The Great Falls of the Potomac--A Pleasant Trip.

On Monday evening of last week a party of gentlemen consisting of S. G. Cockey, J. T. Tregro, P. F. Pyfer, E. A. Hanson, Esqs., and the Editor of this paper, with fine tackle and other traps and necessaries, left town in an easy spring wagon drawn by a pair of spanking horses, on a trip to the great Falls of the Potomac, to enjoy the sport of bass fishing for a few days.

The evening was cool and invigorating, and the drive was most delightful—passing as we did over a good road, through the most highly cultivated and productive portion of the county.—Most of the wheat fields were in head, promising abundant crops—all vegitation was luxuriant—and never did denizens of the city enjoy more the beautiful country and the fresh air. At about 7 o'clock our driver reined up his prancing steeds in front of the elegant and hospitable mansion of our friend Col. J. B Thomas—in pursuance to a previous invitation—who stood upon his poarch to welcome his delighted guests. Here the party enjoyed for the night every comfort and luxury that a courteous and generous hospitality can extend. After a refreshing repose and a most inviting breakfast—accompanied by our host and two of his sons, we soon reached the canal at Noland's Ferry, where our friends, Capt. R. Thomas, Stephen Thomas, G. W. Snouffer and several other gentlemen had assembled to cheer us on our way, and wish us "good luck, and a pleasant time."

In a few minutes the trim little steamer Minnesota hove in sight, and her shrill whistle warned us to be ready to get on board. The Minnesota can accommodate, comfortably, about one hundred passengers.—We left our point of embarkation about 8 o'clock p. m.,—Mr. Amos and David Thomas accompanying us on the trip,—and reached the Great Falls of the Potomac at $2\frac{1}{2}$ o'clock p. m. The day was bright and breezy, and sitting on the upper deck of our gallant little steamer, we feasted our eyes in viewing the lovely scenery along the course of our voyage—now admiring the well cultivated farms stretching up from the canal to the hill tops in the distance, here and there remarking the beautiful location and fine surroundings of a stately mansion of some of the more wealthy farmers residing along the southern border of Montgomery county, and, anon, looking southward, catching a glimpse of the many beautiful islands dotting the blue waters of the Potomac, and, here and there, securing a commanding view of the Blue Ridge Mountains away off in the distance, as well as the green sloping hills and extensive farms on the "Old Virginia shore."

The banks of the canal are lined with fine old Elms, the broad-spreading Sycamore and stately Oaks, all in full foliage, and affording refreshing shade. The Locust, the Hawthorn and the climbing Grapevine all in full bloom, together with the Black Berry, the Water Lilly, and thousands of wild flowers mingling their sweet odors, regaled our senses with their beauty and their fragrance. A heavy thunder-storm, lasting for half an hour, dampened our spirits on our arrival at the Great Falls, but before its visitation we had secured most comfortable quarters in the large Hotel of the Canal Company, kept by Mr. Case. As soon as the storm passed over the party rigged up their fishing tackle, and made a bee-line for the fishing grounds; and, a view of the mighty waters of the Potomac as they come whirling, dashing, leaping, foaming against and over, and down the high rocks that would vainly impede their mad course, and then rising and falling in billowy waves, rushing like the rapids of Niagara, down their forty-feet-perpendicular narrow, rock-bound channel to the eddy waters of the wide river a mile below.

The greater part of the evening was consumed in seeking different stand points from which to view the splendid scenery, which excited the wonder and admiration of all parties.

On Wednesday evening late, one of the several expert Bass-ists, expected from Rockville—E. B. Prettyman, Clerk of Montgomery county—joined us, and the next morning, aided by his knowledge of those points where the wily Bass most do congregate, our party had gratifying success. Our friend Prettyman left us that evening to the regret of our whole party, in time to reach Rockville before night. On Thursday night we had a splendid fry of Bass for supper, and made our breakfast on Bass the next morning, also—all of our own catching, while we brought home some eight or ten pounds. In all we took about twenty-five pounds of Bass, together with other fish. S. G. Cockey excelled in numbers, while we brag on most sport in taking a two-and-a-half pounder—at least our friend Prettyman said that was his weight. He certainly was a whopper, and fought desperately; but we had a reel—our tackle was strong, and with the aid of our friend Pyfer he was safely bagged.

