IN MEMORIAM

In sad but loving remembrance of my dear mother, Bertha May Grimes, who departed this life February 5, 1901.

Eighteen years ago,
The Lord took her home on high,
Though I never saw her
I feel her presence nigh.

Gone in the best of her days
Blighted in womanhood's bloom,
Gone from the hearts that loved her
To rest in the silent tomb.

Though friends on earth forsake her
And go sweeping through this world,
There's many a deep silent thought
While their banner's being unfurled.

Every one must pass across the vale
Of the whispering cypress trees,
Every one must follow in its trail
Oft the silent slumbering breeze.

I shall never see her form; loved dear,
I shall never, her cheerful voice hear;
But hope whispers sweetly in accents of love,
I shall meet my dear mother in heaven above.

By her loving daughter,
Bertha Hazel Grimes.
