TUESDAY, APRIL 19, 1881.

LOCAL RECORD.

Baltimore Grain Market.

BALTIMORE, Apr. 18.—Amount of grain in elevators: Wheat 578,000 bus.; corn 286,968 bus.; Southern wheat is not as good as it was last week; Fultz is quoted at $1.15@$1.17, longberry $1.26; No. 1 Md. Red $1.22; Corn was advanced on Wednesday and Thursday to 70 cents, caused by a number of large firms being short at the April settlement; but as soon as 2:30 P. M., was past on Thursday, it receded to its old price, and is now quoted at 55a56 cents. Oats 46 cents. Rye $1.15.

—Circus here next Friday.

—The weather has been more springlike for several days past.

—Cheap Books.—See Dodson & Goldsborough's advertisement.

—The State Temperance Alliance held a convention in Baltimore last week.

—Capt. Samuel R. Travers, Commander of the oyster police force, has resigned.

—The cold weather the early part of last week stopped the running of shad in the Choptank.

—The only true and genuine Scratch Pocket shirt is the "Triumphant," for sale by Ball, Shannahan & Grace.

—Mr. C. F. Eastman, of Miles River Neck, advertises some very cheap stock and farm machinery in to-day's STAR.

—Miss Alice Chesser, opposite Railroad Avenue, invites an inspection by the ladies of her well selected spring stock.

—When in doubt as to which is the best self-binder, order the Buckeye and all doubts will be soon removed. It is strong, simple, reliable, durable.

—Buy your sheet music and music books of Prof. Minnick. He has a large stock on hand and will give larger discounts than you can get in the cities.

—The Buckeye self-binder for the coming season is greatly simplified over last. They now use cord as well as wire, and they cannot be otherwise than very satisfactory.

—Which is the best and lightest draft chilled plow on the market? Try the Advance, and you will soon have a satisfactory answer to the question. Fully guaranteed in any soil.

—The Easter services in all the churches in town were attended by large congregations; the ladies in some instances turning out decked off in their new spring hats, which looked very pretty.

—The following citizens of this county have been drawn as jurors in the United States Court in Baltimore Mr. A. H. Barnett, dem.; Mr. Melville Sherwood, rep.; and Joseph Gray, negro.

—Jesse Hughes & Co. have just received a large and superior stock of cheap boots, shoes groceries, etc. Those in want of articles in these lines will do well to call and examine their goods before purchasing.

—The only recommendation we can give for the beauty and style of our cassimeres is the large number of them sold by us this season. Don't fail to see the last invoice of them just received by us this morning.—Ball, Shannahan & Grace.

—The Buckeye self-binder, cord or wire as preferred, is the simplest and least complicated of all self binders. It has fewer cog wheels, all are in full view, and it is by far the simplest and most reliable. The experience of last season was very satisfactory to all, and the coming season will find them much more satisfactory than before.

—A promising young horse has been named Dr. Tanner in hopes that it will make him fast.—Exchange. That might do for some horses; but we had rather take our chances on a package of M. B. Robert's Horse Powders, as they guarantee a healthy and vigorous constitution, which is essential for any horse's speed and endurance.

—There is no complicated machinery about the Buckeye self-binder. Strength and simplicity are admirably combined, and when put in the field it stays there with the most perfectly satisfactory results until the crop is saved. No machinist necessary to attend to them; any good hand is sufficient. See the agent, T. C. Nicols, and order one early so as to be sure of it.

—We understand that all the farmers' horses in this section that are given M. B. Robert's Horse Powders are able to plough from one-third to one-half more acres per day than those that are given any other, owing to their laxative, tonic, and purifying qualities. We advise all those that have not used them to do so. They are not adulterated with bran or cake meal and sold by the pound, but are put up in neat packages from pure drugs and sold for 25 cents by all druggists.

She went to the play of "Olivette,"
And near an open window she set,
And by so doing she there met
The fate of all who rashly get
So imprudent.

She saw a notice in the weekly STAR,
"To cure a cold—Use Sines' Syrup of Tar."
So she went to her druggist, and then and there
Invested with a single quarter
In the article.

