Monday afternoon

My dear Brother,

Though I sent a letter for you to the mail this morning, written yesterday afternoon, I am so deeply thankful to you for telling me exactly how you are in your letter received this morning, that I cannot help expressing my gratitude to you, at the risk of wearying you with my frequent letters. I am indeed, very grateful to you and to dear Cousin Anne, also, for her nice postscript. Though I ~~cannot~~ wish you could have given a better account of your health. Very trying to you your present condition must be, over desirous as you are your morning letter c. to you all.
