HENDERSON'S Opera Company has been disbanded.

IT is reported that there is likely soon to be peace between Chili and Peru.

CLARK MILLS, the sculptor, is dead. He died in Washington last Friday.

COL. POLK, the defaulting Tennessee Treasurer, has been captured in Texas.

THE small-pox has broken out among the rag pickers in the Philadelphia paper mills.

THE French General Chanzy is dead. He was a life Senator at the time of his death.

MRS. LANGTRY has had tremendous houses at Chicago. Everybody went to see the English beauty.

IT is said that Italy and Austria are now in entire accord. Neither of them likes France any more than Germany does.

MICHAEL CAMPBELL CALNAN, known throughout the country as M. C. Cambell, one of the pioneers among the burnt cork minstrels, is dead.

MR. HENRY M. WARFIELD, of Baltimore, says he is not a candidate for Mayor, but he does not say he will not serve if the Democrats elect him.

EDWIN BOOTH is playing Shakespere at Berlin, Prussia. The German press are enthusiastic over his acting. His success has been very great. The Crown Prince has been to see him in Hamlet.

TEXAS has $1,000,000 lying idle in her treasury, but is unable to apply it to the reduction of her debt. $5,000,000, because her creditors ask $1.40 for the bonds, and she is unwilling to pay that premium.

AT a ball in Bedford county, North Corolina, on Saturday night week, Armstead Barksdale instantly killed Scott Clayton, by severing his jugular vein. The next day Barksdale shot and killed himself with a gun.

THE United States Senate has passed the bill restoring Major General Fitz John Porter to his command in the army, wiping out from his fair fame the stigma placed upon it by Gen John Pope and his partisan court-martial twenty years ago.

DR. SAMUEL A. MUDD, the surgeon of Wilkes Booth, after he assassinated Abe Lincoln, died at his residence in Charles county last Wednesday. The Republican party never did a meaner thing than its persecution of Dr. Mudd for performing a professional duty that any other doctor would have done, had he been called upon as Dr. Mudd was.

Heavy Damages.

Miss Mary Alice Ailmont Livingstone, of New York, has recovered from Mr. Henry Fleming, the rich oil merchant of New York, $75,000 damages, in a suit for breach of promise and seduction. The jury were only a few minutes in agreeing upon their verdict, giving Miss Living stone all she sued for.

GOV. BUTLER has laid bare the boasted free school system of Massachusetts, and in his message exposes the fact, that many of the schools are poor and badly attended, and that the per centage of illiteracy in Iowa is less than it is in Massachusetts. People are beginning to believe that there is no little sham in Massachusetts' pretentions in other respects besides her schools.

THE destitution and suffering in Germany, caused by the late inundations on the Rhine and Danube rivers and subsequent intensely cold weather, are reported as unparalleled. The Emperor William has subscribed 500,000 marks to the relief fund. Literal subscriptions are making throughout Germany for the relief of the poor people who have lost their all by the floods.

GEN. JOHN W. HORN, Warden of the Maryland Penitentiary, will please accept our thanks for a copy of his Annual Report of the condition of that institution. The number of prisoners confined in the Penitentiary at the end of the fiscal year, November 30th, was 494—166 whites and 328 blacks. Only three white women are in the penitentiary, and 26 black women. The institution has been self-supporting, and cleared $1,687.30 over all expenses, last year, which is a good showing for General Horn.

Appalling Disaster.

The Newhall House, a large hotel at Milwaukee, Wisconsin, was consumed by fire on Tuesday night last with a terrible destruction of human life. There were 350 guests in the hotel, and it is thought that near 300 lives were lost. The fire was discovered at the base of the elevator; the flames ran up to the top of the building, filling the hotel with smoke and flame, and in less than an hour the structure was in ruins. Rich and poor, strangers and citizens, are among the lost.

Another Brace of Banks Gone Up the Spout.

