THE SOLDIERS' FIRST CAPTIVE

The first fruit of war begin to come home in the form of romance. The first captives in France may not be any mere Huns or Boches, but something much fairer. The first spoil of this kind is reported by a soldier youth from Cedar Grove, Iowa, who has fallen in love with a French village maiden, and now is studying the Parlez Francais books with all his might. When the war is done, he will take his captive back to Cedar Grove.

There will be many of these pretty romances. It will be an unexpected outcome of war, if the boy who thought he was going over there to kill, and possibly to suffer, finds there his happiness for a lifetime. The home folks will be anxious about it. They have heard alarming tales about the ways of the French maidens.

While the French towns have all too many loose women roaming about the streets, our people must not feel that the French, as a whole, are of that type. The superb manner in which the French women have taken up the work of men, tilling the fields, running trains, and driving trucks, shows that they have a very substantial and loyal nature.

Still marital happiness is best founded on congeniality, among people of the same antecedents and training. In the long run the boy who marries the girl from his home neighborhood, who is accustomed to his ways and ideas, is the one who comes out the best from his venture. The international marriage is apt to be a gamble.

After the young folks from widely distant environments have come through their honeymoon, they may begin to find many points of difference. They have grown up with different ideas and interests and steadards. Wherefore the boys will do well not to forget the girls they left behind them. Let them not be too much bewitched by French sparkle and charm

FOR GROUNDING DAY

Hey, there, Mr. Grounding, Old Top, you there again so soon? Well, well, well!

As we have had a severe winter the weather prophets now forecast an early spring. Brer Grounding will be watching the food raising preparations. He had a keen eye on all the garden work last summer, which of course was all for his particular benefit.

But Brer Grounding will have other things to do this summer than luxuriate on the abundant vegetables gardens. His eternal feud with the Small Boy and Towzer must be reckoned on. Mr. Ground hog must spend a good part of his summer providing his hole with a system of rear exits. He will need them at about the time the kids begin building their fires under his front door.

But Mr. Grounding likes the game, and is anxious for it to begin. So he will look eagerly to see if his shadow is visible this February 2, and if not he will be pleased to remain out and begin spring operations.

UNIONTOWN

On Monday the remains of Mrs. Savilla Rout, Copperville, were brought to the Lutheran cemetery for burial, after funeral service by her pastor, Rev. Paul Yoder at Baust church.

Tuesday the body of E. O. Garner, Taneytown, was interred in the Hill Cemetery, funeral services held at the home by Rev. F. N. Parson.

Elder W. P. Englar preached in the Lutheran church Sunday morning in the absence of Rev. W. E. Saltzgiver who was in Pennsylvania a few days.

Mrs. Mary Stoner is spending some time with her granddaughter, Mrs. Edward Hooker, Arlington.

Jacob Price and wife are visiting at Judson Hill's, in Taneytown.

A sled load of young folks, of B. R. Collegt, spent Saturday evening with W. P. Englar's family where they were very nicely entertained.

Miss Loretta Weaver has been housed with a severe cold, not being able to take charge of her school during the week.

Lester Perry, Union Bridge, has been a visitor at his sister's, Mrs. John E. Heck.

The Daniel Diehl Farm lately owned by his daughter, Mrs. Howard Brumbaugh, has been purchased by William Eckenrode who has been a tenant on it for a number of years, and is well acquainted with its worth. It is one of the best farms in the neighborhood. Many years ago it was the home of the late Tobias Cover.

There are a good many people who are patriotically willing to take hold and work for the war provided they get twice as much pay as they ever had in peace times.
