HANNIBAL,
No. 2191.

I would call the attention of the breeders of fine horses to the STANDARD-BRED HORSE HANNIBAL, No. 2191, (foal four years old, 2.26) by Woodford Mambrino, 2.21½; Dam, Lady McKenny; also the dam of Nil Desperandum, 2.24¼.

For size, speed and disposition Hannibal is the equal of any horse, and the best that ever stood in Maryland.

"What's his Number? We are now just entering upon the season of the year when cross-roads, blacksmith shops, village barrooms and other places are ornamented with an immense amount of "horse literature." A great many of them will be announced as "standard bred trotters," and frequent reference will be made to the Trotting Register to prove it. The "pedigrees" will contain an overwhelming array of distinguished horses, and never think of stopping short of the Godolphin Arabian. All that is needed to prick the bubble is simply to ask the owner "What's his number?"—[Wallace Monthly, Vol. IX.

I am authorized by Mr. T. W. Martin, the owner of Hannibal, to give two hundred dollars in premiums to the best three colts to be shown August, 1885. To the best three years old, in harness, $100; to the best two years old, $50; and to the best yearling, $50. To those having his colts I would say, please have them in readiness, as I will see that the money is forthcoming. Hannibal will make the season of 1883 on the same terms as last year.

TERMS.

Will make the season in Talbot county at $30 to insure. Owners parting with mares will forfeit insurance money. Mares from a distance, or out of the county, will be charged $30 the season, with the privilege of return next year free, in case of failure, provided the horse is in my possession. Groom fee, 50 cents.

SIMMONS LIVER REGULATOR

For Dyspepsia, Constipation, Inactive Liver, Chronic Diarrhœa, Jaundice, Impurity of the Blood, Fever and Ague, Malaria, and all Diseases caused by Derangement of Liver, Bowels and Kidneys.

SYMPTOMS OF A DISEASED LIVER.

Bad Breath; Pain in the Side, sometimes the pain is felt under the Shoulder-blade, mistaken for Rheumatism; general loss of appetite; Bowels generally costive, sometimes alternating with fluxes; the head is troubled with pain, is dull and heavy, with entire loss of memory, accompanied with a painful sensation of having omitted something which ought to have been done; a slight, dry cough and hurried breath is sometimes an attendant, often mistaken for consumption; the patient complains of dizziness and indigestion; nervous, easily startled; feet cold or burning, sometimes a prickly sensation of the skin exists; spirits are low and despondent, and, although satisfied that exercise would be beneficial, yet one can hardly summon up fortitude to try it. In fact, disinclination to every thing. Several of the above symptoms attend almost every case, but cases have occurred where but few of them existed, yet examination after death has shown the Liver to have been extensively deranged.

It should be used by all persons, old and young, whenever any of the above symptoms appear.

Persons Traveling or Living in Unhealthy Localities, by taking a dose occasionally to keep the Liver in healthy action, will avoid all Malarial Attacks, Fevers, Chills, Nausea, Drowsiness, Depression of Spirits, etc. It will invigorate like a glass of wine, but is no intoxicating beverage.

If You have eaten anything hard of digestion, or feel sleepy after meals, or sleepless at night, take a dose and you will be relieved.

Time and Doctors' Bills will be saved by always keeping the Regulator in the House!

For, whatever the ailment may be, a thoroughly safe purgative, alterative and tonic can never be out of place. The remedy is harmless and does not interfere with business or pleasure.

IT IS PURELY VEGETABLE,

And has all the power and efficacy of Calomel or Quinine, without any of the injurious after effects.

A Governor's Testimony.

Simmons Liver Regulator has been in use in my family for some time, and I am satisfied it is a valuable addition to the medical science.

J. GILL SHORTER, Governor of Ala.

Hon. Alexander H. Stephens, of Ga., says: Have derived some benefit from the use of Simmons Liver Regulator, and wish to give it a further trial.

