Bare feet and tattered clothes, little to eat and less to wear, such is the fate of thousands of children in central and eastern Europe. These boys in Poland are only a sample of the 3,500,000 destitute youngsters that the European Relief Council plans to help through the cold days of the coming winter. To that end eight great organizations in America have merged to form the Council, the chairman of which is Herbert Hoover. Under his leadership the American Relief Administration, the American Red Cross, the American Friends' Service Committee (Quakers), the Federal Council of the Churches of Christ in America, the Jewish Joint Distribution Committee, the Knights of Columbus, the Y. M. C. A. and the Y. W. C. A. have decided to co-operate jointly to raise $33,000,000 to help the European children over the bill.

Joseph D. Brooks, Secretary.

A VOLUMINOUS RECORD

If the story of the extravagance, inefficiency, waste and graft imposed upon the American people during the past eight years could be recorded within the pages of a book, there would be no possibility of the return of the Democratic party to power within the next half century. The trouble is that the record is spread through so many Departments and bureaus and commissions and boards that it is impracticable to get a summary of the whole bad business in a limited space.

WILSON'S CANDIDATE IN MORE

Gossip is still rife about the trouble with Henry Ford and some of his high paid executives. Three of the highest salaried men in the organization have resigned after what is said to have been a stormy meeting with Edsel Ford, the president of the company. Meanwhile Henry himself is busy stirring up an anti-Hebrew storm. Apparently he is now as much a center of controversy as he was a rallying point for advocates of peace at a certain period of the war.

FOREWARNED, BUT--

It is estimated that it will take two or three years and $2,000 000 to copy off and save the census records damaged by fire recently in the Census Office at Washington. This is another of the little items of waste that can be charged against the retiring administration. At the time the records were put into the cellar of the building, arranged on wooden shelves, warnings were issued as to their probable fate in the event of fire, but no steps were taken to preserve them. The people now pay the bill.

A Worcester, Mass. woman alleges that her husband knocked her down with a stove poker. Too bad she did not seem to understand the most essential uses of the rolling pin.

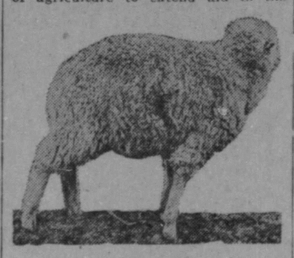

A lot of people who are complaining about lack of work, are the same ones who tied up buying by their inefficient and costly production.

COMMON SCAB AMONG SHEEP

During Past Decade Great Progress Has Been Made in Eradication of Ailment.

Common scab was formerly the greatest drawback to the sheep industry of the United States, but during the past decade great progress has been made in its eradication. The system of grazing sheep on the open ranges of the western part of the United States was such that the flockmasters had great difficulty in keeping the flock free from the scab. The sheep were very frequently exposed to the disease by infectious ranges and trails, "picking up strays" from infected flocks, and in many other ways. It became desirable for the department of agriculture to extend aid to the industry by controlling the interstate movement of sheep to prevent the carrying of the infection from one state to another.

Scab is exceedingly contagious and is transmitted by direct contact with animals or objects that are carriers of the mites. Although unable to propagate except on sheep, the mites may be harbored temporarily by animals other than sheep and may live on goats for a long period.

A flock of scabby sheep will infect the roads, trails, sheds, yards bed grounds, pastures, ranges, and the ground around the watering places it is therefore important that the flock receive proper treatment as soon as the disease appears, before the infection becomes scattered over the premises.

SCIENTIFIC FEEDING IS BEST

Supply Food in Right Proportions to Meet Requirements Without Waste of Nutrients.

To supply food in the right proportion to meet the various requirements of the animal, without a waste of food nutrients, constitutes scientific feeding. It is by carefully studying the composition of feeding stuffs, the proportion in which they are digested by different animals and under different conditions, and the requirement of animals for the various food nutrients when at rest, at work, giving milk, producing wool, mutton, beef, pork, etc., that the principles of feeding have been worked out. In applying these principles in practice the cost and special adaptations of different feeding stuffs must, of course, be taken into account.

SIRES TO AID FUR BEARERS

"Better Sires—Better Stock" Campaign Indorsed by Breeders and Fanciers' Association.

The National Breeders and Fanciers' Association of America has indorsed the "Better Sires—Better Stock" movement. Through its secretary, the association has notified the United States department of agriculture of its aim, through better sires, to improve the quality of fur-bearing animals raised in confinement.

In addition to raising animals kept primarily for fur, members of the association also breed such creatures as rabbits, cavies, and mice used for pets and scientific purposes. The value of pure-bred sires is especially great for classes of animals like those mentioned because of their prolificacy.

DECLINE IN BREEDING SOWS

Decrease of 9.9 Per Cent Is Noted by Bureau of Estimates—States Affected.

Breeding sows declined 9.9 per cent during the year ending April 1, 1920, according to investigations of the bureau of crop estimates. The same number of these animals for both years is reported for South Carolina and Georgia, and increases for Florida, Texas, and New Mexico. The heaviest declines were found in Massachusetts, Indiana, Illinois, Missouri, North Dakota, Nebraska, Kansas, Kentucky, Tennessee, Montana, Wyoming Colorado, Arizona, Utah, and Idaho.

MANCHESTER

At New Year when the Mandate came that our cigar manufecturers would have to have their stripping done in their factories it came as a hard proposition and caused many differences of opinion. Mr. George J. Lorringer was not satisfied with hear-says, so he went to Washington to the revenue department and saw Mr. Baker the head of the department who gave him a kind reception and referred him to Mr. Snyder, who, after hearing his complaint went over the matter according to the code, very satisfactorily, that showed that it was an easy proposition. All they had to do was to bond for their strippers and then proceed with their business as in by gone days. Mr. Lorringer came home bonded his strippers and now is adding to his rollers and increasing his business. Some of the factories are working on full time with a full force and the others are gradually taking on hands.

We correct two errors in writing up the death and burial of Mrs. Grove last week. She was aged 76 and she was not the last of the home family, her sister, Mrs. Richard Oursler is still living in Marysville, Ohio. Mr. J. W. Sellers and wife of York attended her funeral on Thursday.

The beautiful morning on Sunday brought out a large congregation to the Communion services in Trinity Reformed Church by Rev. R. J. Freeman, who delivered an appropriate sermon. The music was fine, the invitation impressive, the occasion edifying.

Men were here last week bulletining the town with "Slow Down" and No Parking Here" signs along our streets as a warning, for back of them is a law backed by the auto authorities who will have traffic officers in each section that will see that the law is carried out. They are needed right here where parties make it a practice to over speed the limit on the concrete drive way on Main street.
