Women Leave Penitentiary

Under an order issued by the Board of Prison Control 40 female prisoners in the penitenitary were transferred to the House of Correction Monday. But two women prisoners remain at the institution, according to Warden John F. Leonard. One of the prisoners was sentenced to the "pen" for life and another is a long-term immate. The women prisoners will be taken to Camden Station, Baltimore, by Warden Leonard, several guards nd matrons. The Board of Prison trol decided that the women pri- s could be better employed at ouse of Correction than at the ary.

To The Generous—More Than Generous People—Of Carroll County.

Will you not read this letter from Mr. John Moffatt, of New York, Vice-Chairman for American and Allied War Relief, and contribute whatever you possibly can towards nitigating the awful miseries of the Belgian prisoners in the hands of the Germans.

I will receive and transmit all such contributions as may be made in behalf of these helpless, suffering people.

JAS. A. C. BOND.
May 31, 1918.

James A. C. Bond, Esq.,
Westminster, Md.

"Pitiful appeals are received by us almost daily in behalf of Belgian prisoners held in German concentration camps. So desperate and revolting are the conditions, so urgent is the need, that many of the appeals are sent by cable with the plea that no time be lost in sending aid to the wreted victims.

"Conditions were never so desperate as they are and have been since the Germans launched their latest campaign of frightfulness. It is the inevitable result of war that prisoners are taken; the numbers held by the Germans have been vastly increased and the more recently captured as well as those who have been prisoners for years are made to suffer in ways that are beyond human understanding.

"Food is their first cry-food to keep body and soul together. They are also in terrible need of clothing and mans are starving them, submitting them to deadly exposure and persecuting them, always with the intent of exterminating as many as possible.

"We know that food and other necessities can be gotten to these prisoners; and this will mean the lessening of indescribable suffering, the saving of many lives.

"Won't you ask your local papers sh this appeal, and won't you try to get collections made for this work in your local factories and offices?

"We must have funds, however, if the work is to be done; and that is why we appeal to you. Won't you adopt a prisoner and won't you send us a generous contribution to be used for these hopeless, suffering, persecuted Belgian prisoners? Think of them in the hands of the Germans, thank God for your freedom, then help them in the name of humanity, in the name of the cause for which they fought.

"Faithfully yours,
(Signed) JOHN MOFFAT".

Appeal From The Governor Of Maryland

I have been requested by the Maryland Council of Defense and by the Federal State Director of Labor and Employment, to aid them in the important work of supplying to the farmers of Maryland, during the crop seasons of the present year, sufficient farm labor for the harvesting of their crops.

Maryland farmers have responded to the world's great need for food, by planting larger crops and more extensive acres this year than ever before, and the time is rapidly approaching when some of these will be ready to be harvested, while the need continuously exists for the cultivation of growing crops.

Farm labor in Maryland this year is at present short 9,000 laborers, and shortage must be made up somehow, if the crops are to be successfully harvested.

To aid this work is the patriotic duty of all persons who are capable of helping, and who can, even at personal inconvenience and sacrifice, arrange to do so.

The urgency and necessity of this work is so great that, in obedience the request of the Maryland Council of Defense and of the Federal State Director of Labor and Employment, I address this appeal to the people of Maryland, asking and urging all who can assist in this important work of crop cultivation and harvesting, to do so, and I address this appeal especially to residents of Baltimore and other cities of our State who are employed in the cities, and who will take one or more weeks' vacation during the summer, which customarily would be spent in the country, requesting that these vacation periods be devoted to work on the farms of the State helping in the cultivation and harvesting of crops.

Proper pay and compensation will be made by the farmers to all persons who will so help, and by this means vacation periods can be turned to the profit of both the volunteers who help, and to the farmers as well.

Persons are requested to register for this service at as early a date as possible, at the United States Public Reserve Office, 26 Commerce Street, Baltimore, at the Branch offices of the Reserve in Cumberland, Hagerstown, Salisbury, and with the Postmasters of all other towns throughout the State.

Our Boys have answered the call to duty, to service and sacrifice. They must be fed, as must our Allies "over there".

This appeal is a call to duty to all who can help.

EMERSON C. HARRINGTON,
Governor of Maryland.

Dated at Annapolis the 31st day of May, 1918.

How Woman's Shrewdness Served to Save Her Life and Incidentally Enrich Literature.

No one knows who wrote "The Arabian Nights," but it is related that "The Thousand and One Nights" as they are often called, originated in this manner: Schariar was sultan of Persia and having no faith in women, and having carte blanche to marry as many wives as he chose, he had each bride killed the day after he married her. The vizier who did the executive work on this program was filled with horror at the atrocities he was obliged to perform, the more so as he had a beautiful daughter of his own and was in constant terror lest she find favor in the eyes of the sultan. One day his fears were realized and the beautiful Scheherazade was a chosen victim. She did not share her father's apprehension, however, having a scheme of her own for thwarting the sultan's designs. The morning after her marriage she began telling her husband a story, and just as he was about to leave her for his affairs of state, she brought the tale to that fascinating point where we generally find that it is "to be continued." The sultan decided to have her saved till night that he might hear the end of the story. This proceeding was repeated for a thousand and one nights. By that time, Scheherazade had borne him children and the sultan had decided to abandon the cruel practice of killing his wives. "The Thousand and One Nights," translated into French in 1704 by Antoine Gallard, was compiled from these fascinating stories.