This is a favorite place of resort for fishing, and pic nic parties during the summer months. A party of some fifty ladies and gentlemen came up from Washington on Wednesday and spent the day. It is certainly a point of many attractions.

A trip on the Minnesota, down one day and back the next, affording ample time to view the scenery and have eight hours fishing, need not cost as much as a trip to Baltimore. We mention this for the information of our readers who may desire a short and inexpensive excursion, such as we have hastily and imperfectly described.

Our party left the Falls on Friday morning at about 11 o'clk., taking passage on the Minnesota, and arrived at Noland's Ferry at 5, and home at 8 P. M.—not an incident having occurred to mar the pleasure of our very delightful excursion. It is proper to inform Capt. Deppill, of the Minnesota, that our party unite in according to him all the qualities calculated to command the confidence and respect of passengers,—and, for his courtesies to our party we hereby express our acknowledgements.

TOURNAMENT IN BROOKLYN.

The first Tournament of belted knights ever held in the United States above the Maryland line, according to the New York World, took place at Prospect Park Fair Grounds, near Brooklyn, on the 21st ulto. Notwithstanding the grounds are several miles from the city, a brilliant assembly of fair "women and brave men," numbering some three thousand, was present to witness the joustings. It would appear from the reports published in the New York and Brooklyn papers, that the contesting knights were chiefly from Maryland and Virginia. Col. A. H. Dawson, formerly of Geergia, now practising law in New York, delivered the address in which he referred to the origin and antiquity of the tournament, and concluded as follows:

Among other pleasant duties with which I am specially charged on this occasion is that of tendering from the Knights of the North to the Knights of the South a heart-warm welcome. It is the first tournament that has ever been held on Northern soil, and it is inaugerated with the fervant hope that it will be often repeated, until, in the friendly and manly emulation it will arouse, the past will be forgetten, the present charmed and the future brightened. Whoever may be vanquished, the vanquished will have the proud gratification of feeling that they will have a direct, immediate and personal interest in the glory that will redound from it to a common country. The proclivity of tournaments, as now conducted, is to develop equestrian grace, skill and fearlessness, cultivate a love for that noble animal, the horse, and elevate the bearing and sustain the courtly amenities that characterize the intercourse of hightoned and well-bred strangers, all of which must augment the dignity of human nature and the sum of human happiness.

The tilting then commenced. A full description of the personal appearance and costume of each knight, as well as of his steed and the horsemanship of each contestant is given with minute particularity. For all this we have not space. The prizes were a black horse fully caparisoned, valued at $500, a gentleman's gold watch, a lady's gold watch, and a pair of costly gold sleeve buttons. The victorious knight, winning the first prize is thus described by the World reporter:

The Knight of Shannondale, Eddie Gallaher, was a good Knight indeed; majestic his front, stern his resolve. The reporter observed concerning him on his first appearance, "He looks more like a warrior of old than any of them." He might be called the "White Cross Knight." as he had a cruciform piece of sticking plaster on his forehead, which he wounded with his lance in a rehearsal. It was a fine sight, indeed, to see him, on his well-managed horse, come careering up the course. With his spear pointing towards the mark from the very start, he looked the very embodiment of plucky determination and unswerving will. His square, beetling brows and solemn fixedness of aspect gave him the appearance of a stern crusader. He took the first prize, a $500 horse. A briefer description of his aspect was given by a bystander in the remark, "He means biz!" Mr. Gallaher is connected with the Vinginia Free Press.

The Brooklyn Eagle alludes to Eddie in this wise:

Eddie Gallaher—almost "Galahad,"—the Knight of Shannondale, so named from the "Springs" near his knightly domain in Jefferson County, West Virginia, a tall, bareheaded stripling in tinted satin vest and yellow waistscarf, came dashingly down at $8\frac{1}{2}$ seconds on a light bay, lance at poise from the start, braced beneath his extended arm. He was master of his steed, and won all hearts by his horsemanship, air and earnest determination. Thrice he took the ring, time $8\frac{1}{2}$ 9, $8\frac{1}{4}$. He is a son of the editor of the Virginia Free Press. Over his right eye was a wound from the fallen rod the day before, and thus he bore the white cross on his crest.

And again in describing the contest when narrowed down to four of the knights after the others had been ruled out:

Shannondale, the determined, the reckless seeming, but most expert and skillful rider, came down with redoubled vigor, his horse seeming as if he would tear his haunches away, and every time the gallant strippling, Eddie, the "baby brother of the Blue Ridge Knight, carried his slender lance through the ring and away, the ribbon fluttering midway of his shaft; his time was $8\frac{1}{2}$ $9\frac{1}{2}$ $8\frac{1}{4}$.