Now if you only have occasion to see,
How earnest and vehement she be
When telling how quickly and entirely
She was cured of the cold, caught on said settee
'Twill surprise you.

It is presumed that barely one-fourth of purchasers of clothing are fair judges of their purchases, and it is therefore important to know where you can buy with confidence, that you will get your money's worth. C. N. Oehm & Son, 290 W. Pratt st., through to 55 Hanover street, have been in the business in Baltimore for over a quarter of a century; they manufacture every garment sold by them.—Their experience enables them to give satisfaction in quality, prices, material and workmanship, and no one in want of clothing should fail to call upon them. Batcheller & Doris' Great Inter-Ocean Show.

Already the excitement of the great show that is to exhibit here next Friday is manifest among our citizens. Everybody is making preparations to go, and little need be now said to ensure an overwhelming multitude in its colossal pavilions. This grand aggragation has the reputation of coming fully up to what they advertise, and many of the papers say they have done more than this. People are really enthusiastic over this gigantic organization and the splendid reputation they make wherever they go seems to fly ahead like the wind. The proprietors, Batcheller & Doris, are determined that their exhibition here shall surpass anything of the kind ever witnessed.

Masonic.

The new Masonic Temple on Washington street is to be dedicated on Wednesday, May 4th, next. We learn that from present indications there will be more of the ancient and honorable order of Free Masonry present than were ever before seen in Easton. The Grand Lodge will be here in full force accompanied by several subordinate lodges and commanderies. The big gun of Masonry, Albert Pike of Arkansas will be here and deliver an oration at Music Hall, to which all will be invited.

There will be a large excursion of Masons and their families on the steamer Samuel J. Pents. The Easton Masons are alive and making all the necessary preparations to give their guests a grand welcome. They will provide dinner at Machinery Hall, with the assistance of their Masonic lady friends. We hope to give fuller particulars next week. A large body of the Masonic fraternity in Easton will cause a large crowd doubtless, as Masonry is most favorable regarded throughout the world.

Miss Cole's Teeth—Fourteen of Them Traveling Around All Over Her Body.

A most remarkable story comes from Middletown, Orange county. A maiden lady at that place on the 5th of January, 1869, swallowed a new set of false teeth, which became separated from the rubber mould in which they had been set while masticating her food. Before she could eject the food from her mouth the teeth had gone down into her stomach.—The family physician was summoned, but all his efforts were unavailing. The teeth caused her no discomfort and in a short time the matter was entirely forgotten. A few days ago Miss Cole, the lady in question, felt a sharp pain near her left shoulder, and upon examing the spot found what appeared like a wen under the skin. With the aid of a penknife she extracted a hard substance, which proved to be a tooth. She was at a loss to know how the tooth came to be in such an unusual spot till she suddenly recollected that she had, twelve years ago, swallowed her set of teeth. During the past four days the lady has been cutting teeth all over her body and had at last accounts recovered twelve of the fourteen teeth that had formerly constituted her full set. She is anxiously awaiting the arrival of the other two. She has placed the teeth in a glass case and will keep them as mementoes.

Literary Note from Scribner & Co.

The policy of the conductors of Scribner's Monthly in having a number of short novels to accompany their historical serial of "Peter the Great" has proved a fortunate one. The publication of "Peter the Great" has materially increased the circulation of the magazine, and has resulted in a large sale of back numbers and volumes (there have been one thousand copies of last year's volumes sold in England alone during the past few months), and the printing of these bright novelettes has appealed to even a wider constituency, and has been an excellent balance to the heavier material of the history. Of those already published, Mrs. Schayer's "Tiger-Lily" at once established her reputation as a writer of capital short stories, while nothing of Mrs. Burnett's yet issued has been more widely read and enjoyed than "A Fair Barbarian." In May begins Mr. Cable's "Madame Delphine." The author af "The Grandissimes" has already scored so great a success as a writer of short stories and as a novelist that there can be but little doubt as to the quality of "Madame Delphine." Every one knows Mr. Howells, and the announcement that he, too, will contribute a novelette, to begin in the June Scribner, with the taking title of "A Fearful Responsibility," has been received with not a little satisfaction by his large constituency of readers. Later there will be printed a short serial by H. H. Boyesen, and another by the author of "An Earnest Trifler," whose long silence since her first success augurs well for the new story. It is expected that these last two will begin in the "Midsummer" Scribner.

