SEES FARMER AS AID TO PEACE

INCREASING PRODUCTION WILL MAKE UNNECESSARY LARGE ARMAMENT SAYS PRESIDENTIAL CANDIDATE.

Agricultural Interests Played The Game And Fed This Country As Well As Our Allies.

In an address recently in Chicago, Leonard Wood, candidate for president of the United States, said that if proper encouragement is given to farmers and to the advancement of agriculture, America will not need a large army or navy.

"The farmer is the steadying class about which unstable masses move," said the candidate. "He is a land owner, consequently, he is a conservative man and believes in this government."

"During the war the American farmer played the game. He did not try to hold up the public by striking and shoving up the price of food, but he fed not only our country but our allies in a very large part. He is a patriotic, loyal, non-striking, steadying American citizen."

Leonard Wood's address in part follows:

Only Original Producers.

"The farmers today are the only producers of original wealth. But they are getting off of the farms. The farms are falling into the hands of large land owners. We want to stop that if we can. The moment we cease to be a self-sustaining nation, our whole foreign policy must change. We are producers now of food in quantities sufficient for ourselves and for considerable export, but supposing our agriculture declines and we become dependent on outside countries for food and supplies, what does that mean? It means at once an enormous navy; it means a stronger military establishment; it means the control of lines of supply beyond peradventure, as during this war Germany expected to beat England by cutting off her food supply. England, however, realized that danger and has always had a navy equal to any other two navies. She has had to have a navy that was in excess of the needs of maintaining her commerce, in order that she might have a navy strong enough to absolutely insure the free entrance of food in time of war.

Farmers Do Not Get Enough.

"You know there is a great deal of unrest today in the farming element. They feel that enough of the producar's dollar does not come back to them, and there is a good deal of truth in it. During the Omaha riots I was knocking about the city one night and ran into an old farmer coming in with a load of milk. I said to him, "What do you get for your milk?" He replied, "From 5½ to 6 cents a quart." I said, "It is selling for a great deal more than that here." He said, "Oh, yes. On those days when I feel a bit flush I go down to the Fontanelle and get a good breakfast, and I meet my milk there at about fifteen cents a quart. Now, I raised that cow, fed her, milked her and brought that milk in here about 25 miles and got 6 cents a quart for it, and I want to find this other fellow that is getting 9 cents in about two hours.

"You know that there is a lot in that, and that is only one illustration, but that is one of the big movements on the part of the farmers today, to get closer to the consumer and to get a larger share of the ultimate selling price of his product.

"So the farmer's problem is an interesting one and a very important one, and to sum it up briefly, we must try to make his living conditions and the conditions surrounding him in the way of education, and transportation and the delivery of his supplies and all that sort of thing the best possible, otherwise your farmers are going to have a constant falling off in the development and production of the sources of original wealth.

Made Mighty Good Soldiers.

"During the war the farmer sent his sons to war and they made mighty good soldiers. The divisions I had to train in the Middle West were practically all farmer boys, and there were no better divisions went overseas in discipline, in character, in fighting qualities, in cleanliness and patriotism.

WHAT THEODORE ROOSEVELT THOUGHT OF LEONARD WOOD.

Leonard Wood combines in a very high degree the qualities of entire manliness with entire uprightness and cleanliness of character. He is a man of high ideals who scorns everything mean and base and who possesses those robust and hardy qualities of body and mind for the lack of which no merely negative virtue can atone. —Roosevelt in "The Rough Riders."

He (Wood) has a remarkable gift for organization.—"Roosevelt's Autobiography.

LESSON FOR MARCH 28

REVIEW: THE LIFE WORK OF PETER AND JOHN.

SELECTION FOR READING—Rev. 21: 21-22:5.

GOLDEN TEXT—Go ye therefore and teach all nations, baptizing them in the name of the Father, and of the Son, and of the Holy Ghost; teaching them to observe all things whatsoever I have commanded you: and, lo, I am with you alway, even unto the end of the world—Matt. 28:19, 20.

ADDITIONAL MATERIAL—John 1:42; 21:15-24; I Peter 1:3; I John 1:1-4.

