Farmers, Attention!

Why feed your livestock at a loss when you can feed feed them to a profit by feeding Avalon Farms Tonics and Conditioners?

Horse Tone

is antagonistic to worms. It corrects digestive ailments. It improves the Endurance, Wind and Appetite through its general tonic action and "puts the horse on its mettle." Prepares them for the spring work.

Cow Tone

makes more milk with the same feed. For Big Milk Production the cow must be thrifty, vigorous and alive with energy. She must be in good shape, eating normally and with every organ doing its work properly. Avalon Farms Cow Tonic makes producers from the cows that are loafing on the job, eating good feed and giving mighty little butter fat in return. It makes big creamy buckets of milk instead of a few quarts of thin, blue liquid. It is a tonic, not a stimulant.

Avalon Farms Hog Tone

Makes More Fat On Less Food.

HOG TONE is an appetizer, tonic, conditioner and worm eradicator for hogs only. Worms probably cause more loss to hog raisers than cholera. Because Hog Tone aids digestion so remarkably and keeps hogs so free from worms, it gives them tremendous appetites, puts vim and vitality into them, fills them full of pep, makes them thrive and put on firm, clean flesh at an astonishing rate.

PARTY BY M. AND MRS. E. J. HAINES, OF MT. AIRY

A very enjoyable party was given at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Edward J. Haines, on Thursday evening, February 21st, in honor of their son Claude.

About 7 o'clock the guests began to arrive and they all spent a very pleasant evening playing social games of all kinds. While the young folks played old fashion party plays, Mrs. Walter Clary gave some very fine selections on the organ until about 11 o'clock when refreshments were served to which all did ample justice.

Later they all departed, thanking Mr. and Mrs. Haines for the pleasant evening they all spent.

Those present were Messrs. and Mesdames Edward J. Haines, Augustus Fleming, Walter Clary, Levi Haines, Earl Wright, and Truman Haines; Misses Bessie Hood, Julia Barnes, Lillian Grimes, Minnie Pickett, Olive Clary, Edna Pickett, Emma Grimes, Ethel Wright, Evelyn Condon, Louise Franklin, Dorothy Wright, Mary and Elsie Haines, and Messrs. Claude Haines, Robert Gorsuch Howard Smith, Aubrey Buchman, Shirley Smith, Alton Haines, Sherman Barnes, Walter Wright, Roland Babylon, Arthur Haines, Norman Barnes, Albin Hood, Walter Fleming, Roy Wright, Wilbur Fleming, John Welsh, Wilbur Pickett, Wheeler Wilson, Gilbert Burgue, of Baltimore, Charles Grimes, Otha Fleming, Hershel Pickett, Roby Fleming, Levi Pickett and Melvin Haines.

It is said that many families are dominated by their children, but the kids promise that they will rule their parents gently.

MELROSE

Sometimes the best of predictions will go amiss. Last summer and fall it was predicted that public sales in the spring would be very numerous. There are no greater number than usual, and not as many near at home sales as we had last year.

One of our so-called weather prophets predicted there could not be a heavy fall of snow during full moon. After the big snow on the day of full moon was in the evening, this old saying will seem about as truthful as the ground-hog story.

After a long silence, we heard from our fellow-townsman, Harry K. Shaffer, who migrated to the middle west ealry last spring. He says the weather at 12 to 15 below zero since January 1st, makes the Western people keep moving to keep from freezing. He says that the street car men have been on a general strike since February 3rd, for higher fares, but the mayor will not grant this request. The traveling public is taken care of by a motorized system to overcome the stock company with headquarters on Wall street, New York City. Both sides are determined to win.

On Friday evening of last week while coasting, Ruth, the 12-year-old daughter of Mr. Jacob Weaver, of near Manchester, had the misfortune to break her arm at three places. Dr. J. F. B. Weaver, of Manchester reduced the severe fractures, making the injured girl as comfortable as possible.

There was an enthusiastic conference meeting of the Manchester district Sunday School Association held in the Emanuel Lutheran Church on Saturday afternoon. Seven out of nine of our district Sunday schools were represented.

A friend informed your correspondent that nearly 300 people have voiced their sentiments by voting for the macadam road from our state highway through Maple Grove to connect with Baltimore county. This must be a thickly settled country or there would not be so many people who want and need such an improvement.

We were shown quite a lengthy list of names of the best citizens of Manchester district, petitioning the County Commissioners to grant them a much needed macadam road to Lineboro from our state highway. A man who is interested and who seems to know something about it, declares that in the next five years we will see all the much traveled roads in this part of the county will be macadamized.

Mr. and Mrs. David L. Frock and son William A., of Bachman's Valley, spent Sunday afternoon as the guests of Mr. and Mrs. J. Albert Zepp and family.

Considerable sympathy is felt for Horatio Leese, who was so severely injured by a falling tree last week. We are pleased to learn that he is improving as rapidly as can be expected.

GAMBER

Sunday school at Providence M. P. Church Sunday morning at 9:30 A. M. Preaching at 10:30 A. M. C. E. service at 7:30 P. M. at the homes of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Stocksdale and Mr. and Mrs. Clinton Shipley. Topic: "In His Step's, III. What Jesus said about Happiness found"—Matt. 5: 1-12.

