—The whipping-post in Maryland was inaugurated in Baltimore on the 29th of January, 1883, seven stripes on his bare back having been administered with a cowhide at the city jail on Charles Foote, negro, convicted of wife-beating. Wife-beaters, take warning and curb your tempers, or you may pay a like penalty for your brutality.

—If you are sick, read the advertisement of "Wilsonia" on another page.

This is discovered to be nature's own remedy for the restoration of lost health. No medicine.

It is the greatest scientific discovery of the age, and is doing a most wonderful work among invalids, and those given up by physicians as incuracle.

—A California blacksmith was paring down the hoofs of an old family nag, which had grown very long, leaving hollow grooves beneath their outer rims. On cutting away this hollow shell six young living mice were found stowed away in the covered cavity. How they got there is more of a problem than how the apple got into the dumpling, or the chicken into the egg.

—The roads are a difficult topic to write about at this season of the year. If a reporter writes them up "bad," before his paper can be put to press, they are sure to freeze solid and be "good." If he pronounces them "good," "in fine condition," or anything of that sort, the weather is sure to change and render them intolerable by the time his paper is published. A weekly paper is altogether took slow for the subject, so we'll let it slide.

—A German, who only left the old country about a year ago, but has become very much Americanized, speaking nothing but bad English, recently remarked, as he bought some school books, that all his boys' names commenced with S, hence, that all their books and clothes were marked with that one letter. "I suppose your boys' names are Sam, Simon, Solomon, or some such names." "No; my boys' names all pegin mit an S, Shon, Shim, Shake and Sherry."

—St. Valentine's day is near at hand, and from appearances will be more generally observed this season than for many years past, and designs of the dainty love and friendship missives are more unique and elegant The latest designs in Valentines are mostly on the style of the beautifully decorated cards adorned with silken fringe borders and silk cord and tassels. In the esthetic line are varieties of pretty cards, which after serving their love mission as Valentines, will make admirable parlor mantel ornaments. Large variety for sale at J. C. Henry's Drug Store.

—"Hazle Kirke."

—Lent commences on Wednesday.

—Rain and sleet yesterday morning.

—To-Night at Music Hall—"Hazle Kirke."

—Sunday was more like a mild April day than a February one.

—Geologists can find no mercury in Simmons Liver Regulator.

—The February term of the Circuit Court for Talbot county meets to-day.

—Nausea relieved and Sick Headache cured by taking Simmons Liver Regulator.

—Mr. G. K. Benson has been appointed postmaster at St. Michaels, vice R. A. Dodson, deceased.

—Several of our citizens are repairing the sidewalks in front of their dwellings. Let the good work go on.

—"When the Clouds go Rolling By," is the title of a new song that promises to be as popular as "Grandfather's Clock" was.

—Remember, "Hazel Kirke" to-night at Music Hall. The New York Herald says "it is the grandest play ever put upon the stage."

—Mr. W. L. Hubbard starts in this issuk of the STAR an interesting account of his recent trip to the West Indies. It will be continued next week.

Hon. Robert M. McLane, M. C., will please accept our thanks for a copy of his speech on "American Shipping," made in the House, January 8th, 1883.

—Mr. Wm. B. Hardcastle, brother of Gen. E. L. F. Hardcastle, died at the residence of Gen. Hardcastle, in Easton, last Tuesday. He had for the past ten years been living in Missouri.

—Sunday was very warm and pleasant, with a shower in the forenoon. Sunday night we had more rain, and yesterday morning a sprinkle of snow and sleet. The traveling is anything but comfortable.

—Bishop Lay, whose illness at Port Deposite we noticed last week, reached home last Friday. From Port Deposite he went to Philadelphia and spent two days, before starting for Easton. He is much better, but far from well yet. His winter appointments have all been cancelled.

—Peter Miller, Jr., a coffee complected darkey, stole a pair of shoes from Nr. Henry Waikart, Saturday, and was committed for Court by Justice Robinson. After the hearing was over the darkey took "French leave," but was soon overhauled by Officers Grace and Griffin who landed him safely in jail.

—"Mother, did you ever play on the stage?" queried a Dover street 5-year old a few days since of his maternal parent.

"No, my child."

"Are you an actress?"

"No, darling; why do you ask me?"

