THE FIFTEENTH AMENDMENT.

For weeks and months past it has been announced, that the requisite number of State Legislatures had voted in favor of the Fifteenth Amendment to make it a part of the Federal Constitution; and, yet there has been no proclamation by the Secretary of State or the President, announcing to the country this radical change in our form of government.

The radicals in this locality, relying upon the fact that the vote of States—in and out of the Union—in favor of the iniquity, on compulsion or of free will—prior to our corporation election—had, according to radical tactics, adopted the measure, were in a feverish state of excitement, and were devoutly praying for a proclamation from the President announcing universal negro suffrage, as their only hope for the corporation spoils. But the proclamation did not, for some cause, come to release them from the rule of a majority of their white fellow citizens.

An election is to come off in Connecticut for Governor and other State officers, on the 1st of April, and although there is only a small negro population in that State, the radicals are there, also, looking anxiously for the proclamation, because it may possibly add several hundred votes to their ranks, and secure to them the State spoils.—That State has again, and again, by a direct vote—the last time, we believe, by a majority of some 6,000—indicated the opposition of her people to negro suffrage; and we, therefore, await with some interest to see what may be the result of the election on the first proximo, with or without the proclamation of the adoption of the Fifteenth Amendment.

But why the delay in making the fact, if it be a legal fact, that the Amendment has been adopted, officially known to the country? Do the corrupt revolutionists in Washington begin to fear that their programme will not work, and that their standing armies and Freedmen's Bureaus must be perpetuated in order to secure a monopoly of the new voters, made such for partisan purposes, only? If the Amendment has been adopted, why not make official announcement of the fact? The delay is certainly singular, if not inexplicable. Possibly the radicals are meditating a reactionary policy. We now hear of a move to reconstruct Tennessee, although never out of the Union, and now fully represented in Congress! The radical Congress, however, is omnipotent. It can one day declare a State in the Union, and the next day declare it out of the Union. The Congress has unlimited power according to the theory and practice of radicalism. It can build up and tear down—construct, reconstruct and demolish States as children do their block houses, or as a wanton may change her paramour; and it may be that if they now begin to fear that they can only secure the negro vote at the point of the bayonet, they will turn all the Southern States out in the cold again, and recommence the work of reconstruction, leaving to each State the right enjoyed under their anti-bellum constitutions, to determine what class of persons shall be voters; for, these revolutionists would never consent to an increase of the political power of the South, resulting from universal negro suffrage, except upon the expectation that the solid negro vote would be cast in the interest of the radical party. We cannot, therefore, tell what a day or a week may bring forth, in the ever changing policy of a party governed by no patriotic motive or statesman-like principle. It is quite within the range of possibility that the President may never make proclamation of the adoption of the XV. Amendment, so called. In any event, however, it will be the duty of the democratic party and of all honest patriots to unite in a determined effort to rescue the government from the hands of a party which for years past, has neglected all the great interest of the country and trampled upon the rights of the States and the liberties of the people, in their desperate effort to perpetuate their political ascendency.

Murdock for 1 acre along the Monococy, to be used as a Station, $50, to Mr. Geo. Murdock for 2 acres 3 roods and 10 perches, $1,000, to Jeremiah C Cramer, for 5 acres 3 roods and 11 perches, $2,200; to Mrs. Ann M. Layer for 6 acres and 27 perches, $3,000.

ARRIVALS.—Gen. B. T. Johnson, Hon. J. H. Bradley, and J. P. Poe, arrived in this city on Monday evening last, and were present at Court on Tuesday morning, arranging with other counsel and the Court for the appointment of a day for the trial of an important law case.—Capt. G. K. Shellman, of Lynchburg, a former member of our bar, also, arrived in this city on Monday evening. He was among the first to volunteer in defence of the rights of the South, and remained in the service of the Confederate government till the close of the war. We remember parting with him in Richmond to join his command, on the evening before the evacuation of that city. His many friends in this city gave him a cordial welcome on his return, for the first time, to his old home, since the close of the war.

RAMSBURG'S IMPROVED SUPER PHOSPHATE.—On Friday last we paid a visit to the Super Phosphate manufacturing establishment of Messrs. Ramsburg & Miller, located on the railroad about three-fourths of a mile from this city. The building, erected and fitted up, with the necessary machinery for manufacturing their Phosphate, and costing some $7,000, is about 100 feet long by from 40 to 70 feet wide. A forty-horse power engine is used for propelling the bone crusher, the burrs which grind, and the bolting apparatus. We were informed that the firm were manufacturing, at the time, about two tons of their improved Phosphate each day, and have capacity for larger production. At this establishment the farmers of our vicinity can procure the ground bone, as it comes pure and simple from the mill, under their own eyes; and purchase of the firm all the chemicals for their own manufacture of fertilizers; or they can be furnished, as we suppose, at a cheaper rate the article prepared by the firm, which we are induced to believe will prove to be a first-class fertilizer and precisely what it is represented to be by the manufacturers. From conversation with Mr. Ramsburg, the operator of the factory, we infer that he is well posted and understands all about the various fertilizers, the process of their manufacture, and the ingredients of which they are composed. This is a home enterprize; the members of the firm are to "the manor born," known to our people, and we bespeak for them a fair trial and liberal encouragement at the hands of our farmers.

