THE EASTON STAR

TUESDAY, JUNE 10, 1879.

Vetoes.

The President has vetoed the Legislative, Judicial and Civil appropriation bill lately passed by Congress, because it provided for the repeal of the law authorizing the appointment of deputy United States marshals to carry elections for the Republican party at the expense of the public treasury. The substance of the message is, the Republican party is its present extremity cannot afford to do without this agency of fraud and corruption. And Mr. Hayes speaks from the book, because he was elevated to his present high position through fraud engineered by this corrupt agency. The pretended issue he makes is national authority vs. State authority; that is, the absolute supremacy of the National authority over elections to the utter destruction of State authority, which power he assumes the right to enforce by the bayonet. Nothing so monstrous has ever before been claimed by any President, and had old John Adams, in the high day of Federalism, dared to claim such power for the President, it would have cost him his head. The Republican party of the present day appears to know nothing, and care nothing, about the Federal constitution and the history of the past.

THE Warner silver bill has passed the House and is now before the Senate. The only material change it makes in the law, it provides for an unrestrictive coinage of the silver dollar, and authorizes the issue of coin certificates for silver bullion deposited in the Treasury, the government to take the silver at its market value, and is required to coin it and pay it out at par with gold, and the coin certificates to be receivable for all government taxes, including duties on imports. The Republicans are generally opposed to the bill, while most of the Democrats in Congress favor it. It is a good bill, and ought to pass, and if the President should veto it, let the Republican party take the consequences. The millions of dollars mined in the country are comparatively useless except for currency, and the country needs the currency, and therefore there ought to be an unrestricted coinage of silver. The amount of gold now annually mined in the world does not much exceed the loss of gold by wear and tear, and unless silver is used as currency, the price of gold will continue to advance, and thus derange trade. Put the silver on the market as currency and gold must come down to what it formerly was, 16 to 1 of silver. The silver bill provides a remedy for a growing evil.

THE platform of the Republicans of Ohio, while very violent in tone against the Democrats, dares not in open and unequivocal terms to defend elections controlled by the bayonet, as advocated by President Hayes. It is now probable Democratic candidate for Governor of Ohio against Charles Foster; if he should be, he will make the Republicans stand up to Hayes's bayonet platform, or go to the wall. The Republicans have made the issue in Congress, and their party will have to stand up to it. The Thurman Democrats will cast to the breeze a flag with the Goddess of Liberty treading under foot a Hayes ballot box with a bayonet through it. On that line the great battle in Ohio for free elections will be fought and decided in October. Nothing can save Foster from defeat but United States marshals and Sherman's gold corruptly drawn from the Federal Treasury.

The Latest Invention in Useful Household Articles.

Within the last few years there has been expended a great deal of inventive thought and genius upon what may properly be classed as household articles, the most noted results of which are the production of the sewing machine, the wringer, the washing machine, the carpet sweeper, &c. Almost every week we chronicle the advent of some new invention by which the cares and labors of housekeeping are lessened, and woman's work made easier.

The newest thing to challenge our attention and gladden the heart of the housekeeper, is, what is called the NOVELTY BRUSH HOLDER, CARPET SWEEPER AND SWEEPER, a very simple contrivance designed to firmly hold in position any kind of a brush or duster; having an extension handle that enables one to wash or dust windows, walls or ceilings without the aid of a step ladder. That is one of its conveniences, and it is also one of the best carpet sweepers in the market, holding the brush firmly at an angle. It cleans the carpet thoroughly, raises no dust, and does not wear the carpet like the ordinary broom or brush, and will outwear a half dozen brooms. It is the best device ever made, no more kneeling on the floor, no more back aches or sore fingers.

As a carpet stretcher alone it is worth its cost, as a carpet of any size can be laid evenly without any of the labor and vexation usually attending such work. It is strong, simple, thoroughly made, cannot get out of order, has no screws, lever or hinges, is compact, cheap and durable.

It is manufactured by Brown & Co., Cincinnati, the well known manufacturers of useful household articles, and is sold only by their agents to housekeepers. The real utility of this article will at once be seen by those most interested, and we predict for it a large sale. Every house keeper in the land will want one.

Any reliable lady or gentleman wishing remunerative employment, would do well to secure the agency for this county, which can be done by enclosing a stamp for descriptive circular and terms, to

THE HISTORY OF EASTON, MARYLAND.

RAPID GROWTH OF A MARYLAND ENTERPRISE.

Reminiscences of an Old Eastern Shore Town—Crossing the Chesapeake to Virginia—Fourteen Miles of Railroad Under the Shadow of the Dismal Swamp.

LUMBER MAKING ON THE NANSEMOND.

Away down on the Eastern Shore, distant from Baltimore a little over one hundred miles, as the crow flies, is situated one of the largest and most important towns in the State of Maryland. Salisbury, the capital of Wicomico county, lies at the head waters of the Wicomico river, about the centre of what may be termed the lower peninsula. This town, founded more than a century and a half ago, has always enjoyed great commercial prosperity by reason of its peculiar geographical position and the business enterprise and thrift of its people.

It is the genuine offspring of energy and bears the impress of the best business genius of the surrounding country. Prior to and during the continuance of the late civil struggle it was the great entrepot for the lumber and grain produced within a geographical circle of not less than twenty miles in diameter, and many of its merchants accumulated handsome fortunes. It was and still is the embodiment of thrift and business progression as expressed on the Eastern Shore, although its business has undergone some changes caused by the introduction of rapid transit and increased facilities of inter-communication with all points on the peninsula. Formerly the merchants shipped their lumber entirely in what may be termed the "raw" state.