Garret S. Boice, President of the City Bank, and Treasurer of the Fifth Ward Savings Bank, Jersey City, has embezzled the funds of both institutions, causing them to suspend. The City Bank was the depository of the school fund, and $14,000 of this money has gone where the woodbine twineth. On January 3 the resources of the bank were published at $116,014.32—liabilities the same. The President and Cashier admit they appropriated to their own use $48,000. The capital stock of the Bank is $50,000. It is all gone. It may pay the depositors the $60,000 due them, when the concern is settled up.

THE Department of Agriculture gives figures for the crops of 1882, together with those of the crops of 1881 and 1879. The grain crop of 1882 amounted to 2,692,000,000 bushels against 2,060,029,570 in 1881, and 2,697,960,456 in 1879. The margin of variation in amount is found mainly in corn, wheat and oats. Of corn there was made in 1882 1,635,000,000 bushels, of wheat 510,000,000 bushels, of oats 470,000,000 bushels. In 1881 the product was: Corn, 1,194,915 bushels; wheat, 365,280,000 bushels; oats, 416,481,000 bushels. In 1879, corn 1,754,651,555 bushels; wheat, 459,479,505 bushels; oats, 407,859,000 bushels. Thus it will be seen that the year 1882 was preciously as favorable to the farmers as any in our past history.

Constitutional Prohibition.

REV. JAMES H. LINTHICUM.

Mr. Editor.—The communication which appeared in your issue of the 9th inst. over the nom de plume—"Old Landmark"—I have just read. The temptation to write carelessly and unkindly under an assumed name, is very great, and can excuse your correspondent for having yielded to an impulse too strong for him to control. I write over my proper signature, because I am willing to be held responsible for all I write. I do not court controversy, but I am ready, if your correspondent desires to discuss the subject. I do not object to his writing under a pseudonym, but when he indulges in personalities he should put aside his mask. It may be safe, but it is not manly to strike from behind a bank, or screen, where the blow cannot be returned. Your correspondent can write better than he has done. The subject of constitutional prohibition is now engrossing the public mind, and an intelligent and unimpassioned discussion of the subject is opportune and proper.

Judge Story in his exposition of the Constitution of the United States says, a government which has no mode prescribed for any change, will in lapse of time become utterly unfit for the nation. It will either degenerate into despotism, or lead to a revolution. The founders of our government, and framers of our Constitution incorporated in our national Magna Charta a provision by which changes might be peacably effected by amendments to the Constitution. According to this provision Congress may by a two-thirds vote of both houses, or by application of a convention, called by two thirds of the States, propose amendments to the constitution; when amendments are proposed by Congress, and are ratified by three-fourths of all the States, they become a part of the Constitution. Under this provision twelve amendments have been added to the constitution; and we hope, not by violence nor revolution, but by the exercise of that sovereign right inalienable in every American citizen, to add another amendment outlawing the manufacture and sale of all alcoholic beverages. In all the State Constitutions we find provisions for amendment. The Constitution of Maryland requires a three fifth's vote of both houses of the Assembly to propose amendments. When such amendments have been approved by a majority vote of qualified votes, it is the duty of the Governor, by proclamation to declare such amendments as a part of the Constitution.

Your correspondent asks, "When and where the temperance party repealed its old and adopted its new platform?" I reply never and nowhere. The principles of prohibition are the same in Local Option, Legislative prohibition, or Constitutional prohibition. By a majority vote we sought and secured for Easton, St. Michaels and Trappe districts the great blessing of Local Option. Chapel district having voted against it, remained under the curse of the liquor traffic. The great temperance principles that gave Local Option to the three districts of Talbot county, have given Local Option to 15 out of the 24 counties of the State. Now I submit that the same principle that give prohibition to Easton district, because a majority wanted it, will give prohibition to the State when a majority of the counties want it, and will give prohibition to the nation when a major ty of the States want it. The pitiful and feeble cry that comes from the rum sellers and rum suckers of Chapel district will not stop the great State of Maryland, or our great nation, in this grand work of prohibition. The principle that gave prohibition to Easton district, will give prohibition to every county in the State, and every State in the union. And when we have secured every State in the union, then we shall call a convention and apply to Congress to propose the Constitutional prohibition amendment; and then, alas! what will Chapel district do? A district prohibitionist is necessarily a county, a State and a national prohibitionist. I can conceive of no greater inconsistency than to vote for Local Option in the district and vote against prohibition in the county, State, or nation.