"Because father said that when he came home real late the other night you played h—l."

—An Easton beau called at his lady's house rather early a few evenings since to take her to church, but found her in the kitchen busily engaged washing the supper dishes. Not being of a sentimental turn of mind but rather inclined to the practical, he pulled up his coat-sleeves and assisted her in the dish washing. That fellow will surely make a good husband.

—Friday was "ground-hog day." According to the old tradition if the ground-hog came out on that day and saw his shadow he would immediately return to his hole and lie there, as bad weather would be sure to follow; but if the day was cloudy the remainder of the winter would be mild. As Friday was a clear day, if the test holds good, we may expect bad weather for some time to come.

—Next month will be the time for the housewife to envelope her head in a shawl, and with a brush in one hand and a broom in the other assert her right to become "monarch of all she surveys" for the nonce, and the meek and gentle male portion of that household will have to acknowledge that women have rights "none dare to dispute" when she starts upon her annual house-cleaning trip.

—The annual statement of the Mutual Life Insurance Co., of New York, which appears in another column, shows that age does not wither its resources or enterprise, but on the contrary only serves to make it stronger. It now has assets amounting to $97,961,317.72 and more than $12,000,000 surplus. Its increase last year was over $17,000,000 and its payments upon policies $12,848,835. The magnitude of its transactions is unequalled by any other similar corporation on the face of the globe and the only wonder is where it will stop growing. The reduction in its premium rates, its liberality in the matter of lapsed or surrendered policies and the promptness with which death claims are adjusted and paid, place it far in advance of any other company in the estimation of the public. As a rule it costs no more to insure in a feeble one, but on the contrary it costs less to insure in the Mutual Life than in any other of the great companies. Where comparative cheapness is coupled with absolute safety, that is all the policy holder ought to require.

They Went After Ducks.

Last Monday two of our young men started from Easton on a gunning expedition at Bayside. Everything went well with them until the objective point was reached when their troubles commenced. After partaking of a substantial meal, such as only a Baysider can set before his guests, they hied out with guns and dogs to do sad havoc among the ducks that feed along the shores. Presently "quack, quack, quack," was heard to the right and both sports instantly brought their pieces to bear and "bang! bang!" sounded the pieces as they vomited forth their leaden contents. The aim was sure—the duck was dead. But what kind of a duck is it? "Dos" didn't know, neither did Frank, anyhow they both agreed it was a duck but of a new species. Then something was seen pushing its way among the reeds on the shore, and in less time than it takes to write it these deadshots had settled it. "Dos" waded in the water up to his knees and discovered he had killed the Baysider's ducking dog. The host just then came upon the scene and took in the situation at a glance.

"Who in thunder killed that air 'scovy duck?" he angrily queried.

"Oh! for ten minutes in Market Space!" was the wish of "Dos."

Both gunners were badly frightened.

"Hello! here's my dog shot! I wouldn't have took $50 for him." Poor consolation for the Eastonians.

Supper-time had arrived, the Nimrods were hungry but they dare not face the good wife of the Baysider. What could they do? Their host had left them. There they stood, when suddenly a bright idea came into the head of "Dos;" he would kill some game and cook and eat it on the spot. He waded out into the Bay to reconnoitre and discovered a large number of ducks resting on the surface of the water only about 100 feet distant.

"Hist! come this way," he said to his companion. "I will shoot to the right; you to the left." They fired simultaneously. Not a duck moved.

"Why what can be the matter with them?" they asked each other.

In a few moments a gawky, tow-haired fellow strode forward and asked angrily, "What in the devil air you shootin' at my decoy ducks, fur?"

That was too much. They sat down and wept bitter, briny, Easton tears. For them ducking had lost its charms, and they stealthily stole back to the place where they left their horse and carriage. In a few moments they were on their way back home, and only stopped long enough to buy a pair of "dippers" from a small boy along the road. They counted up the cost next day and found it as follows:

Powder and Shot,	$ 2.00
Carriage and Horse Hire	4.00
Muscovy duck,	1.00
Dog, killed by accident,	50.00
Damage to Decoys,	2.00
Pair of "Dippers,"	1.00
Worry and trouble,	93.00
Total,	$153.00

Return.