Now, however, while this practice still continues, though confined to a much narrower limits, a very large business has sprung up in dressed lumber, box material, et cetera, manufactured in extensive mills erected for the purpose. This, to a great extent, has revolutionized the business of the place, which, though rendered necessary by the peculiar exigencies of the lumber market and the causes heretofore referred to, evidences the existence of foresight and ability to preserve the volume of trade previously controlled. As the history of a town is interesting as a part of that which swells the history of a State, so the sketch of a successful business house which stamps the impress of its seal upon a community cannot fail to catch the interested attention of the reader.

Foremost amongst the leading business houses which have swayed the destinies of Salisbury during the past fifteen years stands that of Messrs. E. E. Jackson & Co. This house commenced business in 1863 with E. E. Jackson, Hugh Jackson and Josephus Humphreys partners in the firm. In 1865 Mr. Humphreys withdrew, and the remaining partners continued the business until 1867, when William H. Jackson was admitted. In 1872 Hugh Jackson withdrew from active business on account of enfeebled health, and his son, W. F. Jackson, assumed his interest in the concern. During all these years the house, which commenced in modest style with limited capital, has been extending its enterprises with such vigor as to comprehend a wider reach and attain greater results than was perhaps contemplated in the most sanguine expectations of its founders during the early periods of its existence. Passing successfully through the period when struggling to compete with older and larger concerns; stemming the torrent of disaster which poured upon the business world after the crash of 1873; reaching forth beyond the circumference of the geographical circle which hitherto bounded the ambition of its confrères, the firm stands to-day one of the first of its class in the State, controlling large interests on both sides of the Chesapeake bay, and possessing an extensive business connections in all the middle Atlantic states.

Some years since the Messrs. Jackson & Co. purchased extensive tracts of timber in Virginia, near the thriving town of Suffolk. Upon this land, somewhere in the neighborhood of 20,000 acres, they constructed a railroad, equipped it with all necessary engines and rolling stock, and erected a number of saw mills at convenient distances. Here, in the heart of the primeval wilderness, binding on the great Dismal Swamp, they commenced the manufacture of lumber from trees among which the yell of the aborigines had resounded, and where the keen edge of the destroying axe had never penetrated.

As the lumber was made from trees that are technically known as "first growth," it readily found rapid sale in the markets of the world. Mills and workmen multiplied accordingly. They have now completed about fourteen miles of railroad, having fine terminal facilities on the Nansemond river, where the "fruit" of the mills is shipped to the many destinations which the ramified interests of the concern demand.

Of course, the business at this point requires the employment of a small army of men as wood-choppers, railroad and mill hands, teamsters, et cetera. The mills have capacity for producing about 50,000 feet of lumber, or bill stuff, daily, and 15,000,000 annually.

The railroad is provided with carrying means of 100,000 feet of lumber per diem. In addition to the vast quantities of lumber manufactured here they also cut something like twelve or fifteen thousand cords of wood annually, which is principally disposed of in New York, where it meets ready sale and commands the highest market price. A fleet of vessels belonging to the firm is engaged in transporting the wood and lumber brought down to the Nansemond to all the Atlantic cities and the cities of the District of Columbia. Just here it may be well to remark that the lumber produced at this place is considered as fine yellow pine as can be had in the market.

At Salisbury, Md., where the headquarters of the firm are located, they have extensive lumber yards in which are stored vast piles of lumber, the product of the mills in the surrounding country and of their place at Suffolk, ready for manufacture or shipment to any point that may be demanded. The firm has also at this point a very large mill for dressing lumber and manufacturing box material, and numerous other forms in which pine lumber is required by the exigencies of commerce. The mill is one of the most complete concerns in the State, and the material turned out there enjoys a fine reputation for quality and finish.

Messrs. E. E. Jackson & Co. have recently opened a branch house in Baltimore to accommodate the growing demand here for their goods, with W. F. Jackson, the junior partner, as manager. Their office is located at No. 18 West Falls avenue, where they have also extensive yards for the storage of all kinds of lumber, dressed and undressed. They have also a box factory at No. 103 McElderry's wharf, for the manufacture of all kinds of boxes used by oyster and fruit packers, &c., in which a large number of workmen are employed during the season when boxes are in demand.

From the foregoing it may be surmised that this firm employs a very large number of people in Suffolk, Salisbury, and Baltimore. They probably have on their pay-rolls nearly five hundred men in all, which will compare favorably with that of any employers in the State.

The points of excellence which they claim for their lumber are that it is carefully manufactured by experienced men with the most improved machinery; it is cut from first-growth trees, free from flaws, and by reason of the peculiar advantages they enjoy as producers they are enabled to furnish better article at same prices than is offered by any other firm in Baltimore. The attention of builders is especially called to the inducements offered by this firm, and correspondence and personal interviews solicited. The firm feel confident that the inducements held out to the public are sufficient to justify the belief that it will be to the advantage of all desiring to purchase to patronize them.

THE Rings of corruptionists who made Grant's administration so odious and damned his third term aspirations in 1876, are preparing to give the General a monster reception on his arrival at San Francisco from his tour around the world. The fact that these delectable gentry are engineering the Grant movement for a third term, will most effectually damn the General's prospect in the estimation of all honest men throughout the country. Barnum ought to get a picture for public exhibition, of the 25,000 of these rascals who are to cross the continent and welcome Grant home.

If any one says he has seen a just man in want of bread, I answer that it was in some place where there was no other just man.
