Murray family letters 1894

without it.
I do not know, nor can I imagine what the name of the latest arrival in the Morris family will be.
I think they must have raked their brains long ago. It will be very nice for you to have Polly with you & I suppose she is there now. Tell her the music arrived safely as did, also, the circulars which I thought I had acknowledged long ago. Has it not funny?
On last Saturday I wrote to Papa asking why he never wrote & rather scolding him for not doing so & the next day came a long letter from him apologizing for not having written.
I suppose he has gone back home before now & is feeling much better for the rest he has had.
It is not very often he indulges in one.
Tell Mamma we none of us have our large trunks with us but each owns a small one in which we can carry about two changes of underclothes.
The first time she has a chance to get them I should like to have a pair of medium undershirts for late this fall & next spring as mine have given out & what we get here are not very good & we are too far from San Antonio to get them there & by the time we