"The only Thing that never fails to Relieve."—I have used many remedies for Dyspepsia, Liver Affection and Debility, but never have found anything to benefit me to the extent Simmons Liver Regulator has. I hear from Minnesota to Georgia for it, and would send further for such a medicine, and would advise all who are similarly affected to give it a trial as it seems the only thing that never fails to relieve.

P. M. JARNEY, Minneapolis, Minn.

Dr. R. W. Mason says: From actual experience in the use of Simmons Liver Regulator in my practice I have been and am satisfied to use and prescribe it as a purgative medicine.

THE WALTER A. WOOD
IMPROVED
Twine Self-Binding Harvester
THE FIRST SUCCESSFUL
Twine-Binder Put Upon the Market,
AND
Acknowledged the Best in the Country.

This Self-Binder first perfected in 1880, and proved by three successful harvests to meet the utmost desires of farmers, enabling them without trouble to harvest their whole crop independently of labor combinations, is again offered to the farmers of Talbot and adjacent counties with the confident assurance that it will give them entire satisfaction. Of the numerous Walter A. Wood Twine-Binders sold in Talbot county in 1882 and warranted, not one single machine was returned.

One of the machines has been put up and may be seen at the Carriage Factory of Wm. Mason & Sons, near the Easton Market House, and farmers are invited to call and inspect it.

TESTIMONIALS.

We append a few certificates of Talbot farmers who bought and used the Walter A. Wood Twine Self-Binding Harvester in 1882:

TRAPPE, MD., April, 1883.

Messrs. Roe & Roe—Gents: The Walter A. Wood Self-Binder I purchased of you last season works to my entire satisfaction cutting about 100 acres without breaking or getting out of order. It is so simple that any person that can drive a team can operate it. It is as light draft as any machine I know, and binds three sizes of sheaves, all uniform and tight.

SAMUEL J. GRIFFIN.

LANDING NECK, Talbot co., April, 1883.

Messrs. Roe & Roe—Sirs: The Walter A. Wood Self-Binder I purchased of you last season gave me perfect satisfaction. I cut my crop with very little labor to myself or my team. I witnessed the trial at Col. F. C. Goldsborough's of several of the leading machines sold here and am satisfied that my machine is the peer of any machine I have yet seen work, and I would cheerfully recommend the Wood to any person that may need a Binder, believing as I do that it is the lightest and most desirable machine on the market, and the easiest operated, the driver having complete control of the binder.

CHARLES UNDERWOOD.

EASTON, April, 1883.

Messrs. Roe & Roe—Gents: Desiring to purchase a Self-Binding Machine last year, it was sometime before I could decide what machine to buy. I finally settled on the Wood, and I am free to say I have never regretted my choice. The machine worked to my satisfaction, runs light, ties tight, and binds a uniform sheaf.

ABNER MORTON.

EASTON, April, 1883.

Messrs. Roe & Roe, Agts.—Sirs: The Walter A. Wood Self-Binder purchased of you last season gave me perfect satisfaction. I cut 117 acres in seven days, using at no time more than 3 horses, and they all small, weighing about 800 pounds each.

Poetry.

PROPHECY.

I have heard it in the trees,
Where the branches gray and bare,
From the sun of place quivering,
Stand like phantoms in the air;
Ghosts of beauty dice so fair.

I have heard the distant echoes,
Faint and far, but exquisite sweet,
Telling that the summer cometh,
Crowned with ecstasy complete;
And earth thrills beneath my feet.

I have seen the tidings written
On the far blue of the skies;
I have heard the brooklet singing
Softly 'neath its roof of ice,
Of the coming mysteries.

"Summer's coming, coming, coming,"
Speed the news from tree to tree;
Clouds of heaven, bear it onward,
River, tell it to the sea,
"Summer comes! the earth is free."

Miscellaneous.

Fashion Notes.

Chip bonnets are worn.

Mitts have very long wrists.

Spanish laces are no longer fashionable.

Every kind of plaid and check is worn.

