Agricultural.

Breaking Corn Roots.

It is a common belief among farmers that young growing corn plants are greatly injured in disturbing or breaking the roots by horse cultivation between the rows, and that surface harrowing is therefore the only admissible kind of culture that should be given to the crop. A different view (under proper restrictions) is taken by Dr. E. L. Sturtevant in his lecture of "Interesting Things." He tested, in the first place, the theory of root-pruning on young plants by growing them in water, and in soil in pots. When the new roots were thrown out, such as grew in the water were shortened with a pair of scissors, and those in the soil with a sharp knife. The result in nearly every instance was the emission of new and more numerous fibres, giving a much larger root surface than unpruned plants. The treatment was then tried on young plants of cord. "In one case," says Dr. Sturtevant, "to show the success we met, we obtained twenty-three ears of corn from one kernel planted." In another trial, "two plants, grown from one kernel of corn in either case, and root-pruned, bore each fourteen ears, which contained 2,881 and 2,887 kernels, respectively. Another, plant treated likewise, furnished twenty ears, containing 2,868 kernels. The grain was large and plump, more so than in other hills not pruned." These results are so extraordinary, that farmers will prefer to try for themselves—an experiment easily performed." The theory is worthy of thorough testing, as the young corn plants may be easily root-pruned by means of subsoil cultivators, and more efficiently if the corn is planted in hills, so as to be worked both ways, instead of in drills.

Dr. Sturtevant's theory is that breaking or cutting the roots give a check to the growth of the plant, and thus tends to the production of hard stalk of small leaf. Although he does not say so, we suppose he farther holds that the immediate or subsequent increase of the root surface, gives an increased development to the leaf, and that the growth of the plant is thereby hastened. While root-pruning may not be of much use, it is merely with the view that this work must be judiciously performed, so as to produce benefit instead of injury. If too heavily or too frequently pruned, the plants might be too much checked.—Country Gentleman.

Saddle Horses

There is an increasing demand of late for good saddle horses, and many of the fairs take heed and paying much more attention than formerly to this class. The Chicago fair especially is giving great prominence to saddle horses in its premium list, which may be taken as something of an index of the drift of popular demand.

The gaits that especially commend a horse for use in the saddle are the walk, the fox-trot, the single foot, and the rack. The walk is a gait understood by everybody; but everybody does not understand that a good saddle horse ought to be able to walk at the rate of five miles an hour. The fox-trot is faster than the square walk, and the horse will usually take a few steps at this gait when changing from a brisk walk to a trot. It may be fully trotted to meet horses by urging them slightly beyond their ordinary walking speed, and, when they strike the fox-trot step, holding them to it. They will soon learn to like it, and it is one of the easiest of gaits for both horse and rider.

The single-foot differs somewhat from the fox trot, and has been described as exactly intermediate between the true trot and the true pace. Each foot appears to move independently of the other, with a sort of pit-a-pat, one at-a-time motion, and it is a much faster gait than the fox-trot.

The rack is very nearly allied to the true pacing gait, the difference being that in the latter the hind foot keeps exact time with the fore foot of the same side, making it what has been called a literal or one-side-at-a-time motion, while in the former the hind foot touches the ground slightly in advance of the fore foot on the same side. The rack is not so fast gait as the trot or pace, but is very destructive gait in a saddle horse. In addition, the perfect saddle horse should be able to trot, pace and gallop, and should be quick, nervous, and elastic in all his motions, without a particle of dullness or sluggishness in his nature. His mouth should be sensitive, and he should respond instantly to the slightest motion of the rider. A poor and clumsy rider, however, will soon spoil the best-trained saddle horse in the world, and such a person should never be permitted to mount a horse that is exceptionably valuable for that purpose.—Live Stock Journal.