Lieut. Philip F. Powell, of the Ninth Cavalry, U. S. Army, arrived at "Ratcliffe," a few days ago, to visit his sister, Mrs. Col. Richard C. Holliday. Lieutenant Powell is a son of the late Col. Humphrey B. Powell, a distinguished lawyer of Leesburg, Virginia.

The story of his service in the U. S. Army on our frontier, and his steady promotion from the place of an enlisted man to the honorable rank he has attained, would read almost like a romance. Scarce a parallel in the history of the U. S. Army, as now constituted, could be found to his case. At an early age he enlisted in the Confederate Army, gallantly bearing himself in many a hard fought field, and was twice severely wounded. At the close of the war he read law in the office of Judge Parker, of Winchester, Va., and was in due course of time admitted to the Virginia bar, and shortly after settled in his native place, Leesburg, to practice his profession. He took place at once in the front ranks of the younger members of the bar, and the talents and decided ability he displayed gave hopeful promise of a not distant brilliant future. But soon tiring of what he feared might be the too slow promotion in the crowded ranks of the legal profession in Virginia, and as well as elsewhere in the South, his thoughts naturally inclined him to the profession of arms—in which he had already been schooled by a four years experience, in trying times, the most eventful period of the rains existence. He saw a "chance" for the realization of his ambition as a soldier—a commission in the U. S. Army. That "chance" was by enlisting as a private soldier, and making a record that should entitle him, sooner or later, to promotion. He took that chance and won. Pluck, patience, endurance, were the tests of his merit, and were the means alone by which he, step by step, rose from the ranks to a commissioned officer. He had "won his spurs" literally. He enlisted in the 6th Cavalry 8 years ago, and was shortly thereafter promoted to Sergeant-Major, the highest non-commissioned position. His intelligence, character, gentlemanly bearing, and high soldierly qualities were soon recognized and commended him to the consideration of the service, but patient waiting and long endurance were yet before him. His opportunity came at last, however. He obtained orders to report himself before an examining Board for promotion. This Board, composed of some of the most distinguished officers of the service, convened at Denver, Colorado, three years ago. As might be assumed he was subjected to the most thorough and rigid examination upon every requirement essential to an officer and a gentleman. The result gratified his earnest desires. The Board unanimously recommended him for promotion to a Lieutenancy. So highly creditable to him was the report of the Examining Board, that Congress, by an unexpected unanimity, removed his "disabilities" and his commission followed. He was appointed a Lieutenant in the 9th Cavalry and ordered to Fort Sill, Indian Territory, where his regiment is now stationed. In person, Lieut. Powell looks every inch the soldier. The best wishes of a large circle of friends in Talbot will follow him, not only in his advancement in his profession; but also in the new and happy relations in life, which rumor says he is soon to assume in leading to the altar one of the most charming ladies of Livingston county, New York.

March 9.—Fifth Word, "I thirst."

March 16.—Sixth Word, "It is finished."

March 23.—Good Friday—Seventh Word, "Father, into Thy hands I commend my spirit."

Sunday, at 11 A. M., morning prayer and sermon.

CORDOVA.

Granger's Hall, Sunday, Feb. 11.—Evening prayer and sermon at 3 P. M., and every other Sunday thereafter at the same hour.

Lent is the time when we should withdraw as much as possible from the company of others, from our ordinary business and care to examine ourselves as in the sight of the Searcher of all hearts. It is a time of frequent services, of frequent prayer, of frequent communings with God.

The Lord Jesus was the first to keep Lent, and even now He is saying to every one of us, "Come ye yourselves apart, and rest awhile."

For one who would be like Him such retirement is absolutely necessary.

Let us all try to be at the services, let us be more earnest in our prayers, let us study God's Holy Word more, and thus living we will truly prepare for death and for the resurrection of the just.

W. Y. BEAVEN, Rector.

For the Star.

"Dad" Goes for Bangs and Shingles.

MR. EDITOR:—The banging and shingling of the hair seems to have become a popular craze with our ladies, but if they knew with what disfavor this style is received by the male sex, we venture the assertion that the girls would dress their hair in a more modest and becoming manner. As a father of several daughters I have a right to advance the following reasons why I do not like bangs and shingles.

