MANCHESTER

While we were consulting our notes for a showing of the weeks work a phone call came to Postmaster W. E. Shearer telling him to inform the friends of Mr. Oliver Lippy that he had passed quitely away at Penbrook, Harrisburg, Pa., in his 89th year. He was a native of this place, son of David Lippy a tailor with whom the deceased learned his trade during the period of hand sewing, but he put in a singer machine that for a time was a curiosity and made a success doing so; his father dropped out and attended to the farming of his land. The deceased for several years was a huckster, but returned again to his trade and opened a merchant tailoring place at which he made good, sold it to his son, C. D. Lippy, who also made a success and turned it over to R. M. Shower. The deceased sold his home and personal effects and went to the above home to his daughter, Flora Whitmore, where he enjoyed a pleasant and contented home to the end. His remains were brought here on Thursday and laid to rest in a family lot where rest his wife and two children, Rev. Hollenbaugh officiating. He is survived by four daughters, Mrs. Whitmore, Mrs. Millie Oursler, here; Grace Shaffer, Baltimore, and G. L. Maurath. Three sisters Misses Dela and Laura Lippy and Mrs. Lewis Brockley, of Hanover, Pa. He was a member of Trinity Reformed church from early manhood and an elder for quite a period.

Scarcely before the above had been fully known of the aged citizen the word was carried all along the line Will Shower is dead which was a shock. He was seen as usual during the day and at early evening Mr. Amos Wolf, west of town, was at his shop and got something in his line, leaving it until he returned from the electric store, which was but a short time. On opening the door on his return he smelled something burning and went to the store where he found Mr. Shower lying against a hot stove with the clothing on the arm burning and the side of his face burnt. He removed him and called for help that came and he was carried to his home nearby. Dr. Denner was called and found he had suffered a stroke of paralysis and fell off of the chair he was sitting on against the hot stove. William H. Shower was the fourth son of Adam and Mary Ann Shower and learned the trade of mechanic in the foundry and machine shop of his father that in after years was conducted by him and his brother, John A. Shower, who after a time withdrew. During the long years of service he was devoted to his business and was well posted on complicated machinery whose advice was much sought after by farmers as well as the needed accessories he always had on hand. His remains were laid to rest on Thursday after a house service. He was aged 74 years, 1 month and 8 days. He is survived by his wife, May Ross Shower, two daughters, Lottie Shaffer, of Baltimore, and Fannie in the home; one son, Ross Shower, who conducts an auto repair shop on Foundry avenue. The pallbearers were Messrs. C. M. Masenhimer, J. E. Musselman, Chas. Stoffle, H. S. Musselman, David Yingling, and Emory Berwager.

Miss Vesta Fridinger, teacher of the Alesia school, who with her scholars gave the large audience a fine entertainment of readings, rehearsals and dialogues that were loudly applauded, after which a festival was opened and the well pleased patronage opened their purse strings and filled the gross receipts up to $45.00 leaving the school $31.01 net. Try it again and you will have a double.

The electric light for Melrose is being agitated. A representative of the Glen Rock company claims that it is cheaper than to have a plant of your own. After the house is wired, the cost per month will be small. There are about a half dozen residents who have already signified their willingness to have "light," if it should become a reality for our town.

Those who were entertained to dinner at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Grant Bish on Sunday were Mr. and Mrs. Milton Blettner and children, Mr. and Mrs Preston Markle, Mr. and Mrs. Cleveland Bish and son James, all of Hanover, Pa., Mr. and Mrs. Maurice Bish and daughter Elizabeth, Mazie Beachtel and Elsie Jones.
