—The Easton Bond bill has passed both houses of the legislature, and will become a law as soon as it receives the signature of the Governor.

—The Estey Organ Company has done well in placing the Agency for their instruments in the hands of Prof. Minnick & Son. Call and see them.

—Dr. Joseph Pancoast, the distinguished Philadelphia surgeon and Professor of Anatomy in Jefferson Medical College, died last week, aged 77 years.

—Hon. George W. Covington, M. C., will please accept the thanks of the STAR for a copy of "The Oyster Industry" prepared by Mr. Ernest Ingersoll,—from the Tenth Census of the United States.

—The article by Washington Gladden on "The Increase of Divorce," in the January Century, has attracted wide interest and discussion in England. The London Daily News devotes a column to it.

—For a severe and aggravated cough accompanied by a sore chest, I have used Dr. Bull's Cough Syrup with the most satisfactory results, obtaining as I did speedy relief. JOHN GLOVER, Portsmouth, Va.

—Mr. Matthews, the road contractor, has commenced work with his machine on Bayside road. It is said the machine did more work, and did it better, the first day, than ten men could have done in a week.

—Antonio De Pasquale & Brother, the Fashionable Tailors, next door to the Bank, Easton, Md. All garments cut and made by them are guaranteed to fit, and made in the very best manner, and in the most fashionable style. feb28-1y

Mr. Matthew P. Flowers is about to build a handsome new two story dwelling on Railroad Avenue, on the lot between the residences of Mrs. Pascault and Mr. Flynn. The avenue west of the depot is rapidly filling up with handsome dwellings.

—The work of shelling Railroad Avenue is finished except that there will have to be a few more shells put in places on the street, where the shells are not thick enough. The street in front of the STAR office received a dressing of shells on Saturday.

—Marvelous.—How wonderfully popular J. M. Lanque's Anti-Bilious Bitters is with the people, and how quickly Dyspepsia, Headache, Constipation and all forms of Liver Disease yields to its influence. 25 cents a paper; $1 a bottle. W. E. Thornton, Baltimore and Harrison Streets.

—Two more beautiful beeves have been received at the "Citizens' Provision Depot," and will be exhibited at Norris' stall to-day. His great success is attributable to the fine quality of beef he offers to his customers. Call early and secure a choice roast or steak. He has also at his stall some very fine mutton.

—We direct the special attention of the ladies to the advertisement in the STAR of J. Pels & Sons, the fashionable ladies' shoe makers, 59 North Eutaw street, Baltimore. While Pels' shoes only sell for $3.50, they are considered better than Burt's which come much higher. Orders by mail always promptly attended to.

—It is an admitted fact, that the Delaware shad is a much larger and finer fish than the Choptank shad. Why should not the fish commission gather the spawn and hatch the eggs of the Delaware shad, and transplant the breed to our waters. While we increase the quantity, would it not be wise to improve the variety of our shad also? We think it would be both wise and expedient. We should like to hear from Mr. Fish Commissioner Hughlett on the subject.

—Messrs. L. Jeff Milbourne & Co., 128 Baltimore, have a well established advertising agency, and those who want advertising done through the newspapers, will find them prompt and thoroughly reliable. Persons out of this county, and especially in Baltimore, who may desire to use the advertising columns of the STAR to extend their business, can contract through Messrs Milbourne & Co., on just as good terms as they can obtain from this office. Jan10-2m.

—Now that the town commissioners are shelling and repairing Federal street, would it not be well for those owning property on the street to join in and have the street put in apple pie order, by paving and guttering the side walks on both sides to West street. We presume the county commissioners will extend the iron railing around the new jail, and otherwise improve the jail yard. If the side walk from the hotel to West street could be widened, by straightening the gutter, and paving out to it, it would be a splendid improvement at little cost.

