Select Poetry.

Hand in hand we tread life's path,
Whom time cannot part
From the soul's faithful love and devotion,
We've met once again
Mid life's tossing main,
As we mount and we sink with its motion,
Sometimes all is bright,
Then all is as night,
While the dark clouds rise and fly thro' the sky,
At times all is calm,
Then only alarm,
While the mad winds whistle fearlessly by.

Tho' nearing the grave,
Yet the weak and brave
Keep struggling, struggling ceaselessly forward,
For see far ahead
The squadron to lead
The Captain still moves onward and upward.
On Him let us gaze
Thro' the nights and days
Whilst on the fickle, treacherous deeps
Preserved by His grace,
We'll glide on apace,
For He guards us o'er, whose eye never sleeps.

Duty our watchword
And armed with His sword,
We must beat down the cunning foes that're board;
And high on the mast,
And thrown to the blast,
His banner still marks the heaven-ward road.

Ah, we cannot tell
How soon a long swell
Shall wash these frail barks rejoicing ashore,
Then Death overpassed
We'll know all at last
The rich treasures He has laid up in store.

ANON.

Miscellaneous.

Something that Grant has Never Said.

Neither during his electioneering journey around the world, nor since his arrival in California, has Gen. Grant said a single word that will stand in the way of his becoming a candidate for President, if the Republican Convention nominates him.

On the contrary, every declaration that he has made when approached on this subject has been shaped to help bring about his nomination. When the people have said that the office should seek the man, not the man the office, he has professed weariness of public life and an inclination to spend the rest of his days in the privacy of private citizen. When the people have said that two terms should be the measure of any man's ambition, he has replied, in effect, that it was at a sacrifice of his personal wishes that he held the office even as long as he did. And his friends have added for him that nothing short of a great national emergency, one which would appeal to his patriotism in the strongest manner, could overcome his reluctance to be again a candidate.

If the man is ready, the emergency will not be long in making.

There is no time since the 4th of March, 1872, when the simple announcement from Gen. Grant, "I shall not run again for President," would not have been worth hundreds of thousands of votes to the Republican party. Every possible influence has been brought to bear to wring that announcement from his lips. He has remained dumb.

Does any sensible man doubt that Gen. Grant is still a candidate for a third term?—N. Y. Sun.

FARM FOOD.

Where we make one load of manure now we ought to make at least three, says an exchange. These are some of the multitude of ways: The liquid waste is as valuable for manure as the solid portions, and you can even enrich the farms it is nearly all lost. It can be saved by storing a supply of muck or common loam under the stable where the oxen and cows and horses are to stand, and putting a fresh coating upon the pile often enough to keep it from foul odors; or better yet—for few men can be trusted to manage a barn basement—make a shed or pit for the compost, and convey the liquids away from the stable by suitable drains, which should be provided in every decent barn. One hundred loads of saturated earth will be worth to any farmer, one hundred and fifty dollars, putting it at the least. Put the absorbents where they will do the most good. One other thing, leaves of the forest are wasted when they should be saved. They make excellent bedding, and most excellent manure; and a few days given to transporting them from the woods where they are not wanted, to the farm, where they are, will pay.

Fattening Poultry.

No fowl over two years old should be kept in the poultry yard, except for some special reason. An extra good mother, or finely feathered bird that is desirable as a breeder, may be preserved until ten years old with advantage, or at least so long as she is serviceable. But ordinary hens and cocks should be fattened at the end of the second year for market. When there is a room or shed that can be closed, the fowls may be confined there. The floor should be covered with two or three inches of fine sawdust, dry earth, sifted coal ashes, or clean sand. The food should be given four times a day, and clean water be always put before the fowls. A dozen or more fowls may be put at once in this apartment, so that there may not be too many ready to sell at one time. The best food for rapid fattening, for producing well flavored flesh and rich fat, is buckwheat meal, mixed with sweet skimmed milk, into a thick mush. A teaspoonful of salt should be stirred in the food for a dozen fowls. Two weeks feeding is sufficient to fatten the fowls, when they should be shipped for sale without delay, and another lot put up for feeding. If the shed is kept dark and cool, as it should be, the fowls will fatten all the quicker for it.

