Attention! Winning!—These expressive words are often and properly applied to that fair tissue of one favored in locks who keep their hair abundant and unbroken in color and lustre by the timely use of Ayer's Hair Vigor. The Vigor is both agreeable and wholesome, and its effects are very lasting, making it the most economical, and at the same time the most beneficial of all kinds of toilet preparations.

WM. H. HOYLAR, of Pennsylvania, Vice President Garfield's Attorney-General. He was then a leading Republican, and is one of the ablest among the leaders of that party. He recently addressed a Civil Service Reform meeting in Philadelphia, and spoke out in such a manner that greatly surprised the stalwarts. He said the Republican party at present has but three principles: the spoils system, opposition to civil service reform and repudiation in Virginia; and he declared his own opposition to all of them. He denounced the Bess system of the Republican party, and declared it a degradation that goes from the gutter to the White House, and subsists on the spoils of office. He said he made these confessions with sorrow and humiliation. He said it was monstrous that the party of Abraham Lincoln should present the degrading spectacle of supporting Mahoneism in Virginia, which was a deliberate prostitution of government powers to aid repudiation of a State's obligations. He said instead of the Arthur administration coming forward, it is retrograding, and sinking the morals of the Republican party to the level with Mahoneism. Mr. Hoyle's speech will have a powerful tendency to burst up Cameronism in Pennsylvania.

Improving the Mississippi.

President Arthur on Tuesday sent a special message to Congress urging the importance and necessity of permanently improving the Mississippi river, so as to prevent it from overflowing its banks and desolating large portions of the Mississippi valley, and recommending the appropriation of $2,000,000, to commence the work. The message is sensible and timely. It would be a great wrong for Congress not to vote the appropriation. There is no matter before Congress so important and urgent and just as the Mississippi river improvement. The following dispatch will show how the message of the President is appreciated at New Orleans.

THANKING PRESIDENT ARTHUR.

NEW ORLEANS, April 19.—The following explains itself.

To Chester A. Arthur, President of the United States, Washington, D. C.:

The New Orleans Cotton Exchange, representing the large agricultural constituency of this State and the commercial interests of this city, tender to you their grateful acknowledgements for your statesmanlike and patriotic message to Congress. Your appreciation of the vast interests in the Mississippi valley, so seriously imperilled by the recent devastating floods will stimulate our almost discouraged people to renewed efforts to contribute to our common country the inestimable wealth to be derived by the measure so ably recommended by you.

[Signed] THOMAS L. AIREY, President.

The Land League in Baltimore.

Last night, Mayor William Pinkney Whyte and Judge Jeremiah S. Black were the speakers. Gov. Thomas, of this county, was one of the Vice-Presidents. Judge Black's speech is published at length in the Baltimore papers, and is a powerful arraignment of the English Government for its tyrannical and oppressive dealings with Ireland. It appears to us that there is a great deal of gush in this Irish sympathy business. While Ireland has produced many of the most learned scholars and ablest statesmen and brilliant heroes and poets of modern times, it is a lamentable fact, that the Irish are a turbulent and dissipated race, and have never shown any aptitude for democratic self government. And as for their love of liberty and justice as matters of principle, we have had no faith in them since the Confederate war, when they swarmed as hireling soldiers on the union side and proved themselves as mercenary as were the Hessians during the War of Independence. We have no doubt but that they would have fought just as bravely on the Confederate side, as they did on the Union side, had they been as accessible to the South as they were to the North. And England has done no more to hold Ireland in an unwilling subjection than the North did to hold the South; and England has never desolated Ireland as the South was desolated wantonly by the northerners in this country. The English hold Ireland under the laws of conquest, and they hold England under the same laws. The Romans conquered the natives of the isle, the English conquered and overthrew the Roman power, the Danes overthrew the English, and William the Conqueror overthrew the Danes, and re-established the power of the English. In both England and Ireland the law has ever been the hardest fend off, and the strongest to rule; and Ireland's fate is but the result of her obstinate refusal to recognize the condition of affairs in this respect, which have existed in the British isles for more than a thousand years. It is about time for her to learn more wisdom, and to go peacefully to work and amalgamate with the people with whose destiny her own future is indissolubly united. England will no more permit Ireland to separate from her than the North would permit the South to secede from the Union. And she is right, in not permitting a foreign power to exist on her flank, to make war on her when she may unfortunately be at war with one or more of the continental powers. Hence we think it bad advice to encourage the Irish to hope for national independence. Every attempt in that direction, if they were capable of self-government, which is very doubtful, will but bring upon the island still greater ills than it now has to bear, and but further postpone that amalgamation of the two races, which must take place sooner or later, unless the Irish all emigrate from the "Emerald Isle."