—When the roofs of the houses in and around town are all painted with the fire-proof slate paint, Easton will look like a new place. There will be no more leaky houses, and no fires from sparks. The roofs will last as long again, and look as well again. The paint is applied hot; it penetrates the shingles, fills up all the cracks, and renders them impervious to water. The roof is the most exposed part of the building, and wears out first; why is it that while the weatherboarding is painted, the roof is not? It stands to reason that, if any part of the house needs painting, it is the roof. Have your roofs painted by Knowlton & Co, with their fire-proof slate paint while you have the opportunity.

—Buy your Tinware of G. W. Beck's. He keeps the largest stock in town.

—About the time of the breaking out of the late war, all correspondence ceased between Mr. J. B. Bennett, of this place, and his half brother, Mr. R. J. Higman, of Philadelphia. From 1860 up to last week they had not heard from each other. Mr. Higman is a master machinest, and has been engaged for the past 30 years in putting up machinery for a house in Philadelphia, which has taken him all over the North and West, to California, and to Mexico and South America. Last week he was sent here from Philadelphia, to put up an ice machine for Mr. John H. K. Shannahan, when the brothers met. Mr. Higman recognized Mr. Bennett as soon as he saw him, but Mr. Bennett did not recognize him until he heard him speak, when he at once recognized his voice. They had not met for 22 years.

—Col. James T. Earle publishes in the Centreville Record, the discovery he has made of a new route for the Maryland & Delaware Ship Canal. By utilizing and redering navigable a couple of mill ponds between Millington and Smyrna, he thinks the Chester river route can be built through to Bombay Hook for $6,000,000. In proof of this he upsets the calculations of the U. S. engineers, and establishes his calculations by an old fellow that once run a limeboat—some kind of a scow most likely—on the streams of the upper part of the Eastern Shore! But the Col. has to admit he must depend still on engineering skill to break the heavy ice blockades at the mouth of Chester river. If the advocates of the upper routes could only get rid of the ice that blockades the Chester and the Sassafras rivers, they would have some show, but with that barrier in the way it is futile for them to compare the upper with the Choptank route.

Star Twinkles.

Dr. P. O. Cherbonnier has a peach tree in blossom.

J. J. Jump & Co., are improving their awning frame, by raising the front of it, and putting on a plank awning.

The wheat in this county never looked better at this season of the year.

Mr. R. S. Fountain has on hand a large stock of new carriages. He makes as good work as is made anywhere. See his advertisement in the STAR.

Mr John H. K. Shannahan is putting up the machinery in his ice factory. He will soon be at work making ice.

Our farmers must be a slow set. Messrs. Numsen & Son have withdrawn their advertisement and decline to open their factory at Easton Point to can tomatoes, because they have not received one single application for a contract. They could not afford to spend several thousand dollars, to put their factory in order, on an uncertainty.

The roads were good most of last week, but the rain on Thursday softened them again. Bad roads cannot last much longer.

Bishop Lay's Lectures.

The third lecture of Bishop Lay's Lenten Course, will be delivered at Trinity Chapel tomorrow, Wednesday evening, at 5 o'clock instead of Friday. The fourth lecture of the Course will be delivered on Wednesday week.

The Edinburg Review—January 1882.

The following is the table of contents of the Edinburg Review for January, just reprinted by the Leonard Scott Publishing Company, New York: Taine's Conquest of the Jacobins; Modern Italian Ports; The Life of Mr. Cobden; Electric Motive Power: Tunis and Carthage; Irish Discontent; Ancient Animals of South America; Parliamentary Procedure: The Bonapartes: Du Chaillu's Land of the Midnight Sun; A Whig Retort.

"A Literary Event."

The following is a cable despatch from London in the N. Y. Tribune of January 29th. 1882:

"An important unpublished work by Thomas Carlyle has been discovered lately. It is entitled 'A Tour in Ireland in 1849,' and comprises notes on the moral and political condition of that country of the most stringent character and greatest interest. This manuscript was unknown to Mr Froude, and it was submitted to his examination. He was so delighted with it that he volunteered to write an introduction when it is published in book form. Meanwhile, it has been secured by Edmund Gosse for The Century Magazine, where it will shortly begin to appear as a serial, simultaneously in London and New York."