The Tides

The subject of the tides has been one of interest to mariners and landsmen for a long time. A curious fact, as stated, it is always ebb tide at Cape Henry at noon rising or setting; it is always high tide at New Point Comfort at noon rising or setting; it is always low tide at Hooper's Straits at noon rising or setting, and high tide at Sandy Point at the same time, and flood tide at all points above Sandy Point when the moon rises or sets. A vessel entering the capes with a strong, fair wind at the beginning of the flood tide may carry the same tide to Baltimore. But a vessel leaving Baltimore for the capes will encounter three flood tides on her way, no matter how fast she may sail, and it may be she will have to contend against several more if she has a head wind. Every flood tide that enters the Chesapeake bay goes to the head of every tidewater stream or tributary of the bay, while the same ebb tide does not run more than sixty miles, and sometimes a great deal less, so that there are always two ebb tides and two flood tides in the Chesapeake bay at the same time, and sometimes three of one or the other. The flood tide runs about six hours, the ebb runs a little longer, so that twelve hours and forty minutes are required for a flood and ebb tide to pass the same point. It is always flood tide in the Wicomico river on the morning of Easter, and the same at Whitsuntide.

The best wash that we ever heard of is made as follows: For one barrel of color wash—Half a bushel of white lime, 3 pecks hydraulic cement, 10 pounds umber, 10 pounds ocher, 1 pound Venetian red, quarter pound lampblack. Slake the lime; put the lampblack with vinegar; mix well together, and the cement, and fill the barrel with water. Let it stand twelve hours before using, and stir frequently while putting it on. This is not white, but of a slight stone color, without the unpleasant glare of white. The color may be changed by adding more or less of the colors named, or other colors. The wash covers well, wears on one coat, and is superior to anything known, excepting oil or paint. We have known a rough board barn washed with this look well for five years, and even longer without renewing. The cement hardens, but on a rough surface will not scale.

One shower of rain will ruin a new hat.

What Women Say at Weddings.

The following remarks have mostly been said time after time at all our leading weddings, and will be said again and again on every such occasion:

Here she comes!
Pretty, isn't she?
Who made her dress?
Is it satin, silk or a tin?
Is her veil real lace?
She's as white as the wall!
Wonder how much he's worth?
Did he give her those diamonds?
He's scared to death!
Isn't she the cool piece?
But ain't a horrid shape!
Just her mother's double!
Aren't the bridesmaids homely?
That's a handsome usher!
Hasn't she a cute little hand?
Wonder what number her gloves are?
They say her shoes are fives.
If his hair isn't parted in the middle!
Wonder what on earth she married him for?
For his money, of course!
Isn't he handsome?
He's as homely as a hedge-hog!
He looks like a circus clown!
No, he's like a dancing-master!
Good enough for her, anyway.
She was always a stuck-up thing.
She'll be worse than ever, now.
She jilted Sam Somebody, didn't she?
No, he never asked her.
He's left town, anyway.
There, the ceremony has begun.
Isn't he awkward?
White as his collar!
Why don't they hurry up?
Did she say she would "Obey?"
What a precious fool!
There, they are married!
Doesn't she look happy?
Pity if she wouldn't!
(Wish I were in her place!)
What a handsome couple!
She was always a sweet little thing.
How gracefully she walks!
Dear me, what airs she puts on!
Wouldn't be in her place for a farm!
I bet the jewels were hired.
Well, she's of her father's hands at last!
Doesn't she cling tightly to him, though!
She has a mortgage on him now.
Hope they'll be happy.
They say she's awful smart.
Too smart for him by a jugful.
There! they are getting in the carriage!
That magnificent dress will be squashed!
The way she does look at him!
I'll bet she worships him!
Worship be hanged! she's only making believe!
It's kind o' nice to get married isn't it?
No, it's a dreadful bore.
Wasn't it a stupid wedding?
What dowdy dresses!
I'll never go to another!
I'm just suffocated!
Tired to death.
Give it to her!
Oh, dear!

Trying on the Bonnet.