Thirty-Five Men Killed.

SUNDERLAND, Eng., April 18.—An explosion has occurred in the Black Horse Colliery, and it is feared twenty-three persons have been killed. Seven persons have been rescued. They are badly burned.

Later—Thirty-five persons were killed by the colliery explosion.

Two years ago Jay Gould cared nothing for Missouri. Now he controls $100,000,000 of corporation capital and employs 40,000 employes in this State. The real head of seven railroads, the telegraph monopoly, iron interests, river transportation, elevators &c. He is able to dictate Missouri's legislators, to make our laws, and control the state.—St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

Personal.

Dear Bro. Mont. Ed. "The Central Methodist," Catlettsburg, Ky.: Please send the best "Central" that you can for a case for sick headache. If you will do so, and only that you advertise in your paper every week, I am sure you will be greatly benefited thereby. And, I believe, should have been a sufferer from sick headache, I can say almost from infancy, and have tried every remedy I could get, and never found anything to do me any good until I used Simmons Liver Regulator, prepared by J. H. Zeilin & Co. I feel for any one that suffers with that terrible disease, and I hope you will give it a trial.

A WIND OF DEATH.

Terrible Result of a Cyclone in Western Pennsylvania.

PITTSBURG, Pa., April 21.—A despatch from Pennsville, Pa., says: The cyclone which visited this place on Saturday left a trail of ruin and desolation and distress, of waste and ruin, the like of which has never before been known.

The storm that (unheralded) burst suddenly on this community about 4 o'clock on Wednesday evening was of short duration and very limited in its track. It moved from southwest to northwest, going over the northern portion of Fayette county.

We glean from different sources that the wind, rain and hail poured out of a dark blue funnel-shaped cloud, which traveled at an almost incredible speed. So far as learned, the first serious outbreak was in the western part of this township, where it struck the Mennonite Church, about one mile west of this town, and unroofed it.

A short distance from this church O'Birch Jarrett, a boy 10 years old, was riding along on horseback. He was carried some fifty yards by the force of the wind, and his horse killed by some timbers that were dashed upon it. His brother Neil, a young man, was hurled through the air in the same way for a long distance. The storm struck the farm of H. N. Sherrick on the crest of the hill, near Pennsville, destroying the orchard, unroofing the barn and passing on to the house, leveling chimneys, fences and trees to the ground. The gale crossed southwest to the Pennsylvania road and destroyed timber and trees on the Wilson, Boyle and Playford farms. It unroofed the Disciple Church, and otherwise seriously damaged it. On the Mount Pleasant road the house of a widow named Miller was demolished and her barn carried so far that it has not yet been found. W. D. Lyon's property was also damaged to the amount of $1,000. John S. Detweiler's barn was unroofed and his house badly damaged, as was also the house, barn and orchard of G. D. Atkinson, half a mile further on. Before it reached Mount's creek it took an easterly course, and here the deadliest work began. John Bundorff's house was the first to succumb. The lower story of the house was instantly swept away and the upper portion then came tumbling down. Mr. Bundorff was outside and when he saw the storm approaching sought shelter inside. He was however overtaken and whirled about in the air at the mercy of the gale. His dwelling place was rendered a shapeless mass of ruins. He relates that nails, rubbish and timber could be seen flying through the air as if they came from the clouds. Mr. Bundorff was struck by one of these missiles just below the skull of the back. It penetrated an artery and it is feared the wound is fatal. Joseph Glassburn's house was utterly destroyed as was also his barn. The last he saw of the roof of the latter it was going up the mountain at lightning speed. Nothing was left standing on his farm. Mrs. Glassburn's wife and five of the children are badly hurt. A half mile from Glassburn's the storm struck the house of John Wingrove. He was about five hundred yards from his home, driving thither a load of oats. He leaped from the wagon and ran towards his house. Fifty yards from the house his wife lay dead with her babe of 11 months clasped tightly to her bosom. She had seized her youngest born at the instant the storm struck the building and had been hurled so far that the violence deprived her of life. The babe was unharmed. Mr. Wingrove's other children were trying frantically to extinguish the flames which had caught in their clothing and was consuming them. They assert that the fire burst upon them from a cloud overhead. Alexander and Harry, two of the boys aged 11 and 14 respectively, were found a mile further on. J. Stauffer's two houses and a barn were leveled to the ground. Mrs. Stauffer was seriously injured as were also her two daughters. The last point in the track so far as can be ascertained was two miles beyond Stauffer's at Himan Kyapsuiders, whose house was carried away. Whether the tornado spent itself or went over the mountain we are unable to ascertain.

