My Dear Polly

Your letter came early in the week but I have waited to tell you how much we like the things. They came yesterday Saturday, the curtains are very handsome and the cretonne is lovely both Morris and I are very much pleased with them and so much obliged to you for doing the shopping for us. I showed them to Birdie today she was delighted and is going to have old gold for her house.

Mr Dale is giving his experience in rambling and I cannot help being disgusted men are so bad. I can scarcely write for he talks a perfect streak. Annie went down to the Park on Friday and stayed until today. She did not see Uncle James he was suffering a great deal from rheumatism, he had a very bad cold last week and I suppose it takes this way to go off.

Thanking you again very much for doing the shopping for me it was perfectly satisfactory.

Much love to you all in which Morris joins Affectately Your

Polly C. [illegible]