"A Nameless Nobleman," is the title of the first volume of the "Round-Robin" Series of anonymous novels, which is to contain works of prominent American writers. This initial story is one of the most picturesque and thrilling of the productions of our recent literature, and will win thousands of delighted readers. The tendency of the best novel writers of late years has been towards special analytical studies of society and manners, with slight plots and little incident. The nameless author of "A Nameless Nobleman," however, while outlining the characters of the story with delicate precision and consummate art, has given them free life and movement in a most ingenious and complicated plot, equally removed from sensationalism and dulness. The scenes are lain in Paris and Provence, Quebec and New England, and the actors are French nobles and Puritan rustics, moving in the most quaint and picturesque years of the colonial era.

Without obtrusive definition or ostentatious analysis, the chief characters—the wily, but well-meaning, abbe, the gallant young baron, the lovely Valerie, the sweet Puritan maiden—are clearly indicated, and are combined in situations full of intensity and pathos. The book is full of charming description, stirring dialogues, and dramatic situations, and the veteran reader of romances will not fail to guess the denouement. The interest will not be diminished when it is known that the plot is founded on the actual traditions of an honorable family in the Old Colony of Massachusetts,—a region where auspicious legends are handed down for centuries, with religious care.

The binding of the "Round-Robin" series is very quaint and pretty, and seems to promise the originality and versatility of contents which the initial volume certainly shows, and which we hope may be continued through the subsequent issues. The second volume, "A Lesson in Love," is now in press. The publishers are James R. Osgood & Co., of Boston; and the price is one dollar per volume. We commend the series to our Easton book sellers.

"Of course no one denies that the States have rights, reserved or conceded, which the national government must respect, and which will be a palpable violation of the fundamental compact, the Constitution."

The above is an extract from the communication of "A Republican" printed in the Ledger of Thursday week. The correspondent writes like a lawyer, and I presume when he calls the Federal Constitution the "fundamental compact," he understands the meaning of the term and intends to convey to the reader all that the word implies. But is it not a strange word for an extreme nationalist to use, who denies the rights of the States as contended for by Democrats? Justice Story, in his work on the Constitution, most positively denies that the Federal Constitution is a "compact," and Daniel Webster, the "expounder of the Constitution," in his great speech in the U. S. Senate in 1833, also denied emphatically that the Constitution was a "compact." Both these great jurists understood the meaning of the term "fundamental compact," and argued expressly that, "if the Constitution be a compact, then the States had a right to secede." This doctrine was pushed so far by Mr. Webster, that he denied that the States "acceded to the Constitution." "When it is granted," says he, "that the people of the States acceded to the Union, it may be more plausibly argued that they may secede from it." And further he says, "if in adopting the Constitution, nothing more was done but acceding to a compact, nothing would seem necessary, in order to break it, but to secede from the same compact." Mr. Justice Story says, "the obvious deductions which may be, and, indeed, have been, drawn from considering the Constitution a compact between the States, are that it operates as a mere treaty or convention between them, and has an obligatory force no longer than suits its pleasure or its consent continues." Article II. of the Articles of Confederation expressly declared that "each State" of the Union formed by them shall "retain its Sovereignty, Freedom, and Independence," and, therefore, each State was sovereign, free, and independent when the Constitution of 1787, the "fundamental compact," was formed. Where is it stipulated in the present Constitution, the new "Articles of Union" as it was called in 1787, that the States, or either of them, surrendered to the Union their sovereignty, freedom or independence? On the contrary, the Constitution expressly declares that all the powers not delegated by the States to the Federal Union are reserved to the States or to the people.