The newest coiffures show more of the forehead.

Long jersey gloves of finest wool are much worn.

In millinery, flowers are almost superceded by leaves.

Chenille bids fair to hold its own as a popular trimming.

All the Oriental laces and darned laces are much worn.

A new shade of velvet is called "Height of Fancy Blue."

Pongees, plain, printed, and embroidered, are worn again.

Handkerchiefs are knotted about the throat in the "Pretty Peggy" style.

Lace and embroidery is as much the rage this season as it was last summer.

As many as forty-two different colors and shades appear in the new spring gloves.

Cock's-comb ribbons of two contrasting colors are used for corsage and neck bows.

Ombre or shaded effects appear in some of the new French millinery and dress goods.

The long wrists of mitts and gloves have a fanciful finish of shirring, puffs and ribbon.

The loveliest shades of salmon, rose, corn blue and water-green are seen in the new China crape.

Cheviots come in plaids, checks, hair-lines, stripes and mixtures. The colorings are fine and subdued.

Black silk stockings with gold thread clocks and embroidery are among importations of fancy hosiery.

Jet sequins form the ornamental fringe of black tulle tabliers and draperies on black evening toilets.

Bustles and crinolettes grow larger, while skirt draperies are made more ample to accommodate them.

As many as eight different colored ribbon cockades with cock's-comb ends are seen on some new bonnets.

The mingling of two or more laces in one fichu, ruche or collarette for the neck has become quite common.

Cockades of ribbon in two contrasting colors, the ends of the loops cut into cock's-combs, trim many bonnets.

A late fancy is to use many jet, gold, silver, or jewel-headed pins to decorate bows of lace or muslin for evening wear.

He Got the Desired Information.

It was in the smoking car on the New York Central. There was one chap who was blustering a great deal and telling of how many duels he had fought, and behind him sat a small man reading a magazine.

"Sir!" said the big man, as he wheeled around, "what would you do if you were challenged?"

"Refuse," was the quiet reply.

"Oh! I thought as much. Refuse and be branded a coward! What if a gentleman offered you the choice of a duel or a public horse-whipping—then what?"

"I'd tak the whipping."

"Ah! thought so; thought so from the looks of you. Suppose, sir, you foully slandered me?"

"I never slander."

"Then, sir, suppose I had coolly and deliberately insulted you; what would you do?"

"I'd rise up this way, put down my book this way, and reach over this way and take him by the nose as I take you, and just give it a three-quarter twist—just so!"

When the little man let go of the big man's nose, the man with the white hat on began to crouch down to get away from the bullets, but there was no shooting.

The big man turned red, then pale, then looked the little man over and remarked:

"Certainly—of course—that's it, exactly."

And then the conversation turned on the general prosperity of the country.

The Effect of Association.

Father had only been dead a week, when mother said to her little boy:

"Will my little son go to the woodshed and get mother a few sticks to finish boiling up the tea-kettle?"

"I don't like to go into the woodshed, mamma," said Benny, looking down.

"Why, my son?"

"Because there is a pair of father's old shoes on the beam out there, and I don't like to see them."

"Why, Benny, do you mind the old shoes any more than you do your father's coat and hat up-stairs?"

"Because," said Benny, the tears filling his blue eyes, "they look as if they wanted to kick me."

The Roman people once gave a public pet a public funeral. The distinguished animal was a raven, which flew every day into the Forum, perched on the rostra, and saluted Tiberius, Germanicus and Drusus by their names. This he did for years, till a shoemaker by accident killed the bird; the people killed the cobbler, and the corpse of this bird was placed on a bier, richly decorated, and carried on the shoulders of two Moors, with music playing before them, to a fine chariot in the street, the Appian Way. There was then placed on the burned, and his ashes covered with garlands of flowers.