CHARLES ROBERT DARWIN.

Dies at His Home in England.

LONDON, April 20.—Charles Robert Darwin, the well-known scientist and author died at his residence, Down House, near Orphington.

Mr. Darwin had been ill for some days and was supposed to be recovering but he had a relapse on Tuesday and never rallied.

The Rogers Heard From.

NEW YORK, April 18.—The Herald to-morrow will have the following: "IRKUTSK, SIBERIA, April 18.—I have this morning received startling news from Mr. Jackson the special commissioner sent in search of Jeannette survivors. He apparently fowarded the dispatch by courier. It ran as follows: "From the banks of the Alden river, April 6, 1882—I have just sent a courier bearing despatches from W. H. Gilder, the Herald correspondent with Rogers, whom the courier had accompanied from Kolyousk, on the Kolima river, to Verkoganak, 400 miles north of Yakutak. Gilder had made a journey of 2,000 versts among the Chuckches. He was sent forward with the news that the Rogers had been burned and sunk; that "Lieutenant Barry with the officers and crew, thirty-six in number, are at Tlapka near Cape Sendge, and that a vessel should be sent for them as early as possible."

The action of Carter's Little Pills is pleasant, mild and natural. They gently stimulate the liver, and regulate the bowels, but do not purge. They are sure to please.

McLean on Trial,

LONDON, April 19.—At Reading to-day Lord Chief Justice Coleridge charged the grand jury in the case of Roderick MacLean, who attempted to shoot Queen Victoria, at Windsor, on March 2.

His Lordship said: State trials in in England have been rare, but the law bearing on the case, though over five hundred years old, was undoubted. The facts as narrated in the deposition of the witnesses of the assault clearly supported the charge. Baron Huddleston was also on the bench. Sir Gorge Bowyer is the foreman of the grand jury.

The grand jury returned a true bill for high treason against the prisoner, who was at once placed in the dock. He looked pale and haggard. He pleaded not guilty in a firm but low voice. Sir Henry James, the attorney general, opened the case for the prosecution. He said it was a very aggravated one. The jury have a great responsibility in determining the condition of the prisoner's mind at the time he committed the crime.

The evidence for the prosecution went simply to prove that MacLean fired the shot. The witnesses were not cross-examined. Montague Williams opening for the prisoner made insanity the ground of defense. He said it could be shown that MacLean had had the homicidal mania for years and had imagined the English people were against him, and also that it could be proved that MacLean had been confined in an asylum.

The superintendents of the Salesbury and Broad Moor Asylums testified to MacLean's insanity. They said they believed him incapable of appreciating the nature or quality of any of his acts. Mr. Williams asked for the acquittal of the prisoner on the ground of insanity. Lord Chief Justice Coleridge summed up the case. The jury returned a verdict of "not guilty" on the ground of insanity.