CHARACTER MUST BE BUILT

Man's Best Qualities Seemingly Can Only Be Brought Out by the Process of Hammering.

The word "character" is true to its derivation. It is a Greek word, which we pronounce harass, which they pronounce charass, but which had the same meaning then as now. They spoke then of a coin in the mint, which was hammered and tortured by the sharp edges of the die, as being stamped upon, indeed, as a poor charassed thing—as bearing a character. Its character came to it because it was beaten, pounded by this tremendous hammer. The more it was beaten the more distinct character it had. I believe all our words of similar import have a similar derivation. Thus, when we say that a man is of this "type" of manhood, or that "type" of manhood, the original meaning is that he has been beaten into that shape by the blows of experience that have passed over him.

Burns says "the rank is but the guinea stamp." This means, at bottom, that a "pound" is metal which has been pounded. And there are metals which improve in quality all the time you stamp and hammer them. Just the same is true of a man, if he have the true heart, the true life and makes himself master of the circumstances instead of the slave. . . . And the hammering is no unimportant part of the process.—Edward Everett Hale.

Facts About New Plant World.

A new plant world, though one of few forms, is opened up by Dr. Pierce See's botanical investigation of libraries. The spots appearing on the paper of old volumes, or those kept in damp places, are found to be due to various fungi and to represent a certain number of species in different stages of growth, colors and conditions. The microscope shows the ordinary spot to be made up of a dark central nucleus, which is the mycelium or vegetative portion of the plant, surrounded by a lighter zone colored by the secretions of the organism. Plants still living have been transplanted to gelatine, licorice, potatoes or other suitable soil, and from the growths so obtained in three to six weeks the various kinds have been identified. As reported to the Paris Academy of Sciences, about 20 different species have been so far isolated. The molds are not all introduced into the books or paper, but in some cases their germs appear to have been present in the paper materials, even in the raw fiber itself.

Petulance and Earnestness.

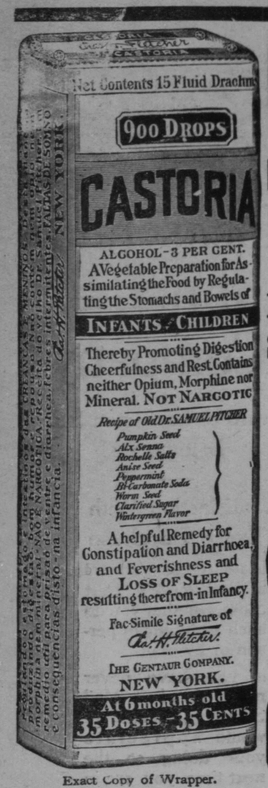

To look mad and growl is almost as bad as swearing. In fact, if one analyzes the two, he will not find any difference between them. Profanity is only an expression of the state of mind. Of course, there is some difference in the character and form of the expression; but they all mean the same thing. We speak of this because the world notes the mental attitude and regards it the same as profanity, and imputes this fault to the man who wears a growl, remarks Ohio State Journal. And so a religious man who looks mad and growls depreciates his relation as a member of a church and reflects upon the church, too. There is unhappily a good deal of this going on and it is all in violation of Scriptural teaching. We must learn the difference between earnestness and petulance and observe the difference in conduct or we injure the cause we are engaged in. There is no room for ill-temper in a noble enterprise even if that ill-temper does not break out in epithet and wicked language.

Two Points of View.

IN MEMORIAM

Shipley—In sad, but loving remembrance of my dear husband, J. Wilbur Shipley, who was so suddenly called away nine years ago to day, June 5, 1909.

Once our home was bright and happy,
Oh how sad and dreary to day;
For my dear and loving husband
Has forever passed away.

Gone from earth, yes gone forever,
Tear dimmed shall gaze in vain,
I shall never hear thy voice
Never more on earth again.
By his loving wife.

Death has robbed us of our father
Whom we loved and cherished dear;
It was father, yes, dear father,
Can we help but shed a tear?
By his loving wife and children.

LETTER FROM FRANCE

American Expeditionary Force.
France.
May 7, 1918.

Dear Brother:-

I will take great pleasure to write to you today as I have not written to you for several weeks.

Well, we are where the great battle is going on. The bursting of shells and the report of our guns often disturb our sleep for several hours during the night. Often times we hear the shells whistle over the place where we are staying and burst within a short distance away:

I received the pictures you enclosed in your letter and I think they are fine

I hope you will get along fine on your new farm for you will have an awful lot of work to see after.

Well I suppose every body is getting along fine at home, at least I hope so.

I received a letter from aunt Elsie a few days ago and was certainly glad to hear of their good health, and I also received several letters from Hanover, one especially welcome was from grandma, and I was very glad to know that she is still enjoying good health.

Well, as I can not think of any more to write I will have to bring my letter to a close, hoping this will find you all in good health. I remain well and happy.

Your brother,
Clarence S. Frock.

Young Americans Wild To Get After U-Boats

Since the raid of German submarines off the North Atlantic coast, all the naval recruiting stations in New York have been swamped by thousands of applicatants for enlistment in the Naval Reserve.

At the central recruiting station alone officers said Wednesday that there were more than 3000 applications Tuesday.

The volume of business has been so great at headquarters that it has been found necessary to send the applicants to offices where the rush was not so heavy.