Trained horses have shown in England that they are capable of jumping great distances. Gimcrack (almost thoroughbred) jumped a hedge at Warwick; Calverthorpe, thirty-six feet over a hedge; Bassford Blue, the King of the Valley, thirty-five feet over five hedges in a field; Jerusalem, Liberty, sixty-four feet at Liverpool; Peter Simple, thirty-seven feet at Stockton.

Truth.

A BEAUTIFUL ILLUSTRATION OF ITS POWER.

The following beautiful illustration of the power of truth, is from the pen of S. H. Hammond, formerly editor of the Albany State Register. He was an eye-witness of the scene in one of the higher courts of New York:

A little girl, nine years of age, was offered as a witness against a prisoner, who was on trial for a felony committed in her father's house.

"Now, Emily," said the counsel for the prisoner, upon her being offered as a witness, "I desire to know if you understand the nature of an oath?"

"I don't know what you mean," was the simple answer.

"There, your honor," said the counsel addressing the court, "is anything further necessary to demonstrate the validity of my objection? This witness should be rejected. She does not comprehend the nature of an oath."

"Let us see," said the judge. "Come here, my daughter."

Assured by the kind tone and manner of the judge, the child stepped toward him, and looked confidingly up into his face with a calm, clear eye, and with a manner so artless and frank that it went straight to the heart.

"Did you ever take an oath?" inquired the judge. The little girl stepped back with a look of horror, and the red blood mantled in a blush all over her face as she answered:

"No, sir."

She thought that he intended to inquire if she ever blasphemed.

"I do not mean that," said the judge, who saw her mistake; "I mean, were you ever a witness before?"

"No, I was never in court before," was the answer.

He handed her the Bible, open.

"Do you know that book, my daughter?"

She looked at it and answered, "Yes, sir; it is the Bible."

"Do you ever read it?" he asked.

"Yes, sir; every evening."

"Can you tell me what the Bible is?" inquired the judge.

"It is the word of the great God," she answered.

"Well, place your hand upon this Bible, and listen to what I say;" and he repeated slowly and solemnly the oath usually administered to witnesses.

"Now," said the judge, "you have sworn as a witness, will you tell me what will befall you if you do not tell the truth?"

"I shall be shut up in State prison," answered the child.

"Anything else?" asked the judge.

"I shall never go to heaven," she replied.

"How do you know this?" asked the judge again.

The child took the Bible and turning rapidly to the chapter containing the commandments, pointed to the injunction, "Thou shalt not bear false witness against thy neighbor."

"I learned that before I could read."

"Has any one talked with you about your being a witness here against this man?" inquired the judge.

"Yes, sir," she replied. "My mother heard they wanted me to be a witness, and last night she called me to her room and asked me to tell her the ten commandments, and then we knelt down together, and she prayed that I might understand how wicked it was to bear false witness against my neighbor, and that God would help me, a little child, to tell the truth as it was before Him. And when I came up here with father, she kissed me, and told me to remember the ninth commandment, and that God would hear every word that I said."

"Do you believe this?" asked the judge, while a tear glistened in his eye and his lips quivered with emotion.

"Yes, sir," said the child, with a voice and manner that showed her conviction of the truth was perfect.

"God bless you, my child," said the judge; "you have a good mother. This witness is competent," he continued. "Were I on trial for my life and innocent of the charge against me, I would pray to God for such witnesses as this. Let her be examined."

She told her story with the simplicity of a child, as she was, but there was a directness about it that carried conviction of its truth to every heart. She was rigidly cross-examined. The counsel plied her with indefinite and ingenious questioning, but she varied from her first statement in nothing. The truth as spoken by that little child was sublime. Falsehood and perjury had preceded her. The prisoner had entrenched himself in lies. Witnesses had falsified facts in his favor, and villainy had manufactured for him a sham defense. But before her testimony it was scattered like chaff. The little child, for whom the mother had prayed for strength to be given to speak the truth as it was before God, broke the cunning devices of matured villainy like a potter's vessel. The strength that her mother prayed for was given, and the sublime and terrible simplicity—terrible, I mean to the prisoner and his associate—with which she spoke, was like a revelation from God himself.