The Maryland & Delaware Ship Canal.

The bill presented sometime ago in the House of Representatives by Hon. F. S. Hoblitzell, of Baltimore, providing for the construction of the Maryland and Delaware Ship Canal by the Federal Government, is now in the hands of the House Committee on Railways and Canals. On Wednesday last Mr. Hoblitzell made an able and convincing argument before the committee in advocacy of the canal, an abstract o which we print this morning for the information readers of the STAR. And we are gratified to be able to add, that Mr. Hoblitzell, is very sanguine of a favorable report on the bill at this session. Senator A. P. Gorman has also offered the same bill in the Senate, and hopes to secure a favorable report on it in that body. The bill does not designate the route, but very properly leaves that to be decided by the United States engineers.

In arguing the measure before the Committee, Mr. Hoblitzell assumed that the Government was committed to the policy of aiding such projects. He instanced the vast sums granted by the government in aid in internal improvements, aggregating for the Mississippi river jetties $10,000,000; the construction of additional entrances to New York harbor $10,000,000; river and harbor improvements generally upwards of $60,000,000; Pacific railroads nearly $90,000,000 in subscriptions, idorsements of bonds, and land grants for wagon roads and canals, $100,000,000, &c. All these vast appropriations of the public money and enormous grants of valuable public lands had been justified on the ground of affording the best and cheapest outlets for the products of the country to the ocean. None of the various works aided by Congress had greater claims to consideration than the Maryland and Delaware ship canal, which would shorten the route to the sea from 175 to 200 miles. He then argued that the commercial advantages to be derived from the construction of the canal were self evident, and gave statistics of the amounts of cereals received at Baltimore from the Ohio and Mississippi valleys. The products of the West were attracted to Baltimore in such large quantities by reason of the "pooling system" of the trunk lines establishing differential rates, making three cents per 100 pounds in favor of Baltimore. How much greater would become the advantage to the Western producer when you consider the additional cheapening of from 2 to 3 cents per bushel to be obtained by the construction of the canal. If the shipments were no larger than they are now, the saving in round numbers at 2 cents per 100 pounds would be $1,300,000 per annum, which in a few years would pay the entire cost of the canal. But it would necessarily and inevitably lead to increased production and increased development of the magnificent resources of the West. He then spoke of the great advantage of water highways in affording the cheapest transportation, but said that at present none of the great water highways in affording the cheapest transportation, had absolute regulating influence upon the rates of transportation; the Erie canal is closed up by ice a large part of the year, and the Mississippi river is too lengthy a route, and is affected at certain seasons with shallowness and at others with floods. No such drawbacks could exist in the case of the Maryland and Delaware canal, because it would shorten by 170 miles what is already the shortest route to the sea by a canal that could not be affected by floods or ice, that would float the largest ships, and would be beyond corporation or individual control, and with rates of insurance lessened, would go to the very point of the matter in regulating freight charges. This feature alone should settle the question of commending the canal to Congress. But in addition there was the momentous point of the work as a means of national defense. It would be the key to Washington, Baltimore, Philadelphia, New York and Norfolk. All these cities are now at the mercy of a hostile fleet, but if the canal was built the government would be able to concentrate, either in the Chesapeake, the Delaware, the Elizabeth, the Patapsco or the Potomac the entire resources of the Philadelphia, Washington and Norfolk navy-yards. Washington appreciated the want of this canal in the days of the revolution. If this canal had existed in the war of 1812-15 Washington city would not have been captured. The government would have saved during the war of the rebellion $50,000,000 in transportation. Every consideration demands the construction of this great public work as one of public necessity.

The members of the committee were attentive and interested listeners to Mr. Hoblitzell. During the delivery of his remarks they had the advantage of inspection of the Baltimore Sun map, copies of which were on the table before them, and greatly facilitated a proper understanding of the subject.