Mrs. Sadie Nelson, of Baltimore, spent from Friday until Monday with her brother and sister-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Clinton Shipley.

The C. E. Society of Providence M. P. Church will give a play on March 8, entitled "Looking for Mary Jane," in the Jr. O. U. A. M. hall, Gamber. All come help make it a success.

The Ladies' Aid Society met at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Francis Hoff, February 21, with a fairly good attendance out owing to the bad roads. Dues collected amounting to $13.85. The next meeting will be at the home of the president, Mrs. Lewis Miller's.

The oyster supper which was held February 23, was quite a success. Net proceeds $68.35.

The C. E. business meeting will be at the home of Mr. Walter Stocksdale, March 7.

A large crowd of Mr. and Mrs. J. Wm. Barnes' friends gave them a delightful supprise party, February 26. All had a good time.

Mrs. Jabez N. Barnes is spending some time with her daughter, Mrs. Lee F. Ward, of Hagerstown.

NORTHERN CARROLL

We are having some real winter weather.

Mr. and Mrs. George L. Dutterer and daughter Ruth, Lester Shoemaker and bride spent Sunday with Mr. Shoemaker's parents near Littlestown.

A real old time rattle band was out on Saturday evening to see the bride and groom.

A very pleasant evening was spent at the home of George Heltebridle on Friday evening, when forty six neighbors and friends gave Mrs. H. a surprise, it being her 34th birthday. The occasion was a complete surprise, she not knowing anything of it until the alarm was given by the dog. The evening was spent by playing games and with music until a late hour when refreshments were served.

A STORY THAT HAS NO MORAL

By BELLE WITKIN

(©, 1924, by McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

HE WAS twenty-one years old, and therefore, a man. Herbert never forgot it—except for one evening—so why should anyone else? Herbert was in love. She was the dearest, the most beautiful, the most adorable little girl.

Grace, the other girl—who was not in any sense the "other woman"—was a friend to both of them. The girl always asked her advice about such grave matters as the right shade of face powder to use and whether one should continue in bobbed hair or let it grow long again, and she invariably did the opposite thing, which was what Grace had counted on in the first place.

As for Lita, she was purely and simply what is known as a "gold digger." She managed to conceal it from Herbert with an ingenuity that aroused admiration in Grace. Grace was sorry for Herbert.

Confidences became the usual thing for Grace. She heard them from both sides—at all times and seasons.

Herbert was studying hard at Tech, winning honors and devising ways and means of getting home for week-end trips. He paused often to wonder why Lita didn't answer his every letter (he wrote only once a day). He wrote sometimes to Grace, too. These letters were all of Lita. Lita had said this, that and the other thing; Lita didn't write regularly; why didn't she? Lita denied flirting outrageously with Johnny West; was it really true? Herb was human if he was twenty-one; he would be down for the next week-end; she was such a good sport to listen to all his ravings; but, seriously hadn't she noticed a change in Lita these last few weeks?

Lita finally disclosed the fact that she couldn't waste time on a practically penniless college student. Mother said she shouldn't, and Lita made it a point always to obey Mother (when Mother's orders coincided with her own desires).

Herbert was overworked and heart sick—and acquired indigestion. He was sent home to recuperate and came, as was natural (though this he did not know) to Grace. The whole, bitter story came out and the man of twenty-one broke down entirely and sobbed like the boy of twenty-one he really was.

It hurts to see a man's tears—hurts deeply. When the man is the Man of all Others (Grace was only twenty herself) it is harder. Consider, then, when the Man whose coming brings all the light of the world, sobs brokenly for another. . . .

But Grace was a girl, and the female of the species must never show a hurt of this kind; it isn't considered good form. So she found strength to comfort the hurt boy, to soothe the tortured mind with words of new and priceless wisdom. Herbert, leaving, knew Grace to be an angel of goodness to bother with him; he must have made a fool, a perfect child, of himself. Grace smiled and sent him home to get the first peaceful sleep he had enjoyed for weeks. After he had left she walked the floor for hours.

The next day came, in spite of the fact that Herbert's heart was broken and Grace miserable. Days have a way of doing that. Grace spent a wretched morning, singing occasionally in the attempt to convince herself that everything would turn out beautifully, and now and then laughing hysterically at herself for being so very foolish.

There came a ring at the doorbell and Herbert walked in. He came straight to Grace, forgetting his usual greeting to Bolo, Grace's Belgian Shepherd. (Not that they weren't on speaking terms, but Herbert was plainly preoccupied.) Bolo, however, being a philosophical canine, didn't take it to heart. He very calmly settled down on the rug for a nap.

Herbert, it seemed, had done Lita a great injustice. She really cared a lot about him (she told him so herself in an early morning note), it was her mother who had raised objections. (Herbert was already a Phi Beta Kappa man, and Phi Beta Kappa were all the rage just now. This, Lita kept to herself.)

Herbert was a different being from the boy who had come to her yesterday. The world was a glorious place and he realized now what a child he had been. He was immensely grateful to Grace and so sorry to have troubled her. She was an awfully good sport and all that. Would she mind if he left her now? He really hadn't a moment to spare, having promised to call for Lita—they were going for a walk.