Little Billy's Mean Trick.

"Where is your little Billy?" asked an Austin Sunday school teacher of little Johnny McGillikins.

"He is home in bed. He is too sick to come out, and I am glad of it," responded Johnny.

"Why do you speak so unkindly of Billy?"

"Because he played me a mean trick."

"What was it?"

"Billy told me that he said the boy that ate the most meat for dinner should have the biggest piece of watermelon. I beat Billy all to pieces eating meat. He didn't hardly eat any meat; when the watermelon came in, I—boo-hoo—had eaten so much meat that I had no room for the melon; and Billy, who hadn't eaten any meat hardly, ate up nearly the whole watermelon, and now he is sick and I'm so glad it ain't me."

A Superior Being Anyway.

A tiny little fellow, living in an Eastern town, put a way out on the borders where circumstances did not come with importance, and who had never seen a soldier in full rig, was sent to the door by his mother, who heard the bell ring. It was Col. S——, in full regimentals, as it was the day of the inauguration of the Governor.

"Tell your mother, little man, to please come to the door a moment. I want to speak to her."

Charlie went to state and appeared before his mother with the most awe-struck face.

"Mamma, there is some one at the door with a—a—a—"

"Who is it, my son?"

"I don't know, but I think it is God!"

Texas has a million sheep of land to fix up good titles.

Road Law.

A case affecting the responsibility of county commissioners, for the maintenance of the public roads in good condition, has just been tried in Harford county. Henry G. Lehrden, in company with Judge Stump, was traveling in a buggy from Havre de Grace to the farm of the latter outside of the town. They overtook a wagon loaded with canned goods, to Gover's Mill, and passed it safely. They shortly afterwards saw two wagons, also loaded with cans, coming down the hill. They might have passed safely, but the rattling of the cans frightened their horses, which backed and, wheeling suddenly around, precipitated the buggy and occupants into a gulley, inflicting injuries on Lehrden for which he brought suit against the board of county commissioners of Harford county.

It was proved that there was not more than two feet clear space between the buggy wheels and the gulley, and the wagon was as near the other side of the road as it could safely go. Judge Stump, who testified, thought the gulley was within the line of the road. Another witness, who had measured it, said the road at the spot where the accident occurred, was 16 feet from a tree on one side to the gulley on the other side of the road. The defence offered proof to show there was no negligence on the part of the county commissioners, that much money had been expended on it, that at the point of the accident there were 27 feet of clear safe roadway, 21 feet covered by wagon tracks, room enough for a careful driver to have passed the wagon, etc. The court instructed the jury that if the road was a public road, in bad condition not mended and repaired, and that in consequence of such condition of the road the injuries accrued, whilst traveling with proper care and caution, the plaintiff could recover. The jury was further instructed that if the road was narrow and there was a deep and dangerous hole or gulley on one side of it, and a rail or barrier on that side was necessary for property security of travelers and would have prevented the injury, and there was no such rail or barrier, the plaintiff could recover. The jury gave a verdict in favor of the plaintiff and awarded him damages to the amount of $381.66.

If the law of this case be correctly laid down, and we suppose it is, it will behoove our county authorities to look after a number of dangerous places on our roads, where in some places two vehicles can't pass each other on the road at all, and where accidents are liable, particularly at night.

Calling on the Governor.

J. M. D. Kelly, clerk, and Jim Hewitt, sheriff of Carroll county, came to Atlanta and determined to call on Governor Stephens. The hall door of the mansion was open, and the visitors, noticing two men at the other end of the hall, walked in. As they passed the threshhold they bowed and touched their hats gracefully. The men at the lower end did the same.

"They mocked us to go in this parlor," said Kelly, turning to the right and walking in. After sitting there awhile Hewitt said:

"Are you sure that fellow told us to come in here?"

"Yes," said Kelly, "but I'll go ask him again."