A Dream.

One would scarcely imagine that a stony thought ever took possession of her mind, and it was hard to believe that a harsh word ever escaped those soft, ruby lips, that seemed set in a frame of melting tenderness. The casual observer who watched her, like a saint in church, might easily have thought she was a matter from heavenly regions. So we thought until we saw her under different circumstances.

Passing along one of our respectable residence streets (somewhere near the suburbs), our attention was arrested by a high-pitched female voice crying loudly for assistance. Our chivalrous feelings were instantly kindled, and glancing to our right we beheld an open parlor window of a cozy two-story frame dwelling, from which the sounds seemed to issue.

It was Saturday morning, and appearances indicated that a general house-cleaning was going on. The parlor was undergoing an unusual over-haul, no doubt in view of the long tete a-tete that would as usual take place on the following Sunday afternoon, in which the oldest belle of the house and her man, Friday, would be the sole participants.

We were not long in ascertaining that the cry of distress was not intended for passers-by to hear, but was meant for the ears of some particular inmate of the house, upon whose head fell many an ill-wished blessing. So we ducked our head below the top-rail of the front-yard fence, and ensconsing ourself in a position where we could "see without being seen," by peeping between the palings, we witnessed such a ludicrous sight, as is seldom enjoyed by those who never see "behind the scenes."

There, perched upon the top of a No 8 nickle orn. nented Edison stove, stood our angelic heroine, like an animated statue; but how changed in appearance since we saw her in church. Unlike the average Easton girl who plays belle a part of the time and house-cleaner and general utility woman the balance, with a neat calico wrapper surmounted by a dainty little cap, and cast-off gloves,—our heroine was attired in a ragged and dirty costume of some fantastic pattern, probably her great grand mother's wedding dress that had been used on such occasions for generations back; and the usually sweet and attractive face was deeply buried in the labyrnth of an old Quaker bonnet that looked like a white-washed nail keg, with a few staves knocked out, attached horizontally to the shoulders of the figure.

Upon the mantel above the stove were arrayed a number of such ornaments as usually decorate such conveniences,—beautiful vases, framed photographs, etc., etc.; and above these —at some distance apart—were suspended two flower panels, evidently intended to set off a large picture that should occupy the centre. A glance, first at the vacant space, and then at an upset chair, beside which was lying on the floor, a large picture with a handsome guilt frame, gave us an insight into the situation. Our heroine in mounting the stove, to hang the picture, had kicked over the chair, and with it the picture she wished to hang. And after having become thoroughly satisfied of her inability to help herself, she commenced bawling at the top of her voice for a smaller sister to come to her assistance.

"Con-twist the gal, why don't she come on," she squealed out. "Laws! I wish I had wings; if I wouldn't fly square upon her shoulders and pull out every hair she's got in her wooley, sest-weed head until she'd be as bald-headed as St. Peter's dome. Now ain't I in a nice fix. Monarch of all I survey, and yet the most helpless one that ever ruled. Condraught the lazy—— gal S—— I wish you'd hurry up. My feet are burning up, standing here on this hot stove," but glancing down she perceived that no fire was in the stove, nor probably had been for a week, she resumed her whine with, "well it all the same; they're nearly frozen, standing on this cold iron. Where on earth can that gal be. I declare to goodness, if I had her by the back of the neck, I'd cut her hands off and present them to the committee on town-clock. 'Twouldn't be no use, though; they're too lazy for anything. And, oh, Mercy! Suppose J—— should pass by that window just now, what on earth would he think? And it's just like him to do so; he's always bobbin' around when he's least wanted. How in the mischief can I get down? If I jump I'll be sure to mash my pet corn Oh, dear! I fear I shall collapse! Con-ding that gal, I wish—— Hallelujah!" and her face suddenly brightened up as she observed a broom with the handle leaning against the wall, 'almost' within easy reach. "Now, if I can only get possession of that broom, perhaps I can upright the chair." She reached out after it, and had 'almost' succeeded in grasping it, but perhaps she leaned a little too far. Down came the stove, our heroine, and mantel-piece ornaments, all in a common heap. We didn't stop to ascertain the extent of damage, but modestly suggest to our town girls whose dispositions are not the same under all circumstances, and who have such trials to go through in their household duties, it would, perhaps, be better during house-cleaning hours, to lower the blinds of the front window and let the dust escape through the back one.