A New Haven gentleman, whose business keeps him up late at nights, was persuaded to do a millinery errand for his wife the other night, and as a result stumbled up the front stairs about two o'clock in the morning with a bran new bonnet held carefully under his arm in a tissue paper. As soon as he turned on the gas his better half rubbed open her eyes and drowsily inquired:

"You—forgot my—bonnet, didn't—you?"

"No, I didn't. Here's the business."

"Oh, is it?" and the woman sprang up and ripped the wrappings off in a jiffy, and slipping her nightcap into the corner, adjusted the new purchase carefully on her head. "How do you like it? It's becoming, isn't it?"

"Madam," responded the husband, "the bonnet certainly is becoming, but somehow the remainder of your costume don't jibe. Your dress, if I may call it such, has too much Hamburg edging and not enough overskirt. I think you need a little knife-pleating and a couple of extra ruffles."

"Oh, you horrid—"

"And then, too, that bonnet has too much color for the rest of the tout ensemble, if I may borrow from the French."

"You hateful; I'll throw the thing out of the window if you don't tell me just how it looks—so there."

"That's what I'm trying to do, my dear. The bonnet looks immense. In your present costume you couldn't fail to make a hit on the street, and just as like as not land in the police station. I should think some milliner had hired the statue of Queen Zenobia for a dummy to show off her goods."

"Dummy, dummy, did you say? I will let you know I'm no dummy," and she sat on the edge of the bed and lectured, and lectured, and lectured, until the deluded man had been hummed to sleep by the monotony of her voice. But she didn't take that bonnet off. She went and rigged herself up in the best duds she had, and when he awoke in the morning she was promenading about the room, trying the effect by posing in attitudes before the mirror.

THE GOLDEN SHEAF.

A Fertilizer specially adapted to the Soil of the Eastern Shore of Maryland.

$20 PER TON.

Sold at a very small profit on cost of production and clear of Agents' commissions.

THE COMPOSITION NO SECRET.

Made Without Sand or Dirt.

FOR SALE BY

THE OXFORD GUANO CO., Oxford, Md.
W. H. SETH, Secretary.

The attention of Farmers who desire to secure a good fertilizer at a reasonable price, is respectfully called to the above named brand.

The object of the manufacturers has been to originate a compound of plant foods directly adapted to the soil of the Eastern Shore of Maryland, and to fix the price therefor at the lowest possible figures; cutting off all agents fees of $5 and $6 per ton and adding to the actual cost only a very small profit. We think this fertilizer has as much intrinsic value as most of the high price manures, and feel confident that farmers who may think proper to use it will say, that in its effects upon the soil, it will equal them.

The analysis, as made by Prof. G. A. Liebig, shows it to contain:—

Ammonia, from	.75 to 1.25	per cent.
Phosphoric Lime, from	5.00 to 7.00	"
Lime	23.10	"
Carbonic Acid	26.07	"

The lime and carbon, which are essential to plant growth, are obtained from oyster shells ground to powder, instead of being burnt. This combination not only dispenses with the necessity for dirt or sand to hold the chemicals, but is a more valuable assistant to their action.

We are also manufacturing ground lime, which we propose to put upon the market at a low price. aug30-6m

HELP Yourselves by making money when a golden chance is offered, thereby always keeping poverty from your door. Those who always take advantage of the good chances for making money that are offered, generally become wealthy, while those who do not improve such chances remain in poverty. We want many men, women, boys and girls to work for us right in their own localities. The business will pay more than ten times ordinary wages. We furnish an expensive outfit and all that you need, free. No one who engages fails to make money very rapidly. You can devote your whole time to the work, or only your spare moments. Full information and all that is needed sent free. Address STINSON & Co., Portland, Maine.

Bear in mind that we keep in stock all the leading Medicines of the day at HENRY'S Drug Store.

To the Farmers.

THE TALBOT COUNTY PAPER MILLS COMPANY will now contract for WHITE STRAW, to be delivered at a convenient time hereafter. A little more care in stacking and ricking, will insure so much better keeping as to enable farmers to spare at least half of their straw, the cash for which would nearly pay for their phosphates.