PRIMARY TOPIC—Two Stories About Peter (Acts 3:1-16; 12:1-17).

JUNIOR TOPIC—Peter and John Winning Others to Christ (material of last quarter).

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Peter and John Compared and Contrasted.

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Contribution of Peter and John to Christian History.

The review of the quarter's lessons can be profitably made to center in the service of Peter and John, or perhaps better, the activity and power of the risen and ascended Christ manifest in the service of Peter and John.

Lesson 1. Peter Preaches at Pentacost (Acts 2).

Peter proves that Jesus Christ arose from the dead, ascended on high and poured forth the Holy Spirit upon the church; the evidence of it was the unusual behavior of the disciples.

Lesson 2. Peter and John Heal a Lame Man (Acts 3).

This remarkable miracle wrought in the name of Jesus Christ proved that though the Jews had crucified him, he was now alive and continued his work through the disciples.

Lesson 3. Peter and John Witnessing of the Risen Christ Before the Sanhedrin (Acts 4).

As a result the Sanhedrin took knowledge that they had been with Jesus, that is, his life and work were being reproduced in and through them. Being with Christ will: 1. Give an experimental knowledge of him, so that the life will remind one of Jesus. 2. Take away the fear of man. Peter, who a little while ago quailed before a Jewish maid, is undaunted before the august sanhedrin. 3. Open a man's lips. Peter said: "We cannot but speak the things which we have seen and heard." What the heart feels, the mouth must speak out.

Lesson 4. The Risen Christ Vindicating His Church (Acts 1:5-16).

He passed judgment upon Ananias and Sapphira for their hypocritical pretense of generosity. The living Christ knows the intents of the heart; nothing can be concealed from him.

Lesson 5. The Living Christ Saving Men and Women in Samaria (Acts 8:4-25). His sanction of the preaching of the Gospel by Philip in Samaria is shown by the outpouring of the Holy Spirit. Peter and John were sent by the mother church to confirm the work.

Lesson 6. The Living Christ Healing the Sick and Raising the Dead (Acts 9:32-43).

That Christ is alive is proved by the vanquishing of the dreadful malady of palsy and the retenanting of a corpse by the departed soul. Nothing like this had been known since the days of Christ.

Lesson 7. The Risen Christ Revealing Himself to a Gentile (Acts 10).

Peter testifies to Cornelius that Jesus Christ died for sin and is to be the judge of the quick and the dead, and that everyone who believes on him will receive remission of sins.

Lesson 8. Peter Is Delivered From Prison Through the Living Christ Sending His Angel to Open the Doors (Acts 12:1-19).

The church prayed for Peter's deliverance and the prison was opened. All power is given him in heaven and in earth; there is nothing too hard for the living Christ.

Lesson 9. Peter Shows the Resurrected Christ as the Head of the Church (I Peter 2:15; 11-25).

Because Christ is alive, those who are joined to him by faith grow. Because of the contact with him they are able to maintain seemly behavior in the various relations of life.

Lesson 10. Christ Is the Revealer of God's Love (I John 4:7-21).

The proof that Christ is alive is the love of God in the hearts of those who have been born again.

Lesson 11. Christ Is Alive Because He Is Walking in the Midst of the Churches (Rev. 1:4-18).

Lesson 12. In heaven, the crucified, risen and glorified Christ will be the center of worship. All glory and honor are ascribed to him because of his marvelous work of redemption.

UNCLE TED'S BED-TIME STORIES

WHEN IS THE PRESIDENT DISABLED?

"Well I know the Vice President is the one," said Jack in a very excited voice.

"What's wrong with you kiddies now?" asked Uncle Ted as he broke in on the scene.

"Ruth is trying to tell me who runs the government when the President is sick," answered Jack, "and I tell her that I know the Vice President is the one because our teacher said so."

"There is a whole lot to be said about that," replied Uncle Ted, "and I will tell you as much as I can tonight. You see, the Constitution of the United States says that when the President is disabled, that is, when he is unable to perform his duties as chief executive, that the Vice President shall take up the duties of that office."