Grace smiled and told him to run along. Of course she didn't mind! No doubt, it was to prove that she didn't mind that she ran to her room and sobbed herself into a very painful headache, and in the evening quarreled most unreasonably with a devoted but bewildered young man (whom she married when she had reached the age when she could look back and smile at this experience without forgetting the hurt of it).

Herbert, some years later, married Lita—who didn't in the least deserve it. She likes to spend the fortune that Herbert, being a brilliant young man, is accumulating. She leads her social set, plays a good game of bridge, and thinks she loves Herbert, who is perfectly happy.

This story has no moral and doesn't prove a thing.

MANCHESTER

Our town and community have had quite a number of entertainments, suppers etc., during the winter season, all with a good attendance and much enjoyed, but Lebanon Lodge No. 175 A. F. & A. M. came to the front on Friday evening 23rd with its annual "Ladies' Night" entertainment and festivity that was A1 in every detail and brought out the membership in general with their families and friends that were entertained by the following program: Saxaphone saxatenette; address, Master Blaine Murray; saxaphone solo, Martin Loats, Baltimore; recitation, Isabel Wentz; male quartette; vocal duet, Miss Edna LaMotte and Mrs. Treva Wink; vocal solo, Mr. Greider; address, Prof. Unger, Westminster; vocal solo, Mrs. Nagle; trombone solo, Prof. H. M. Loats; saxaphone sextette; male quartette, and solo, Mrs. Eyster, of Baltimore, after which they all were dismissed to enjoy the social circle, during which they were taken to the banquet room to enjoy the festive feature of the occasion, consisting of turkey with all the first class belongings and ice cream and strawberries for desert.

An efficiency conference of Manchester District Sunday School convention was held in the Lutheran church on Saturday the 16th at 2:30. The meeting was opened with prayer by Rev. J. W. Englar, President of the Carroll County Association, after which Mr. George Mather gave a very interesting and helpful talk on the Sunday school work, stressing that of the districts. The following program was passed upon for the year: 1, Cradle Roll in each school; 2, Home Department of 25% in each school; 3, 10% gain in membership; 4, contribution of 5c per member; 5, every school represented at county convention; 6, two district meetings each year; 7, community teachers' training class, and 8, workers conference

Pochahontas Tribe No. 150 I. O. R. M. made themselves a record on the 22nd by presenting a fine flag 5x8 to our schools. They had intended having a fine display upon the occasion that was cut short by the snow and frigid weather. They met in their lodge room where they were joined by members of Daniel & Jacob Lodge No. 23 I. O. O. F. by invitation and, in full regalia, marched to the school house where they were seated. At 3 P. M. Prof. Foglesanger announced the singing of the "Star Spangled Banner," in which the audience joined, followed by prayer by W. L. F. Burgoon. Margaret Stoffle gave a reading. A high school class gave a play "A truth for a day." The flag was then brought to the front and presented by Ernest Brilhart in behalf of the lodge and responded to by the principal for the schools. Singing, "America," all saluting. Then all went to the front yard where it was thrown to the breeze from a tall staff saluted by all. Then brought back to half mast.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Shower motored to Harrisburg on Tuesday to the home of their parents, Mr. and Mrs. Nelson Warehime, and joined in celebrating the birthday of Mrs. W. We extend our congratulations and best wishes to "Tudy" hoping she may enjoy many more anniversary occasions.

Mr. Zest Craudall and Miss Clara Von Ketzenhammer, of Philadelphia, motored here and were week-end visitors of Mr. H. A. Myers and daughter Alcorn on York street.

Martin Loats, of Baltimore, spent the holiday with his parents Mr. and Mrs. H. M. Loats.

Rev. T. F. Herman D. D., of Lancaster, was here and preached at Lineboro in the morning and here at evening on Sunday last.

Immanuel Lutheran Sunday school will hold a chicken and biscuit supper in the social hall Saturday, March 1st, from 4:30 P. M. Tickets 35c.

PLEASANT GROVE AND REESE

Sunday school at 9:30 and preaching following by the pastor. Everybody welcome.

Quarterly conference this Saturday evening at the parsonage. All members are urged to be present at this meeting. Dr. Gillum will be present and this will be last meeting of this conference year.

Mrs. Maurice Green attended the funeral of her sister, Mrs. Edith Bowersox, of Taneytown last Wednesday.

Miss Christina Wolf, of Ogg Summit, spent the week-end with Misses Stella and Myrtle Green.

Mrs. Theodore Shipley was in Baltimore, this week to call on her daughter, Mrs. McMorris, who has been sick for a long time and improves very slowly. She is now with her sister, Mrs. J. A. Magee.

Mrs. Butler Gorsuch and Mrs. Blanche Magee have returned to their homes after a ten day visit to Mrs. Grace Weyrich, at Windsor Hills, Baltimore, and other friends in the city.

Mr. and Mrs. William F. Eckenrode, of Baltimore, were visitors at the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Eckenrode, last week.

Dispatches from Washington indicate that the politicians are indulging in much oily talk.
