Something to Think About

By F. A. WALKER

THE REAL CONQUERORS

IT IS not the general who takes a city and leaves behind him a name for military sagacity, who is the real conqueror in life, but the unknown private, who fights a single-handed battle with self and finally triumphs.

It is this lowly warrior who has the most to overcome. He goes to battle in silence, conscious of the overwhelming odds arrayed against him.

There are no shrieking shells or roaring cannon to announce his coming—no bugle calls nor throbbing drums.

Often he fights side by side with housands who utter not a sound.

Once he awakes to some defect of character which threatens his ruin he girds his armor and faces the foe.

And if by valiant fighting he succeeds in saving himself, he comes forth from the fray a real conqueror.

His name is unpublished in the press, but it is sung among the angels!

He has overcome and to him will be given the reward promised in the Scriptures.

* * *

Passion, pride, selfishness, avarice, disobedience and forgetfulness of the Golden Rule are among the enemies that men fight alone.

They are in every corner of the earth, in our own homes, in our own hearts.

From them come our repinings and tears, our fears and failures.

To overcome these sulking foes ought to be our paramount purpose, for, "what doth it profit a man if he gain the whole world and lose his own soul?"

* * *

In the world's news today you may read pathetic stories of men and women who have fallen from high estates through failure to conquer themselves.

Married pairs have broken their troth; bank clerks have pilfered, and all manner of men and women have blighted their lives and the lives of their families, simply because of forgetfulness of duty in a moment of weakness, when they were unable to control an evil spirit.

They lacked the power to conquer self, and in their impotence they deserted the front line of brave fighters, slunk back in dismay to the rear, humiliated and routed, lost in the whirl of Time and remembered no more.

Four tokens must the bride's cake hold:
A silver shilling and a ring of gold,
A crystal charm, good luck to symbol,
And for the sewer's hand a thimble.

GOOD FOOD FOR EVERY DAY

A GOOD chowder for a chilly day is the following:

Onion Chowder.

Cook two cupfuls of finely minced onion in six tablespoonfuls of butter for thirty minutes, or until the onion is soft and yellow, not browned. Add eight potatoes, pared and sliced, one teaspoonful of salt, one tablespoonful of sage, marjoram and other herbs, one quart of water. Cook until the potatoes are tender; add three cupfuls of milk and one cupful of cream. Let come to a boil and serve with pilot crackers.

Round of Beef, Italian Style.

Take a slice of beef from the bottom of the round, about three inches thick. With a sharp, pointed knife make a number of incisions through it and insert in each a slice of bacon, sprinkled with chopped onion and parsley; roll into a tight roll. At least six rolls should be thus inserted. Tie a string around the meat; chop some bacon, with onion and parsley and thyme and sweet marjoram to taste and spread the mixture in the bottom of a stewpan. Brown the meat on both sides and place over the bacon mixture in the saucepan. Pour over one quart of sifted tomato pulp and let stew slowly until the meat is done.

Old-Fashioned Hard Gingerbread.

Take one cupful each of molasses sugar and shortening, and one cupful of boiling water. Sift two tablespoonfuls each of ginger and soda with one cupful of flour and add to the mixture. Mix well; add flour to make a stiff dough. Place in a cool place and the next day roll out and cut in squares one-half inch thick and bake.

Soft Gingerbread.

Take one cupful each of sugar and molasses, one-half cupful of shortening, one egg, a teaspoonful of salt and three cupfuls of flour. Mix well, then add one cupful of boiling water, in which a teaspoonful of soda has been stirred. Pour into a large dripping pan and bake in a moderate oven.

For a pudding serve the following sauce with the hot gingerbread: Mix one cupful of sugar with one-quarter of a cupful of cornstarch; add one cupful of boiling water and cook until smooth. Flavor with orange rind and juice and, just before taking from the fire, add two tablespoonfuls of butter.