Important Bills Awaiting the Governor's Action.

Of the 497 bills passed by the Legislature at the late session 221 were approved before adjournment and are now laws, leaving 276 still awaiting the Governor's action. These 276 bills include the following General Laws:—Appropriation bills for 1883 and 1884; free inspection of tobacco; redivision of congressional districts; to make executions private; regulating the stations of pressing men; penalty for infringing the gambling law; changing the mode of selecting a public printer; clerks of courts to record proceedings where lands are sold under judgment; limiting liens of mortgages; to sell steamer Leila and buy two tugs for oyster navy; fixing 325 pounds as standard weight of a barrel of corn; for the selection of jurors in the counties; amending the law relating to vagrant children; authorizing orphans' courts to order sale of real estate of testators; changing the law of transcripts by clerks of courts; amending the register of wills law; prohibiting manufacture and sale of toy pistols, and the sale of deadly weapons to minors; relating to liability of married women in covenants and leases; amending the law guardians; changing the law of pleading, practice and process, and that relating to giving bonds by executors; for registration of marriages; changing the law of tenants; abating State taxes on shares of manufacturing corporations; relief of State librarian; comptroller to pay schools $34,069.36 of school fund for 1877.

Sale of Charlestown Navy Yard.

WASHINGTON, April 20.—Under the call of committees to-lay, fifty eight reports were presented to the House. Representative Morse, from the Committee on Naval Affairs, made favorable report upon the bill to authorize the sale of the Charlestown, Mass., navy yard. The report says that since the naval authorities have decided upon steel ships of war, it will be necessary to incur a great expense to supply the yard with the plant required for their construction. That the Government does not need this yard; that the ground it occupies is worth from six to eight millions of dollars; that if sold the treasury will be benefited to that extent, while the Government will also save the $150,000 per annum which it now spends to keep the yard in repair, besides $470,000 per year interest upon the value of the property, a sum sufficient to purchase a steel ship of war every four years, and in addition the city of Boston will gain by the sale $7,000,000 of taxable property. The report therefore recommends the passage of the bill.

Big Results From Little Causes.

"Do you know?" remarked a man to his friends on Chestnut Street, a day or two since, "I believe both Conkling and Platt had a bad case of skin disease when they resigned!" "What makes you think so?" inquired the listener in astonishment. "Well, you see they acted in such an eruptive manner—so rash—by an it were. Save! "Oh! yes, I save," they were boiling over and merely resigned to humor themselves, I suppose." If such be the case, the National difficulty might have been averted by applying Swayne's Ointment for skin diseases.

Shipherd's Story Denied.

WASHINGTON, D. C., April 20.—In the Foreign Affairs Committee investigation to day, William Henry Hurlburt, editor of the New York World and brother of the late minister to Peru testified that he had never seen a dispatch written by Secretary Blaine to his brother with the marginal note thereon "Go in Steve" and that Shipherd's story to the contrary was utterly untrue.

OF LONG EXPERIENCE.

I would respectfully inform my friends and the public generally, that I am now better prepared to furnish everything in the furniture line, than I have been in the past.

My ware-house contains 3500 square feet of flooring, which is at all times covered with stock pertaining to my business, and which will be sold as cheap or cheaper than can be bought here or elsewhere.

Having no other trade or profession, I am in the business for life, health permitting, and do not intend to be undersold or excelled in any particular pertaining to my business.

Myself and son Harry will give our personal attention to the business, and I recommend him as capable to attend to all business in my absence.

REPAIRING

done neatly and with dispatch. Stock of always on hand made to order. Thanking you very kindly for your patronage in the past, I earnestly solicit a continuance in the future.

Undertaking a Specialty.

I shall continue to give the undertaking department of my business my special attention, and having had thirty odd years experience in the business, I feel sure I can give satisfaction in the attention of all funerals entrusted to my care.

I have one of the best hearses and keep in stock everything necessary to furnish the best funeral.

Corpses preserved in ice when requested. Remember my prices shall be as low as the very lowest. Respectfully,
