The Republican Citizen.

EXECUTION OF A COLORED MAN IN NORTH CAROLINA.—Struggle for Life.—A letter of the 15th inst., from Tarboro', North Carolina, to the Richmond State Journal, gives the following particulars of the execution at Tarboro' on Friday last, of Lewis Hines, colored, for the outrage of a young white girl named Sarah L. Johnson, on the 29th of April last:

"When conducted to the scaffold the condemned man made no confession, but did not deny his guilt. A deputy sheriff then adjusted the rope, but so loosely that when the criminal was swung off the knot came beneath his chin. His legs were not pinioned. When he fell he struggled fearfully. By extraordinary exertion the suspended man seized hold of the rope at his throat with one of his hands. He turned round and round, and succeeded in getting his feet back on the platform from which he had just been hurled. Terrible excitement prevailed among the spectators while the unfortunate wretch was endeavoring to regain his feet; but as the stern decree of the law had to be carried out, the sheriff rushed upon the scaffold and pushed the clinging feet of the wretch from the edge of the platform. He then continued swinging for seventeen minutes, when life was declared extinct. The man was strangled."

CAST OUT.—The Paradise of Radicalism is not like that above, where, once admitted, there is no danger of future dispossession. Whoever enters the heaven of the Union, and sits down with such saints as Butler, Scheneck, Drake, and other Radical angels, must remember that he is only a tenant at will, and that the slightest deviation from the path of Radical rectitude may hurl him from the companionship of this angel host into the fathomless limbo, where wander the spirits of honest and civilized men. Georgia which has fallen from her high estate, is a warning monument of what a State may come to, which forsakes the path of political righteousness. With one foot within the door, and her nose inhaling the genial temperature within the capital, she has been suddenly thrust out, and must put herself in sack cloth and ashes, go down on all fours, and permit the down-trodden African to ride her—booted and spurred—before she can ever hope again to enter the celestial city. Let this be a solemn admonition to the other States in the Union! If Georgia why not Tennesee? If Tennesee, why not Maryland and Kentucky? If Maryland and Kentucky, why not any and every Conservative State in the Union? Behold the image, the great brazen image, already nearly turned black which Radicalism has set up? Whoever falls not down and worships the same, he shall be cast out of the Radical Congressional heaven, no matter how ancient and loyal his citizenship therein.—Statesman.

Astronomers are uncommonly busy of late in studying the sun. Those who placed implicit confidence in all they say will be interested in knowing that the atmosphere of the solar orb is just now "in a highly excited condition," and that "it is predicted that before the end of next year some terrible effects will be experienced from a column of magnectic light," which already extends half way to our planet, and is rapidly coming on. It is supposed that when that column reaches us, something or somebody will be electrified.

While the counsel for the prisoner in a criminal trial in Philadelphia, on Wednesday, was making his argument, one of the jurors started up and exclaimed, "I say he's not guilty." The Judge rebuked the juror and fined him $100, although he said, in justification of himself, that he was hard of hearing, and misunderstood the attorney, and that he was never in a court of justice before, and at all events did not intend to do wrong.