Your correspondent says, "You do not tell us how many thousand men are engaged in the manufacture, sale and transportation of alcohol; the amount of capital invested in this enormous business, and the number of women and children, and schools and churches, and other public institutions the traffic supports."

I know of no woman and no child that the liquor traffic has blessed, but if I could surround "Old Landmark," or cause to pass before him in panoramic view the multitudes of women beggared and broken-hearted, of children ragged and hungry, of homes broken and wretched; if I could show him how rum has put out the fire in the hearth, taken the bread from the table, stripped the very shoes from the little feet; if I could show what I have seen, he would join me in denouncing the liquor traffic as woman's greatest curse, and say with Shakespere:

"—O thou invisible spirit of wine,
I call thee—devil."

I know of no school, no church, no individual, no community, that is helped by this infamous traffic. Judge Coleridge said: "There is scarcely a crime comes before me that is not caused by strong drink." Judge Patteson, addressing a jury, said: "If it were not for this drinking, you and I would have nothing to do." The statistics of the country show that three-fourths of the crime and pauperism are caused by alcohol.

According to Herodotus the building of one Pyramid gave employment to 100,000 men for 20 years. This was misdirected labor. The same labor under intelligent direction would rib a continent with railroads, and belt the world with telegraphic cables. There are 50,000 men engaged in the manufacture and 150,000 in the sale of alcoholic beverages. These 200,000 men are engaged in a work that is filling the prisons, almshouses and hospitals of the country; and sending every year 75,000 drunkards to premature graves. "Will you drive them into other employments?" asks your correspondent. I answer, Yes! "Without regard to consequences?" Yes! "This is what you call economic science, the promotion of the general well-being by the promotion of the individual well-being?" Yes, it is exactly what I call it. I repeat, that no man has the right, nor should anybody be permitted to enrich himself, or to engage in any business, that impoverishes, or injures his fellow man. The true key of economic science is the promotion of individual well-being in such a way as not to injure, but to advance the public well being.

It is only by prohibition that we can hope to exterminate the liquor traffic. It cannot be regulated, or controlled, it is impossible to regulate an irregularity, or control an uncontrolable thing. If "Old Landmark" thinks it possible, he can try his hand at it, and begin by experimenting with the whirlwind. Let him control and regulate it by trying to get the twist out of it.

Prohibition is not a failure, but a grand success. Maine, New Hampshire and Vermont have with credit maintained their long record of prohibition. Kansas and Iowa have fallen into line. One-half of the States of Maryland, Tennessee, Georgia, and South Carolina are to-day freed from the curse by Local Option. In many Northern and Southern States large portions of the States have been carried by prohibition. A tidal wave is rising—it may be checked and kept back for a time, but it will sweep the country—and Chapel district.

All that your correspondent says relating to what I would do, is perfectly gratuitous. I seek not by revolution or force to annihilate the liquor traffic. By moral suasion I am laboring to create such a public sentiment that Constitutional prohibition shall become the law of the nation. Virginus Rufus having suppressed the tyranny of Vindex, his grateful countrymen wrote upon his tombstone "Here lies Virginus Rufus who expelled the tyrant, not for himself but for his country."

The Secret Out at Last.

It has long been a source of wonder, as to why Courtney failed to meet Hanlan in a sculling contest. The general explanatory argument was, that he feared the little Canadian. This opinion, however, is exploded by the authentic announcement, that on the days fixed for the race, Courtney was unable to sit in his shell, on account of the intense itching and soreness caused by the Piles. Having recovered through the use of Swayne's Ointment, he now announces that he will row Hanlan any time this Summer.