ACCIDENTS.—We copy the following chapter of accidents from the Examiner:

One day last week an accident occurred at the lime kilns on 'Mt. Prospect Farm,' near Lewistown, the propety of Mr. G. J. Doll, of this city, which came near resultiug in the death of Mr. Jacob Eichleberger. Mr. Wm. Bowers was carting coal into the kiln, and by some mishap the horse and loaded cart fell in, smashing the cart and killing the horse. Mr. Eichleberger was in the kiln at the time of the accident arranging the coal, but fortunately escaped unhurt.

Last Thursday, Samuel Chew, an employee on the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad, met with a painful, though not dangerous, accident. He was quarrying stone near Mrs. Brengle's Lime Kiln, and whilst attempting to prize a stone out with an iron bar, his hold slipped, causing him to fall forward, and striking his hand on a sharp stone, tore a deep gash in the palm about two inches in length. A portion of the stone stuck in the incision were it remained until the arrival of Dr. Chas. Smith, who took it out.

Last Saturday, a little son about six years old, of Mr. E. Louis Cramer, residing in West Third St., met with an accident which resulted in breaking his collar bone. He was playing in the hay mow and while thus engaged fell through, striking the wheel of a buggy, with the above result, but as he said nothing about it the injury sustained was not discovere by his parents until the next day. Dr. Smith rendered all necessary aid to the little sufferer.

Deaths.

Departed this transitory life, on the 2nd of February, near Liberty, JULIA A., beloved wife of Richard W. Simpson, and youngest daughter of Rev. Rezin and Ann S. Hammond, of Charlestown, Indiana, aged 22 years, leaving a devoted husband and five children to mourn their irreparable loss. In chronicling the demise of this most inestimable and venerated friend, ah! too well do I feel that I must indeed fail to give a just tribute to her memory. In taking a retrospective view and realizing the many virtues, and amiable qualities which adorned, and were so highly prominent in her character—her fervent, untiring zeal, and exemplary piety—her anxiety and solicitude for the welfare and happiness of her husband, chileren, parents, brothers, sisters, and all with whom she was associated—her unbounded hospitality and kindness to her friends—her munificence to the poor. And with what fidelity she discharged her duty in all the relations of life it pleased God to place her.—Oh, how forcibly and poignantly the thought is suggested to my mind. Who can fill the void occasioned by her death? who can supply her place in the affection of her loving and most devoted husband, and in the hearts of those dear, affectionate and interesting children, and so tenderly and faithfully administer to all their wants and comforts? Who so competent to instruct them in the paths of virtue, piety and useful knowledge, as their tender and most loving mother? It was an impressive spectacle to behold her, ere she retired, to assemble them around her, and bid them kneel, severally, at her feet, and ask forgiveness, in their childlike innocence, of all their omissions and commissions of the day, and implore at the throne of mercy, protection during the night. This duty, in particular, was never neglected, unless prevented by sickness. May our dear, adorable Lord deign, from his high and holy tabernacle, to appoint her still the guardian spirit of her dear, motherless little ones. How sad the announcement of her death to her aged and affectionate parents in their declining years, and to her brothers and sisters who so fondly loved her; and how sad to know they shall meet no more to enjoy her endearing society on earth, and to the hearts of other weeping relatives, and numerous circle of devoted friends. It pleased God to remove, about six months since, from her tender and maternal embrace, a lovely child; and in writing of this sore bereavement, she remarked to me: "Why is it that God removes from us those who give us so much pleasure?" "It is hard at all times to feel resigned under affliction. I know it is so wicked in me." "I can't always, when I think of the cold and silent grave, look upon it as I should, and view my dear Lillie as an angel in Heaven." "But whom the Lord loveth He chasteneth." "Let us bear the cross that we may wear the crown." How very appropriate to that fond mother's heart, these lines:

Farewell, dearest Lillie, so lovely, so pure,
The anguish I feel is hard to endure.
A seraph in glory, thou art now,
To my Father's will I humbly bow.
And I trust whilst I am penning these lines,
her meek and sainted spirit is reunited with her darling babe in the Paradise of God to sing the song of Him who hath redeemed us with his own most precious blood. What a beautiful thought, and how it dispels the gloom which weighs so heavily upon us, and affords us grace, and strength to endure the trial, and sorely afflicting dispensation of Almighty God—so rest assured we sorrow not without hope. Then farewell, dearest Julia, for we have looked upon that sweet face, ever so radiant with tenderness and love, and taken the last adieu from than fair and gentle hand—no more shall we be permitted to hear thy sweet voice, which fell in such harmonious accents upon our ears. Then farewell, dearly loved one—may we meet in Heaven—where, I trust, thy meek and loving spirit is calmly reposing, enjoying the blissful fruition of the blest.

There's a palm of victory you'll bear,
And a crown of glory ever wear,
To all eternity. L.

On the 25th of February, near Jefferson, SAMUEL HEMP, aged, 19 years, 3 months and 21 days.