If the Federal Constitution is a "compact," as "A Republican" claims, and no doubt he conscientiously believes it is a compact, then it follows, as shown by Webster and Story, that States' Rights are not a myth, but a stern reality, which all departments of the Government should respect, in fact that they are the very palladium of our freedom. All jurists agree that it the Federal Union is a "compact," the Democratic States' Rights interpretation of the Constitution is correct. Webster, Story, Motley and all of the Federal writers concede this, and now that "A Republican," after being enlightened by Major Stewart's letter on States' Rights, proclaims the Constitution to be "the fundamental compact," there should be an end of controversy. In calling the Constitution a "compact," he concedes all that Thomas Jefferson, or even John C. Calhoun ever claimed of State sovereignty. If the Federal Union is "a compact," then John C. Calhoun, Robert Young Hayne, Gen Robert E. Lee, Jefferson Davis and "A Republican" are right, and Webster, Story, Motley and Garfield are wrong, for the whole controversy, including the doctrine of nullification and secession has always turned upon this word "compact." That the Federal Union is a "compact," was believed and declared by Washington, Madison, Hamilton, Franklin, Adams, Jay, Wilson, Morris, Jefferson, Marshall, Rawle, and all the great statesmen of 1787, who advised the States to "accede" to it, and the doctrine was never denied until about the year 1833, when Judge Story wrote his commentaries on the Constitution, and Daniel Webster made his great speech in the Senate, propounding various vicious and unsound doctrines, which he unconditionally repudiated in 1850.

COUNTY COMMISSIONERS.

The County Commissioners were in session on Tuesday, and were engaged in examining and passing accounts. A petition was presented to the Board praying that the piece of road running from the Bayside road to Jas. E. McDaniel's gate, be received and worked as a county road; laid over for future consideration. Several bids were received from contractors for building the new jail, but none of them were opened. Bills to the amount of $387.36 were paid. The Board adjourned to meet again on Wednesday morning.

The Board met on Wednesday, agreeably to adjournment, to open and examine the bids for building the new jail, but for prudential reasons, the amounts of the respective bids are not made public; all of them, however, exceeded the amount of the special appropriation; the contract was not given out. The Board had a consultation with Mr. Dixon, the architect, respecting the new building, and also consulted their counsel, Gov. Thomas, as to their powers to exceed the appropriation.—Without reaching a conclusion the Board adjourned.

ORPHAN'S COURT.

The Orphan's Court met on Tuesday. Gov. Thomas, counsel of Col. R. C. Hollyday, appeared before the Court, and asked permission to withdraw the protest and notice of caveat filed on Tuesday week in the matter of Thomas R. Hollyday's will. The request was granted and the papers withdrawn. Robert H. Jump, guardian to Robert H. Jump, Jr., passed his 12th account. P. T. Hambleton, guardian of Thomas Bridges, deceased, pretented his 2nd and final account; laid over. James E. McDaniel and Mary F. Lowe, admr of John H. Lowe, presented an additional account of debts sperate, which were examined and passed.

The Court met again on Thursday. The last will and testament of Thomas R. Hollyday was admitted to probate, and letters testamentary were granted to the executor, Henry Hollyday, who filed the required bond.—Wm. E Shannahan was appointed guardian of his brother S. H. Shannahan, and filed his bond, after which the Court adjourned.

Carlyle's Reminiscences.

"By special arrangement" with the American public, the Literary Revolution will issue immediately a beautiful Acme edition, elegant cloth binding, of the "Reminiscences of Thomas Carlyle," price 30 cents, postage 6 cents, and it can be had of the nearly 2,000 booksellers who are agents of the Literary Revolution in all parts of the United States.

Thomas Carlyle, more than any other man of the nineteenth century, taught the American public, and people of good sense throughthe world, to despise pretense and humbug, whether exhibited by monarch or menial—Sensible people who want a good book at an honest price will buy it where they find it. There is in this country no law which gives to a foreign author, as it gives to an American, the right of the monopoly of the publication of his book. If publishers choose to pay a foreign author anything, they can do it only as a "donation," because he can give them in return no protection from competition. Readers have the privilege of making such donation, if they choose to do so without paying it to the publishers and trusting to the possibility of their paying it to the author for them. There is no donation included in the price above named. Readers who want to combine a possible donation, and a positive price, can get an edition of this same book from other publishers at from two to eight times the price.
