UNCLE TED'S BED TIME STORIES

Jack And Ruth Learn About Senator Warren G. Harding Our Next President A Real Man

"Well kiddies," began Uncle Ted, 'the big show' is over and every American citizen should feel very happy because our next President will be a real man."

"What do you mean, Uncle Ted?" asked Ruth.

"I mean, Ruth, that the great Republican Convention has closed after naming as the candidate for President, Senator Warren G. Harding, of Ohio. And everybody is pleased except the Democrats, because they must realize that the kind of government that the Republican party and its nominee. Senator Harding, stand for is the kind of government every American citizen is longing to return to, the sooner the better. The next time I tell you a story, I am going to tell you all about the history of the life of Senator Harding. Tonight I want to give you a little idea of what this man's' nomination means to the country.

"Senator Harding is an old fashioned Republican. He looks, acts, and thinks like the great Republican President, William McKinley, who was killed by a bad man many years ago. He comes from the same State, and, is the same kind of friendly kindly, fair, and square gentleman. Unlike Woodrow Wilson, Senator Harding is a common-sense American who believes in the Constitution for which our popular form of government stands. He will not close the doors of the White House and refuse to listen to the advice of big, brainy men. He will not select as members of his cabinet, men who know nothing about the various departments of the government. Senator Harding will select and surround himself with the brainiest cabinet we have had for many, years, men whose judgment he believes in and men to whom he will go for advice.

"When the delegates from all over the United States met in Chicago, they had many serious problems to solve. There were groups of delegates with varying ideas as to principles and divergent preferences as to candidates. Fortunately, the committee of delegates who were chosen to write what is called a 'platform' were able to draw up a declaration of principles which met the approval of everybody, and there was no opposition to its adoption. The delegates were also able to agree upon a man as candidate for President who is neither a radical nor an extreme conservative one who will aid in restoring government by a responsible party organization instead of a government controlled by one man who not only bosses his party but tries to run the government in accordance with his personal views regardless of the judgment of other men who are often better qualified than he.

"Every bit of unrest and trouble in this country today can be traced in one way or another back to the policies of the present Administration; which means the policies of one Woodrow Wilson. He has cared nothing for the advice of his party. He has cared nothing for the advice of his cabinet or the advice of the big men of the country. He has gone ahead with the idea that he knew it all and that if he thought a thing ought to be done in a certain way it could not be done better. But NO man can know it all and NO man can run this government to suit himself. If Congress has failed to accomplish some things, although I think they have done mighty well, it has been because Woodrow Wilson has refused to give in on any of his views and all the time ignored or antagonized Congress. And that is certainly wrong when we remember that Congress is made up of men elected by the people of this country to frame our laws.

"Now children, this kind of administration has made it possible for Bolshevism and all kinds of extreme radical forces to gain headway. It must be stopped and when Warren G. Harding is elected President it WILL be stopped. There will be no more playing with radicals as we have seen going on with Mitchell Palmer as Attorney General. There will be no more sending of money by the millions to foreign countries or planning to mix in with every country in the world when our own problems should be solved first. We will have a government, as the great Lincoln said, of the people, by the people, for the people.' The Republican party has had the courage to say 'it must end' and we will have no more of Wilsonian government."

"Where did Senator Harding go after the convention?" asked Jack.

"He went right back to Washington, Jack, to attend to his duties as Senator. He is not going to resign or quit as Senator. He is a hard worker and always arrives at his office by nine o'clock in the morning. On his first day in Washington after the convention he worke dfar into the night to catch up with his letters. But although he has been under a hard strain and working hard since he arrived in Washington he is in the best of health. He loves to play golf and plays a splendid game which keeps him good physical shape, very necessary for any man who must face the responsibilities as head of this great country.

"To show you what people think of him, who know him, I am going to read what Senator King, of Utah, a Democrat has said about Senator Harding. Here it is: 'Harding reminds me very strongly of McKinley, whom I knew. It seems to me that the Democrats should be willing to admit, as I am, that the Chicago convention selected the strongest ticket they could have chosen.'

"I hope Senator Harding will be the next President," said Ruth.

"He WILL be the next President," answered Uncle Ted, "and the United States will again be governed by the Constitution as the fathers intended. Now Scamper along to bed and next week I will tell you all about Senator Harding's life and the many things he has done."

TRAVEL DE LUXE IN HEATED AIR PLANE

Wedding Party Take Nap on New York-Chicago Trip.

Chicago, June 27.—Taking a nap above the clouds in an electrically heated airplane at an altitude of 6,800 feet while traveling between Albany and Buffalo was one of the incidents recorded in the log of a party which recently arrived here from New York on their way to Omaha to attend a wedding. They made a journey in an all-steel monoplane.

Luncheon, with a full complement of silver and tableware, after dinner cigars for the male passengers and special vanity cases for the ladies, was some of the features of the new plane

The machine covered more than 950 miles on the trip from New York to Chicago, going up into Canada to avoid a storm over southern Lake Erie. The actual running time for the trip was 8 hours and 54 minutes.

Some of the entries in the log are: 2:45 P. M.—Left ground at Long Island Flying Field.

2.54 P. M.—Crossing the Sound.

3:20 P. M.—Just passed over Peekskill.

4.23 P. M.—Landed at Albany, 175 miles by road from starting point. Time 1 hour and 8 minutes.

After an overnight stop the journey was resumed.

10:15 A. M.—Left Albany.

10:38 A. M.—Have reached 6,800 feet, above the clouds. Weather cold outside, but electrically heated cabin is warm. Passengers wear straw hats and summer clothes

11:15 A. M.—Mr. (the owner) has retired for a nap.

12 Noon—Mr.———— called for lunch. Says he enjoyed sleep.

12:15 P. M.—Two hours out from Albany. We have passed Geneva at a height of 5,500 feet.

1:05 P. M.—Circling over Buffalo at 3,500 feet. Very smoky below.

1:09 P. M.—Found the field and landed.

5:00 P. M.—Left Buffalo for Chicago.

6:09 P. M.—Crossed into Canada to avoid storm. In the states everything appears to be laid out in squares. The fields are square and the woods are square. On this side of the line the woods wander all over the landscape like the veins in a leaf.

8:54 P. M.—City below, with a river circling through it. Must be Battle Creek.

8:56 P. M.—No, it is South Bend, Ind. The sun just fell across the gilded spire of Notre Dame. The river is the St. Joe.

9:10 P. M.—Out over the southern end of Lake Michigan.

9:12 P. M.—Passed Michigan City.

9:24 P. M.—Ten miles out in lake, opposite Gary. Altitude 6,500 feet. Can see the town plainly.

9:30 P. M.—Circling over Chicago business district. Speed 130 miles per hour.

9:35 P. M.—Have located field. Two flares set off below. Height 6,500 feet.

9:38 P. M.—Landed.

If we were back in the 17th century no doubt we would be content to live in a log cabin like our great grandfathers, but as we are living in the 20th century we want 20th century surroundings. That means the best of furnishings, decorations, etc.

NEU-TONE; the artistic, sanitary, washable, flat wall finish, is distinctly a 20th century finish. Put on in attractive combinations with a stencil border it is the de-lux yet inexpensive method of decorating the home.
