CORNERSTONE LAYING CEREMONY HELD FOR NEW DAIRY HUSBANDRY BUILDING at 11 A. M.

A great day for the greatest people of the State, in the words of Governor Ritchie, was celebrated Saturday at College Park when 10,000 Maryland farmers, their families and friends, together with the students and alumni of the University of Maryland, observed Farmers' Day.

With perfect weather and extensive preparations awaiting them, crowds from every section of the State arrived early and began active participation in the elaborate program of the day.

The hours from 9 until 11 o'clock were filled with demonstrations of boys' clubs, competitive drills of the R. O. T. C. and conferences.

The first of the three formal programs of the day was that of the laying of the cornerstone of the new Dairy Husbandry Building at 11 o'clock.

D. G. Harry, president of the Maryland State Dairymen's Association, gave the address and officiated in sealing the papers in the cornerstone.

In the competitive drill of the university R. O. T. C. unit, which followed, Company A, of which J. W. Wisner, Jr., Baltimore, is captain, was awarded the Governor's Cup. Captain Wisner was presented with the sword as the leader of the best company.

The chief event of the day, Governor Albert C. Ritchie's address at the Farmers' Day exercises in the aftrnoon, typified the spirit of the annual celebration.

After summing up the condition of the farmers of America by saying that they are pursuing the oldest and noblest of the industries and are yet forced to see all other trades receive vastly more compensation for their labors. He said:

"The only man in the world who can help the farmer as he should be helped is the farmer himself, and the only way that he can help himself is to organize into an efficient, related body, extending over the entire nation.

"The only thing that the farmer asks, and it is only that to which he has a right, is to receive the same wage proportionally as workers in other industries."

Four Farmers Honored.

Four practical farmers who have rendered outstanding services to the State in the past year were awarded the annual Certificate of Merit immediately after the Governor's address. They were: Isaac W. Heaps, Harford county; Samuel L. Byrn, Dorchester county; John Snowden, Prince George's county, and William I. Schrom, Prince George's county.

The cornerstone of the new University of Maryland gymnasium and Armory Building, which has been named after and dedicated to Governor Ritchie, was laid at 4 o'clock, with formal and impressive ceremonies conducted by members of the Maryland Grand Lodge of Masons in full regalia.

The presentation of a gold watch to Governor Ritchie on behalf of the student body of the university and a baseball game between the Johns Hopkins University and the University of Maryland closed the exercises of the day.

FARM BUREAU NEWS

The marketing of Maryland's eggs will be the first definite step of the Maryland Farm Bureau Frederation toward the co-operative marketing of the farm products of this state.

Within the next few weeks a campaign will be put on for the purpose of enrolling the farmers and poultrymen all over the state as members of the Atlantic Coast Poultry Producers Association through which organization arrangements have been made for the cooperative marketing of eggs.

Through an agreement recently entered into between the Maryland Farm Bureau Federation, the Maryland State Poultry Association, the extension service of the University of Maryland and the Atlantic Coast Poultry Producers Association, the latter will take care of and market the entire egg output of the state if necessary and in any event, it will market such a proportion of it as will be represented by the Farm Bureau members and others who become members of the association.

A campaign will soon be started under the direction of the Maryland Farm Bureau Federation for the enrollment of large and small poultry raisers of the state who favor this cooperative marketing plan. Details of this campaign are in the hands of a commttee of five men representing the Maryland State Poultry Association, the extension service of the University of Maryland and the Maryland Farm Bureau Federation with Edwin Warfield, vice president and M. M. Stewart, secretary of the state federation, representing the latter. Final approval of this plan was given at a recent conference held in Baltimore at which were present representatives the Maryland Farm Bureau Federation, extension service of University of Maryland, United States Department of Agriculture, Atlantic Coast Poultry Producers Association, Maryland Poultry Association and the various county agents of Maryland.

The Atlantic Coast Poultry Producers Association is at present cooperatively marketing eggs for Pennsylvania and New Jersey producers in the New York markets and through the arrangement now in operation it expects to put the egg industry in Maryland on a more business like basis as well as to stimulate interest in its further development. The association did an $800,000 business last year and expects to make it a round million this year.

The agreement means that as soon as 100,000 or more hens are represented by Maryland producers, the association will be ready to open a branch egg exchange in Baltimore. This will mean that the consumers will get fresh, graded and unbroken eggs. It also means that Maryland eggs will be shipped to the highest market no matter which of the Atlantic Seaboard cities that might be on the day they are sent forward.

The detailed plan, says M. M. Stewart, secretary of the Maryland Farm Bureau Federation, for the formation of egg circles in the Farm Bureau counties to which the eggs will be sent daily or weekly as the case may demand. At these circles or centers the eggs will be carefully graded and packed in crates on the top layer of which will be placed a card showing the kind, color, and condition of the eggs in that particular crate. The counter check takes place upon the crate reaching its ultimate destination.

According to Dr. H. B. Walker, manager of the association, it is proposed to establish branches of the association in all the large Atlantic Seaboard cities so that the eastern producers will be able to control the egg prices instead of the broker or the commission man.

The joint consistory of the Union church at Baust have decided to wire the church and install electric lights.
