About now the seed catalogs are very fascinating. But the enormous size of the vegetables therein displayed makes the gardeners of Westminster feel their buildings will be wholly inadequate to store the product.

Some people claim the soldiers will not resume their old civilian clothes, but are going to wear knee breeches. Better hurry up before the girls adopt that costume at which they seem to be looking longingly.

Had This Trouble Eight Years

For 8 years I suffered agonizing pains in my hands, feet and legs. I had been treated a great deal but not anything seemed to reach my case, have even gone to the trouble and expense of sending to Europe for certain medicines that had been thought would help me. Following medical advice I went to Philadelphia to consult a specialist who after examination informed me he could not do anything for me. I have since taken treatment with Dr Greenwood and I am happy to say the trouble I suffered so many years has passed away. I also had been severely troubled with headaches and backache and I no longer have these.

IN MEMORIAM

HERBERT BARBER

In sad but loving remembrance of our dead son Herbert Barber, who departed this life, 5 years ago, today, March 5, 1914.

Five sad years with all its changes,
Since death strangely bade us part,
But, dear Herbert, all the changes
Cannot take you from our hearts.
We cannot forget you, dear Herbert.
Though long may seem the years.
And often in the lonely hours.
We wipe away the tears.
Often comes the bitter cry,
"Why, oh why, did our dear Herbert die"?
Then comes the answer solemn and sweet.
Herbert is not dead, he is only asleep.
Dear is the grave where our son lays,
Sweet is memory, which never shall fade.
Roses may wither, leaves fade and die,
Others may forget you, but never shall we.

By his loving parents.

I miss you more each passing day,
I miss you more each year,
But, 'tis so sweet for me to know
You're free from all earth's cares.

By his loving brother Jamie Barber.

In a letter to The Baltimore Sun received Monday, Maj. D. John Markey, of the One Hundred and Twelfth Machine Gun Battalion, made up of Maryland men now in France, strongly urges that the friends of the boys back home systematically make a practice of mailing to them the comic supplements of the Sunday paper. The great problem now, Major Markey writes, is to entertain the boys and help them stand the strain of waiting to come home. The comic supplements are largely sought, he says, and a regular supply of them will be of great service.

HENRY WATTERSON'S

HOT SHOT AT WILSON

Says Thoughtful People Regard His Performances with Amazement.

Miami, Fla., March 3.—Henry Watterson, asked for an expression of views touching the President's latest adventure, said:

"Mr. Wilson should not be permitted to depart upon his second mission of self-exploitation in Europe without some expression of the popular disapproval. This is required to meet his wholly questionable representation that he is the authorized agent of public opinion in the United States. No American president ever presumed so much upon such scanty warrant. Thoughtful people everywhere regard his autocratic performances with amazement, nor did the mock duck in Tobin's comedy surpass in extravagance the figure he cuts. The glare of courts and the blandishments of the great seem to have turned his head, and unless the people call him down, he will put a strain upon our institutions which may in the end count against liberty and law."

Asked what he thought of the President's refusal to receive a delegation of Irish-American citizens, headed by Justice Goff and Judge Cohalan, Mr. Watterson said the President is now playing for English court favors and cannot afford to mix in what he and the likes of him are wont to call the low Irish."
