Murray family letters 1884

on our Father – but there there must be a great silence in the soul before we can hear that still small voice. a sight I wish I could see you and talk to you. So pray for me my dearest friend I see on all sides of me work which I ought to be ready to do. & I am not equal to it – in any way

Your work & Aunt Christina seems to be to suffer & wait & I think you both are glorifying God in that way – but I am strong & well & ought to be actively employed & I feel so incapable ——

I am too, sorry to hear of dear Mummy's illness & trust she is better Give her my love & sympathy for I know how depressing Mrs. Malaria attacks are

Mr Christie & Will have just gone on to the other house it is lovely & I too must go to bed. I am glad you saw Anna & Sterling they were to have gone to West Point Thursday they will Ever yr loving