Farewell, farewell, Samie, dear,
Life is sad without thee here;
O may we meet in heaven above,
Where all is peace, and joy, and love.
We love him, yes, no tounge can tell,
How much we loved him and how well;
God loved him too, and he thought best,
To take him home with him to rest.
Soon, very soon, our time will come,
Yes, one by one we're going;
Let's strive to gain the blissful shore,
Where streams of joy are flowing.
Yes, dearest one, we'll meet you there,
If God will be our help,
And round the throne of God above,
We'll meet to part no more. A. S. L.

The Season and its Dangers.

The human body is chiefly composed of tissues and fibres as sensitive to every change in the condition of the atmosphere as the most delicate electrometer, or the quicksilver in a barometer tube.

The stomach, the skin, the nerves, the lungs, and the excretory organs are especially liable to be effected by these variations, and the best defence against their disastrous tendency is to keep the digestive machinery, which feeds and nourishes the whole system, in good working order.

If the stomach is week or disordered neither the blood nor the bile can be in a healthy state, and upon the fitness of these two important fluids for the offices assigned to them by nature, and the regularity of their flow, health in a great measure depends.

When the air is heavily laden with chilling vapors, as it often is at this season of the year, the digestion should be an object of peculiar care. If it is weak and languid, the whole physical structure will be enervated. If it is vigorous, the entire organization will be strong to resist the untoward and depressing influence of a damp and vitiated atmosphere.

A pure and powerful tonic is therefore especially needed as a safeguard against the diseases most common in the spring, and Hostetter's Stomach Bitters being the most wholesome and potent medicine of the class at present known, a course of it is particularly advisable at this period of the year. The stomach will thereby be toned and strengthened, the liver and bowels regulated, the nervous system braced up, and nature put in a state of active defence against the miasma which superinduces intermittent and remittent fevers, rheumatisms, nervous debility, headache, hypochondria and other complaints which are apt to assail the untoned and unfortified organizations. The body is strengthened without exciting the brain, and consequently no unpleasant reaction follows its reviving and renovating operation.

Report of the Grand Jury.

FEBRUARY TERM, 1870.

To the Honorable, the Judges of the Circuit Court for Frederick Co.

The Grand Jurors of the State of Maryland for the body of Frederick County, respectfully report, that in the discharge of their duties which law and custom have imposed, they visited the Jail and Alms House of Frederick county, and found like former Grand Juries, that the Jail is insecure for the retention of prisoners, and that the Alms House, both on account of its delapidated condition and ill-construction, as well as want of compass, is no longer suited to the wants of our large and populous county, and they therefore commend the wisdom, prudence and humanity of the authorities of our county in determining to erect as speedily as possible, buildings of a more commodious character and more in accordance with the dictates of humanity and the enlightened and liberal spirit of the age.

The County Jail is pretty well crowded with prisoners, but the offences charged against them are mostly of a trivial character, only a few being of any magnitude and importance. Sheriff Bargis is a kind-hearted, humane gentleman, but firm, prompt and inflexible in the discharge of the duties devolving upon him, and for this, as well as the clean and healthy condition of the premises, he deserves great credit; but, it is perfectly manifest, that the County Prison, like the present Alms House is no longer fit for the purpose it was designed, and will have to be replaced by a new one at no very remote period.

The Alms House is the hands of Mr. George Hinkle, a gentleman who, by his patience and forbearance, great goodness of heart, kindness of disposition, and indulgence shown to the poor unfortunate persons placed in his charge, united with his experience as a farmer, and his discreet and judicious management of affairs generally, on the farm and in the building, is qualified, in a pre-eminent degree, for the faithful and correct discharge of all his delicate and highly responsible duties. Although the Alms House is an ill-constructed building and almost ready to tumble down, it is pleasant to observe that its keeper has spared no pains nor trouble in conferring upon its inmates all the comforts and conveniences within his power.

There were 281 inmates in the Alms House of Frederick County on the 1st day of January, 1869; 606 new admissions during said year; 577 discharged within said year, and 141 were still remaining in said institution on the 1st day of January, 1870. Of those admitted, 549 were whites and 39 colored. The Jury find that the proportion of blacks, as compared with the whites not so large in the Alms House as in the Jail of our County, and the disproportion in colors is still more striking when the number of those who are arrested for larceny and petty violations of law, is taken into consideration.

Upon the whole, however, we are gratified to observe, within the limits of our county, a marked and very decided improvement in the morals of our people, and their uniform respect for and obedience to law. This is a very gratifying fact, as the safety and security of our lives and property, and the happiness and welfare of all are thereby secured.

The fencing on the entire Farm is in good order, a great part of it having been recently made. There is a Well of good water within six yards of the kitchen, and a large and never-failing Spring near the barn yard, and running water more than sufficient to supply the stock of the entire farm; a large portion of the ground has been broken up for the spring crop; an ORCHARD of choice Fruit, selected with great care by Dr. Waters during his life time. This is certainly one of the best and most productive farms in the neighborhood of Frederick city, in the highest state of cultivation, and in the very best condition, in every respect; its nearness to the Frederick city market where every description of produce commands the very highest price, renders it the most desirable of any farm that has been offered for sale for many years.