The Bishop has appointed services, outside of Easton and until Easter as follows:

March 17th, p. m., and 18th—Lent Lectures in Denton

March, 19th, a m.,—Greensboro; p. m., Hillsboro.

March 23, p. m., and 24th—Lent Lectures in East New Market.

March 25th and 26th—Cambridge and vicinity.

March 31st, 11 a. m.,—Litany Services at Wye.

March 31st.,—Evening and two days following, Lent Lectures and Visitation in Centreville.

The Lectures in Trinity Chapel, Easton, on the Temptation in the Wilderness, will be continued on the Wdnesday afternoons, March 15th, 22d, and 29th.

Special Notice.

The street committe of the town commissioners would call the attention of house-keepers in Easton to the town ordinance prohibiting persons from throwing the refuse matter from their premises into the streets. The dumping of the cleanings of woodpiles, manure heaps, brickbats, garbage &c., into the streets is a violation of the law. If persons in cleaning up their premises will put their refuse stuff in barrels or boxes on the streetsides, the commissioners will have it removed beyond the town limits free of expense; but violations of the law will be punished.

The Domestic Tyrant!

"The average man," quoth Mrs. Partington, "is a weak and irritable domestic tyrant," and Mrs. P. is correct. Tyrannical to a fault the average man will enter the blissful Paradise of a happy home, scratch himself in fiendish glee, send the baby into convulsions, and for what? Why because he has the Itching Piles, and is too mean to buy Swayne's Ointment, which is an infallible cure for the worst cases of that annoying complaint.

Special Notice.

If you want a cheap and fashionable suit of clothes made, go to John Satterfield's; get him to choose the cloth for you from his samples; have him order the goods at wholesale price; or at the stores in town, if you prefer. He is a first-rate judge of goods, and if you buy through him, you won't be cheated. He has the latest fashions, and warrants everything he makes to fit and give satisfaction. He also does all kinds of cutting promptly to order. Feb21-tf.

(COMMUNICATED.)

MR. EDITOR: In riding through the county last week, I noticed a large number of very fine looking fields of wheat. On inquiry, I found without exception, that every one of them were dressed last fall with Nickerson's fertilizer. I write this to call attention to the fact. The Eastern Shore Domestic Guano must be an excellent article to produce such results. FARMER.

Pulmona.

Stevens & Hayward, druggists, Easton, always have a full supply of Pulmona, the greatest known remedy for coughs, throat and lung trouble. It requires only a fair trial to convince one of its efficacy. Free from Morphia or any other anodyne. Price 50 cents.

ORPHANS' COURT.

The Orphan's Court met on Tuesday. Chas. H. Leonard, acting guardian to Ella E. and Minnie M. Leonard, passed his final account with each. J. Kemp Bartlett, guardian to William and Margaret Benson passed his 6th account with each. The sale of the real estate of Nancy Faulkner made by Silas A. Simpson, trustee, was ratified. The court authorized the trustee to accept the entire purchase money in cash. Rebecca H. Martin, guardian to William Bond Martin, Lilla M. Martin, Ella E. Martin, and John W. Martin, her children, passed her 5th account with each. John G. Jenkins, guardian to Ida R. Love, passed his final account and filed a release from his ward for the balance due her, which was ordered to be recorded.

COUNTY COMMISSIONERS.