As Kelly walked out of the parlor door he saw a man walking out of a door on the same side, at the other end of the hall.

"Did you go in there?" Kelly asked, beckoning back to the parlor. Instantly the man at the other end beckoned back to the parlor, and Kelly re-entered it.

"He says right in here, Jim. I saw him again!"

Another long wait. At last both visitors got uneasy and determined to try it again. As they walked out into the hall, two men entered it again from the same side lower down. Hewitt and Kelly again motioned towards the parlor. Both the strange men pointed to the parlor. They started back, when Kelly stopped suddenly, gazed intently at the two men, and then shook his head. The bald-headed man down the hall did the same thing. He then lifted his leg and the bald-headed man below did the same thing.

"Look here, Jim," said he, "I'll be swamped if we ain't been talking to ourselves all the time. That end of the house is a looking-glass."—[Atlanta Constitution.

THAT.

The Chester county, Pa., Democrat says: "We don't hear much now-a-days about the "dead" Democratic party. The papers, just now, are overflowing with obituary notices of a dead Congress. But that is a Republican funeral. We hear nothing of a Democratic funeral or of a dead Democratic party. The fact is, the Democratic party is a very lively party just now, and the Democratic nag has come out of the spring race the winning horse. With a good record, well established as the winning horse, the Democratic nag surveys the whole field with complacency and finds the surroundings and the prospects cheerful and bright. In the new Congress he sees in the House of Representatives a Democratic majority over the Republicans of seventy-two, and a majority over all of fifty-nine. He sees also, that, should the next Presidential election be carried to the House of Representatives a Democrat would be chosen. In looking over the State Legislatures he sees twenty-one of the thirty-eight Legislatures with a Democratic majority on joint ballot, and looking over the executive heads of these thirty-eight States he finds twenty-five of them with Democratic Governors. "The Grand Old Party" having dwindled down to twelve governors in all the United States. The Democratic nag sees all this, sniffs victory in the air, and impatiently awaits the blowing of the Presidential bugle.

Resemblances that Made Trouble.

A letter intended for the Sheriff of Dane county, Wisconsin, sent to the Sheriff of Dade county. It authorized the attachment of the stock of Charles Hudson, dry goods, at Wauneka, Dane county. The attachment was made on the stock of Charles Hudson, dry goods, at Wauneka, Dade county. It is a little remarkable that two counties being named so nearly alike should each have a town of nearly the same, and that same very peculiar. It is still more remarkable that in each town there should be a dealer in dry goods of the name of Charles Hudson.

Catechisms were compiled in the eighth or ninth century; Luther's were published in 1529 and 1530. The catechism of the Church of England at first contained only the baptismal vow, the creed, the ten commandments and the Lord's prayer with explanation, but an explication of the sacraments was added by the bishops in obedience to an order made by James I.

STRENGTH

Be thoroughly well, a healthy, vigorous man or woman, capable of supporting a family, able to do a day's labor without undue exertion, able to enjoy life, able to say "I feel like a man," "I feel as if I had the strength!" If you are broken down, have lost energy, or feel as if life had lost its charm, take BROWN'S IRON BITTERS, which is a true tonic, a genuine preparation, and a reliable remedy, recommended for all "being of service."

Jas. M. Fremont Sr., Baltimore.

During the war I was injured in the stomach by a piece of a shell, and have suffered dreadfully ever since. About four years ago I was so nervous and weak, and the best doctors in Baltimore had given me up to die, and I could not live. I was advised to try Brown's Iron Bitters, and for over three months not one solid food could I take, but I took Brown's Iron Bitters and now eat three times a day, and am able to get up and go around and am rapidly improving.

G. TRUMPF.

BROWN'S IRON BITTERS is a complete and sure remedy for Indigestion, Dyspepsia, Malaria, Weakness and all diseases requiring a true, reliable, non-alcoholic tonic. It invigorates the blood, gives new life to the stomach and tone to the nerves.