A wealthy London lady recently gave a ball in that city at a cost of $20,000. The floral decorations were magnificent, and included blocks of ice into which the flowers were frozen.

"That was greedy of you Tommy, to eat your sister's share of cake. "You told me, ma, I was always to take her part," said Tommy.

"It's cool to-day," said a mother to her little son. "Yes, it's school five days out of the week," replied the embryonic pantographist.

MALTBY HOUSE,
BALTIMORE.

APRIL 1st, 1879.

Recognizing the fact that the relationship existing between the Counties of Maryland and the City of Baltimore is such that residents of the Counties have occasion to visit the City frequently during the year; in consideration of these facts and the liberal patronage extended the "Maltby" in the past, I deem it but a matter of justice that some discrimination should be made in their favor. I have therefore concluded to

HEADACHE NEURALGIA PILLS

CELERY "DR. C. W. BENSON, a practicing physician, at 106 N. Eutaw St., Baltimore, Md., (who has paid much attention to nervous diseases,) has discovered that Extract of Celery and Chamomile combined in a certain proportion invariably cures either bilious, dyspeptic, nervous or sick headache, neuralgia and nervousness. This is a triumph in medical chemistry, and sufferers all over the country are ordering my mail. He prepares it in pills, at 50c. per box. The Doctor is largely known and highly respected in Baltimore. Epis. Meth.

BALTIMORE, July 27, 1876.
Dr. C. W Benson's Celery and Chamomile Pills have cured my wife of sick and nervous headache of ten years standing; she had it every week or ten days, and suffered almost everything but death with it. We think these pills worth their weight in gold

This Association, organized by a number of business and professional men upon a purely mutual and cooperative basis, presents a plan, by which many of the benefits and advantages of Life Insurance may be secured to their families (in case of death) at less than half the cost of that expensive luxury.

It is, in no particular, a Life Insurance Company, but a strictly Mutual Beneficial Association, and presents the following explanation of its workings:

It is simply an association of individuals for the purpose of self-protection; in which, firstly, an expense fund is created by the payment of a fixed membership fee and annual dues; thus providing for the current expenses of the association; then upon the death of any member, all other members contribute towards the payment of the certificate of such deceased member an amount based upon the age of each at the time of their joining the association, and upon the amount of certificate held by each member.

Thus is protection secured to each member at actual cost, by his paying only an amount sufficient to cover the current expenses and losses of the association.

As an evidence of the popularity of plans we quote the following statement from the Baltimore Sun:

"The cooperative associations of Europe have made steady progress during the past year. Notwithstanding the general stagnation in business, their number has reached over 3,000, with more than 1,000,000 members, and the amount represented in certificates is over $600,000,000 Their accumulations in cash, securities and other resources are estimated at over $40,000 000."

CABINET MAKER
And Undertaker,

*W*ould announce to the public that I am occupying as *W*are Room my Dwelling House, next to the scene of the late fire. Having laid in new stock, I am now prepared to serve my customers and the public with anything in my line, and hope that none will think that because I have suffered so severely by the late disastrous fire, that I will not be able to serve them My house is large and roomy, and I shall keep it filled with Furniture of the best kind, which I shall sell at the lowest price, and defy competition in price and quality. I am very grateful to a generous public for their very liberal patronage in the past, and as I have to almost start anew in a business life, I beg that they will continue that generous patronage, that I may, to some extent, recover my almost ruinous loss by the late fire. I guarantee to always give satisfaction. Repairing promptly and neatly done. Picture frames always on hand and made to order.

UNDERTAKING

I have just bought and now have the finest Hearse on the peninsula south of Wilmington, and with the very best stock of Funeral material, and an experience in the business in this community of Thirty odd years, I am prepared to furnish funerals in the satisfaction of all who will intrust them to my care. My price shall be as low if not lower than any one else. Funerals will be attended by me in person. JOHN MASON.

P. S.—I shall rebuild my ware house in early spring and redouble my diligence in the furniture and undertaking business.