The county commissioners were in session on Tuesday. The bond of James H. Sullivan, constable for Oxford, was approved. A number of road supervisors' bonds were filed and approved. A petition was presented to the Board requesting that a piece of road in front of Charles H. Bowdle's gate, in Trappe district, be repaired with oyster shells. Laid over. Complaint was made respecting the bad condition of two pieces of road near Trappe. The clerk was directed to notify the supervisors to repair them without delay. Bills to amount of $398.46 were passed and paid.

COUNTY SCHOOL COMMISSIONERS.

The county school board was in session on Tuesday, engaged in auditing and paying accounts.

KNOWLTON & CO.'S
Elastic Slate
AND FIRE-PROOF PAINT,
For Old and New Shingle Roofs.
We beg to call the attention of the Public and all interested in the preservation of their Roofs, from Fire and decay, to our celebrated
ELASTIC SLATE PAINT.
It is put on hot, and by so-doing it penetrates into the shingles, and forms a heavy coating, which will not crack or peal, and when applied to shingles, we guarantee them to last from Ten to Fifteen Years Longer than without it, and a sure preventative against sparks and cinders from other burning buildings. Having made FIRE-PROOF PAINTS a study for several years past, we feel confident, and fully assured that we have the BEST AND ONLY FIRE-PROOF PAINT
in existence, and for color it surpasses all other paints, it being a rich Chocolate Brown, and is 50 PER CENT. to the appearance of one's residence. We also guarantee to make old and leaky roofs water-tight by the use of it.
TESTIMONIALS.
NORMAL AND AGRICULTURAL INSTITUTE.
Hampton, Va., Feb. 1st, 1882.
We have over fifty-one thousand square feet of Knowlton & Co.'s Elastic Slate and Fire-Proof Paint applied to our buildings and believe their ma asurements to be correct, and we further believe it to be a protection against fire, decay, and adds much to the appearance of our institution, and would most sincerely recommend its application to similar institutions.
Very Respectfully,
S. C. ARMSTRONG, Principal.
J. F. B. MARSHALL, Treasurer.
F. C. BRIGGS, Business Agent.
J. R. H. GOFF, Chief Engineer.
Hampton, Va., Nov. 20th, 1882.
The paint applied to my tin roofs by Knowlton & Co., which were in a bad and leaky condition, has stopped all leaks, and I would recommend it to all who have old and leaky roofs.
G. O. MEARS, Dry-Goods and Groceries.
Norfolk, Va., Nov. 8th, 1881.
Being troubled greatly by the leaky condition of the roofs of my houses, and hearing of Knowlton & Co.'s Elastic Slate Paint, I had them apply their paint to my houses, and since then can say that my houses have not leaked a drop, to my knowledge, and I can most heartily recommend it the public.
R. F. BATCHELDER,
Lumber Merchant, 124 & 126 Bank St.
SOLDIERS' HOME,
Hampton, Va., Nov. 17th, 1881.
C. P. SPENCER.—Sir: I have the honor to report that I have measured the roofs of Buildings painted by Knowlton & Co., and found the total number of square feet to be 21,000. The roof of the Main Building has caused me much trouble from leaking, as also did my Engine House and D. Building. I have had other paints applied to my buildings, but believe this surpasses them all in durability and color, and would most heartily recommend their Elastic Slate Paint to the public.
P. T. WOODSIN, Gov. and Treas.
R. A. RUTH, Chief Home Fire Dept.
Hampton, Va., Jan. 3rd, 1882.
About one year ago I commenced to have my Roofs painted with a patent paint, but noticing up to my expectation, I discarded it, and hearing of Knowlton & Co.'s Elastic Slate Paint I procured their services and had my Roofs painted with their paint, which has given entire satisfaction.
HENRY LARCHE, Hotel Proprietor.
Hampton, Va., Nov. 25th, 1882.
This is to certify that we have had the Court House and Jail painted with Knowlton & Co.'s Tin Roofing Paint, and it surpasses anything we have ever seen, and would most heartily recommend it to the public with entire confidence of giving entire satisfaction.
R. W. ROBERTSON,
Supervisor.
Price of the Paint put on 85 Cents per Square Yard.
