1994

SIDE ONE

Thanks for your letter received Monday. I did not reply immediately, as I was expecting your father & Harry that night & thought I would wait to tell you about them. The next day, Tuesday, your father wrote to you, and I was very busy and so I believed his letter would do for us both. He has expressed himself, both by letter, & personally so desirous to have me with him, at Lake George, that I felt it would be really unkind to him, not to accompany him & therefore, if he is able to go, I expect you will see me with him. I know how lovely it is, having been there parts of two days in 1829 & went up the Lake in the Steamer to Ticonderoga. Ellerton dined with us day before yesterday; seemed right well & cheerful. No doubt you your letter to your father of Tuesday the 13th was welcomed at dinner time to-day. At breakfast time, the one you wrote to Bell River, this day week, arrived, being inclosed with one from your sister Mary. The last accounts from Mary Dorsey & Emily, were, that they would not be here before next Monday. We were very glad to learn from your letter of Tuesday, how much you & dear Harry were enjoying yourselves with the loveliness of the Lake & Islands & Rain-bows, and the cheerfulness of a bright fire