A Western Ghoul.

From the New York Sun.

When the body of Mrs. Gilbert, one of the victims of the Milwaukee fire, reached the morgue an Irishman identified the corpse as that of his daughter. He at once began to tear from the fingers of the dead woman her sparkling ring and to wrench the ornaments from her ears. At this moment Mrs. Donahue reached the morgue and with a shriek leaped at the ghoul, and the husband and father and the father-in-law fell on my child," cried the widow, while stripping the jewelry from the dead woman's person. The grief-stricken husband and the robber of the dead confronted each other and the scene created the greatest confusion.

Fanny Davenport's Real Gold Chain.

When Fanny Davenport played "Rosalind" she invariably wore a gold chain about Orlando's neck. Mr. Barrymore objected, for he knows that he is the most careless of men. "I insist upon using this chain," said Fanny; "I like real things, and this is solid—it cost $1,000;" "And weighs 1,000 lbs.," said Barrymore, taking it in his hand. He did so, Miss Davenport he would lose it; but she would have her way. Finally the chain was lost. Instead of lamenting her own folly, she turned upon Barrymore, and, after upbraiding him for his carelessness, refused to speak to him any more. For thirty-two weeks they played together, he acting "Romeo" to her "Juliet," "Orlando" to her "Rosalind," etc., but they never spoke. At the end of that time the chain was found, so they kissed and made up.

Locals from Third Page.

Our Talbot Farmers.

Let any one travel through the north, or even through the lower counties of this State, and they will find the best educated people, the most wealthy, and the best society in the towns and villages. It is not so in Talbot county. The wealth, and best educated people, and the most cultivated society is in the country among our farmers. The salt water creeks leading from Miles river, the Third Haven, and the Choptank, penetrate to the heart of the country from all directions, cutting up the country into innumerable "Necks," with public roads splitting them in twain, the farms lying on either side, the cleared land generally next to the water and the woodland running out to the public road. The farms located on these rivers and creeks constitute what are known as our "Salt Water" situations. Fish, crabs, oysters, mananose, the diamond-back terrapin and game—partridges and wild fowl—abound. Some of these estates are in the possession of descendants of those who patented them in Colonial times; but most of them have passed into the hands of other families. The proprietors are well-to-do farmers, some of them rich, a few very rich, all well educated and enterprising, some of them highly cultivated and accomplished, a few devoted to literature and the sciences. No better and no more religious or more accomplished society is to be found anywhere, than exists among our Talbot farmers. Most of the year they spend their time on their estates, attending to their stock and to their crops, superintending the education of their children, and in winter indulging in such sports as the neighborhood offers; in summer they go to the seaside, or to the mountains and mingle in the society and pleasures of these resorts. The ladies are intelligent, educated, refined, and beautiful, and in these respects are not excelled by any in the land. It is not more the very desirableness and healthfulness of these "Salt Water Situations" that render them so valuable, as the excellent society of the county. When any of these farms are thrown into market they bring fancy, and sometimes fabulous prices, but it is seldom any of them are for sale. The owners do not set a money value on them; they are esteemed above price, and no amount of money would induce some of the owners to part with them. The "Necks" most celebrated in the county are "Miles River Neck," "Oxford Neck," "Bailey's Neck," "Island Creek Neck," "Bolingbroke Neck," "Ferry Neck," "Church Neck," "Little Neck," "Deep Neck," "Pen Neck," "Hopkin's Neck," "Quaker Neck," "Edmonson's Neck," "Pot Pie Neck," "Broad Creek Neck," "Bayside Neck," "Tuckahoe Neck," "King's Creek Neck," "Bamberry Neck," "Tilghman's Neck," and "Dover Neck." Before the late civil war, the owners of these estates were nearly all slaveholders, and better farmers, and more highly manured and nicely cultivated farms were not to be found anywhere. Every year enough compost was made to cover the whole cultivation, and but little commercial fertilizers were used. Farming then was very profitable. Not a few farmers could be pointed out in every neighborhood who had made $10,000, or $20,000, or $50,000, and some as much as $100,000, by farming alone. The emancipation of the slaves and uprising and demoralization of the labor system was a fearful drawback to these honest cultivaters of the soil, and not a few were utterly ruined by the revolution. But they are now getting used to the new system; they are substituting clover and fertilizers for compost, on account of their cheapness, and everything is taking a new start. Bad legislation may check the prosperity of such an intelligent and enterprising people, but it cannot utterly overthrow them. They have the sense and the pluck to adapt themselves to circumstances, and avail themselves of all the labor-saving machines applicable to their industries. The reaper and mower and steam thresher have come to their relief, and now the cord-binder promises to fill the measure of their wants. The outlook for our farmers is at present very favorable. It takes more capital now to farm than formerly, but those who have the means to stock their farms with the best machinery, can raise wheat and corn to as much profit here as anywhere.