"I knew I was right," said Jack.

"Very true, Jack, but the trouble is that the Constitution does not say by what method, or when or where the question is to be determined as to the President's inability to perform his work. The question is as old as the Constitution itself and has been discussed at various times by the bigmen of the day for the past 140 years or more. But today Congress has made up its mind to settle this question for all time to come. Already the Judiciary Committee of the House of Representatives has been holding hearings to discuss the four bills which have been introduced upon this subject. From these four bills the committee will write what they believe to be the best measure to remedy this situation and that bill will then be presented to Congress for a vote."

"Who introduced the four bills?" asked Jack.

"They were introduced by Representative Martin B. Madden, of Illinois, Representative Simeon D. Fess, of Ohio, Representative John J. Rogers, of Massachusetts, and Representative Clifton N. McArthur, of Oregon. All four of these men are Republicans and they all have said that their bills were not written and aimed at President Wilson but the long sickness of the President and his inability to do his work, of course, makes the matter of great importance at this time.

"What do the different bills say?" asked Ruth.

"Representative Madden's bill says that whenever the President is unable to perform his work for six weeks the cabinet shall meet and determine whether the President is able to go on with his duties. The Supreme Court of the United States would decide about the President's ability, after it has been authorized to do so by a resolution of Congress, under the bill introduced by Representative Fess. An amendment to the Constitution to bring this about is called for in the Fess bill. A resolution from either the House or Senate or both would make it the duty of the Supreme Court to give a decision as to whether, as stated in the Constition, the President is disabled, under the bill introduced by Representatives Rogers. Representative McArthur's bill would fix things so that if the President was away from the United States for thirty days or ill, either one would mean disability to act and the decision would be up to the cabinet.

"Representative Fess has made a very careful study of this matter and he says that in order to make it possible for the Supreme Court to decide this question an amendment will have to be made to the Constitution giving the power to the Court. Representative Rogers does not agree with this theory. He says that the matter can be decided by the Supreme Court by an act of Congress. He has also made a very deep study of this matter, and when he appeared before the committee he mentioned many opinions which had been handed down in the past by high authorities. He mentioned the fact that when Garfield was disabled for three months the question of whether or not an acting President should be put in authority was discussed to a great extent but no action was taken. It is Mr. Rogers' view that the Supreme Court shall be given the power to decide when the real disability of the President exists after it has been requested to do so by a resolution from either house of Congress, and that it should also have the power to decide in the same way when the disability is at an end."

"Does the committee agree with Mr. Rogers?" asked Jack.

"No, Jack, some of the members of the committee objected because they said the Supreme Court, as a court, could not be asked to decide this question on the request of Congress. It is agreed by almost everyone interested in this question that the Vice President has full power to decide when the President is disabled, and to take up the duties of the President whenever he believes he should do so. But, as Mr. Rogers jointed out to the committee, no Vice President has ever done this, and it is not likely that any Vice President would be apt to do so in the future 'unless' said Mr. Rogers, 'the President was in a mad house, and even then I doubt if he would.'

"Representative Madden's bill gives the power to the Secretary of State to call cabinet meetings for the purpose of deciding the ability of the President to continue his work. If under his bill, the cabinet should decide that the President was disabled the Vice President as provided for under the Constitution. Mr. Madden suggests that the bill should not become effective before the 4th of March, 1921, so that it would not effect the present President. 'The dictum of the President of the United States,' said Mr. Madden before the committee, now is that it is usurpation of presidential authority if cabinet meetings are called during his disability. My bill would place the stamp of legal authority for the Secretary of State to call such meetings, and not let the country go into a state of decay because the President cannot function.'

"Representative McArthur says that Congress has the full power to name the authority which should be the deciding body, and that Congress has always been the one to interpret the Constitution. For this reason, he believes that Congress should be the one to decide when the President is unable to perform his duties. The best part about all of these bills is the fact that none of these four men are interested in having their particular bill adopted, but want to see a bill come from this committee which will settle this question for all time to come in the best interests of the more than 110,000,000 people in the United States."
