A CASE ABOUT HORSE SHOEING.

A case of some interest to farmers and other owners of horses was tried this week in the Circuit Court, and the jury gave the plaintiff a verdict for $1 and casts. It appeared that some time last Fall Mr. James A. Dorsey, of Dorsey's Cross Roads, Freedom district, told his teamster, Thomas Myers, colored, to stop while on his way to Sykesville with a six-horse load of wheat, at the blacksmith shop of Mr. James G. Randall, at Eldersburg, and have new shoes put on the front feet of the off-wheel horse. On his return from Sykesville the teamster stopped at the shop and led the horse into it, but the horse, being of a nervous temperament, would not stand. The teamster then led the horse outside and had the saddle horse brought to the shop so that the horse to be shod would have company and become quiet.

The animal, however, failed to stand to suit the blacksmith, and some one suggested putting a twitch on him, which was done, but it only aggravated him. By this time the teamster, who had broken the horse to work, becoming disgusted with the treatment seized the animal by the bridle and, after talking to him, succeeded in quieting him; after which Mr. Randall proceeded to put on the shoes. He had finished nailing the shoe on the right front foot and had picked up his shoeing box and was crossing immediately in front of the horse's front legs and the teamster, who was standing immediately in front of the horse, when the animal, without any warning, struck Mr. Randall with his left foot right in the small of the back, injuring him seriously.

In the case just tried Mr. Randall, the plaintiff, through his attorney Guy W. Steele, Esq., contended that Mr. Dorsey knew the horse was a nervous and vicious animal but failed to warn him; and that he, Ranhis apparent nervousness, was a dodall, believing the animal, outside of cile one, proceeded to shoe him in the usual way; and that Dorsey knew the animal was unsafe for a horseshoer, because another blacksmith always had trouble with the horse; and that all the teamster told him was "that he was a jerker, and would try to jerk his feet away from the shoer"; and that he, Randall, had never seen the horse before and relied upon what the teamster told him.

Mr. Dorsey contended and proved by witnesses that the horse was not vicious, but that to strangers he would appear nervous; and that very little or no trouble had been experienced by Mr. Myerly, the blacksmith who did his work regularly. Messrs. Bond & Parke represented Mr. Dorsey.

WHEAT CROP DESTROYED BY HAIL.

The wheat on the farm of W. Frank Thomas near this city, tenanted by Augustus Humbert, was nearly all destroyed by the terrific hail storm that passed over Westminster last Friday afternoon. There were three fields of wheat on this farm with a total of 40 acres, 30 acres of this being a total loss and the balance 10 acres a 50 per cent. loss. This wheat was insured with Stoner & Hobby and the loss was adjusted on Tuesday of this week on the basis stated above. Besides the wheat being destroyed there were several acres of rye and barley that are a total loss.