1. They make a woman look bold and brazen.

2. They give an idiotic expression to the face.

3. Instead of being pretty they are decidedly the opposite.

4. The hair is cut in such a manner that it will take many years for it to grow out in a natural way again.

5. They distort the features, and give the wearers anything but an intelligent face.

6. It is an old style; having been started in Paris about 9 years ago, and it is a thing of the past with the French ladies.

If the readers of THE STAR will send in their objections to this fashion I am sure the editor will publish them, and by this means we may discourage this abominable foolishness in our midst. DAD.

First-Class Store For Sale.

It will be seen from an advertisement which we publish this morning, that the Dry Goods establishment of Messrs. J. J. Jump & Co. is for sale. We understand the store will be sold at a bargain, and on very easy terms. We know of no better opening for any one who may wish to go into the dry goods trade. The room is one of the handsomest and best arranged on the Shore. The store is most desirably situated, and has done a heavy business from the start, and is now doing a heavy business. It is a splendid stand and best opening in the State. Mr. Jump does not want to renew the stock, on account of his age, but must do so in the Spring unless he sells out this winter. He offers a long lease on the store room to any one who may purchase the stock We consider this a rare chance for a number one stand.

What is Mind?

No matter! What is matter? Never mind! But you had better mind that cough or it will become a serious matter. The Baltimore, Md., Telegram says:—"New Life is the most remarkable discovery of modern times. Many astonishing cures have been effected by it. Its curative properties are wonderful." It is a sure cure for throat and lung diseases. It proves that consumption can be cured.

Reopening of the Methodist Protestant Church.

The Methodist Protestant Church, which has undergone a thorough repair, is now so so nearly completed that it will be reopened on the 11th of February with all-day services. The morning sermon will be preached by Rev. Dr. E. J. Drinkhouse, of Baltimore. This service will begin at 10½ o'clock. At 3 o'clock the regular reopenidg services will be conducted by a number of ministers and the congregation. The choir will render some choice music during this service. At 7½ o'clock, there will be a sermon by Rev. W. S. Hammond. A cordial invitation is extended to all to be present. The pastor of the church would be much gratified if the ministers of neighboring churches would participate in the services during the day, and uses this means for extending to them an invitation to be present. To the citizens of Easton, many of whom have made liberal contributions to pay for the repairs, he wishes to extend his thanks for their sympathy and material aid; and to the members of the church he desires to express his grateful appreciation of their generous responses to his appeals for the means to complete the work.

An Odd Street Scene.

He was seen in front of the office rubbing himself against the telegraph post like a flea-bitten dog. "What is wrong?" we ventured to ask. "Got 'em, gent," he said laconically; "have 'em every Spring, small lumps form about the rectum; sore to the touch; they itch like blazes; a telegraph pole's like an oasis in the desert to me." Here then was poor humanity suffering from a complaint which a few applications of Swayne's Ointment for Itching Piles would have thoroughly eradicated.

IN MEMORIAM OF S. G. S.

By Her Father.

When earth bro't forth from chaos dark
A loving child of spotless mould,
She breathed a life, 'twas but a spark,
Her future ne'er was told.

When nature's hand had made a prey,
She lamented not the path she trod;
Though pain and anguish had its sway,
She trusted to a righteous God.

At last she died, a martyred soul,
And left sad tears upon her grave;
Shall memory now her form unfold
And say she's gone among the brave?

Could I but speak her soon return
And ask that heavenly time,
When and where that I might learn
To give my all, 'tis her's not mine.

But Oh! Live on, my God would say,
Yes I who bid her come
To live with me from dwy to day,
It is her happy home.

Father, thy child you must forget
And strive thy soul to leaven,
To see her here you'd not regret,
She's honored now in Heaven.

Every citizen of the counties of Talbot, Queen Anne's and Caroline is hereby invited to come to our commodious and well supplied establishment and judge for themselves whether or not they can get better supplied in Holiday supplies and staple articles in our line than anywhere else on the peninsula.

In Books alone we have a larger and better selected stock than all the dealers on the shore combined.

In Fancy Articles we have the finest display of any store between the two bays.

In Fine and Staple Stationery, we carry the fullest stock of any house south of Philadelphia and Baltimore.

Our Holiday stock is selected from the largest and best importing houses in New York and other great cities. Come and see us and we will try to make you happy. Send us your address and we will send you a copy of our new and humorous illustrated paper, "Easton Christmas Bells."
