My dear Cousin Emily

We were very much relieved and delighted to day, when Charley came from the boat. we think he seems much better and will hope that he will have no return of hysteria for some time at any rate. Cornelia thinks that there is a disposition to return at an interval of three months, we will watch now and see for ourselves. The most important thing just now, is to find some occupation for him, and this I trust when the gentlemen get together, they may be able to plan. He is tired to night and so we have all come to bed early all means Cornelia Charley and my-to worry about any part of it. Charley gives a very nice account of the family at Ardmore, I am so glad to hear that Mrs Buckley can get down stairs now. He says they were all so very kind to him too, but we all know that is what they always are. I am glad to be able to give a good report of all the family here, they are all tired and it will take some time to rest, but all are quite well. The baby is still doing very nicely. I had a nice letter from Mrs Cope a week ago. have you seen her? Do you know whether the Green Hill family have returned I believe Sally and Hannah were to come to Germantown about this time. I must now tell you good night dear Cousin as it is past ten nearly eleven - I do not mean to sit up for them. All would join me in fond love if they were here