Lippincott's Magazine.

Lippincott's Magazine for January offers a very attractive list of contents, an earnest of what may be expected by its readers during the coming year. The first of two papers by Dr. Casper Wister, giving an account of his cruise among the Windward Islands in Mr. Henry C. Lea's yacht, the "Vega," is very fresh and delightful, combining the observations of an experienced traveller with the vivacity and humor that heighten the zest of narrative and description. A beautifully illustrated article on Colorado Springs, by G. R Buckman, tells the story of the great enterprises undertaken in Colorado by the "National Land and Improvement Company," and the consequent establishment and rapid growth of a city possessing unrivalled advantages of climate and scenery, and so organized as to exclude all the elements that render so many new towns in the West unsuited to the requirements of the better class of settlers as well as of invalids. "John Brown at Dutch Henry's Crossing" is the title of a paper by Prof. Leverett W. Spring, who brings to light many facts hitherto unknown or obscure in regard to "the most picturesque figure that has moved across the stage of American history." "A day in Tokio," by Charles Wood, is a bright and entertaining sketch, and there is a sensible and timely paper on Church-Music by Wm. F. Biddle.

The opening chapters of the new serial, "The Jewel in the Lotos," by the author of "Signor Monaldini's Niece," will be read with avidity by the many admirers of this charming writer. "Wee Joukydaidles" is the quaint title of a pathetic story by Lizzie W. Champney, while "Through the Storm," by Willis Boyd Allen, and "Mr. Holman Lunt's Prize," by Kate Upson Clark, belong to the class of Christmas stories which may be welcomed among the regular enjoyments of the season. The Monthly Gossip is unusually full of entertaining matter on a variety of topics, and the book notices include a long list of holiday publications, and will assist purchasers in making their selections.

THE

HANCOCK INSPIRATOR

THE BEST FEEDER KNOWN,

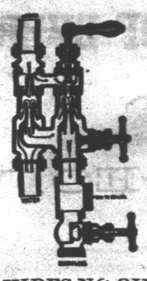
—FOR—

Stationary, Marine & Portable Boilers.

Has No Rival For Pumping Purposes

IS SIMPLE, RELIABLE AND ALWAYS IN ORDER.

CONSUMES LESS STEAM THAN ANY OTHER BOILER FEEDER KNOWN.



REQUIRES NO OILING

They will lift water 25 feet, and deliver to boiler at comparatively High or Low Pressure, as desired. No adjustment required for varying steam pressures. Has no movable parts to get out of order.

One important advantage of the Inspirator over a pump is that all the steam required to operate it is condensed in the water, thereby heating it and returning it all into the boiler, and enabling us to feed hot water to the boiler without the use of a heater (although a heater can be used with the Inspirator as well as with a pump). The Inspirator requires no repairs, no oiling, and is noiseless in its operation, whereas a pump requires repairs, it has to be oiled, is usually noisy, and all the steam used in operation is wasted. The only loss of steam by using the Inspirator is by radiation from the pipes, and this is no greater with the Inspirator than with the pump.