The Knight of the Blue Ridge, J. N. Gallaher, was considered by many of the spectators the best horseman in the lists but failed to win the prize on account of the persistent shying of his steed. The tournament lasted for two days and the sport was intensely enjoyed by the thousands of spectators, most of whom had never witnessed an entertainment of the kind before.

VIRGINIA ELECTIONS.—The town elections in Virginia last week resulted generally in favor of the conservative party, while the republicans carried Richmond, Petersburg, and one or two other cities by small majorities. They succeeded only at those places where were denizened large numbers of Fifteenth Amendment voters. These are rapidly diminishing in the Old Diminion, from one cause and another—chiefly by emigration to the Cotton States—and no doubt at the next general election in that State the conservatives will roll up a majority of at least 50,000.

The new Internal Revenue bill reported on Monday in Congress reduces the taxes on almost everything, except distilled and fermented liquors, tobacco, cigars, and stamps. The Income Tax is retained at 5 per cent, the exemption being $1500. The total reduction proposed by the bill is nearly $34,000,000.

In the suit brought against the State National Bank of Boston to recover $125,000 on a check certified by the cashier thereof, and afterward disclaimed by the bank on the ground that the cashier had no authority to certify checks without first consulting the officers of the bank, Judge Brady, in the Supreme Court Circuit, at New York, on Thursday, decided against the bank.

THE JUBILEE.

On Monday next, the colored citizens of this county will hold their grand celebration, in honor of the Fifteenth Amendment to the Constitution, whereby they have obtained the right to vote at all Federal, State, County and Municipal elections, in all the States of the Union, hereafter to be held.

It is quite natural that these people should prize this high privilege, and that they should adopt some mode of giving expression to their gratification. But that they should come together from distant points, at great loss of time, and engage in expensive pageants, and toilsome processions is, we think, of questionable expediency. Large numbers of them have neither time to lose nor money to spend for these ostentatious parades and displays; and they had better be saving their money for a rainy day—for food, for decent clothing, and for the education of their children. Very few of them—and they had better realize this fact at once—will be able to live by politics; and as there can be no doubt that these, to them, expensive exhibitions are prompted and inspired by unprincipled radical white politicians, who by hypocritical appeals to their vanity, assemble them in large masses, in order that they may come before them and by falsehood, and adroit flattery, enlist them under their leadership for the promotion of their own selfish aggrandizement—they incur expense without profit.

We suppose that notorious original secessionist, J. A. J. Creswell—the man who wrote and proposed the first secession resolutions ever offered at a public meeting in Maryland—now, because a traitor to his real principles, Grant's Postmaster General—will be here, as he was at the celebration in Baltimore, the principle speaker of the occasion. What does he care for the negro—without his vote? Creswell desires to be the foremost man in Maryland among the negroes, because thereby he hopes to be the leader of the radical party in the State. And so it is with all these aspiring white scallawags, from the lunatic Sumner down to the petty village politician, now engaged in the effort to make the negro believe he is as good, if not a little better than the white man. Their whole object is to get place, plunder and power for themselves, by and through the aid of this class of voters. The speech made by this original secessionist, at the negro celebration in Baltimore, demonstrated, most conclusively, that the radical party never conferred a single privilege or right upon the negro, except for a political purpose, inuring, as the leaders expected would be the case, in the interest of their party—that is as a means of perpetuating their power and securing the spoils.

But these poor deluded dupes of the radical scallawags of Maryland will get their eyes open after a while, and discover the real purpose for which they have been inspired to get up these expensive demonstrations, to the neglect of their true pecuniary interests—the only interests they should attend to at present.

HISTORY OR ANNALS OF FREDERICK COUNTY.—We call the especial attention of our readers to the communication addressed to us by Geo. A. Hanson, Esq., of this city, which will be found below. Mr. Hanson proposes to write for publication, in book form, the History or Annals of this County. Such a work, embracing the scope indicated in his communication, could not but prove highly interesting, at least, to all natives of this county; and we have no hesitation in affirming that the classical attainments and literary culture of our correspondent are such as to guarantee the complete success of his proposed undertaking, if those in possession of the desired material, for such a work shall second his efforts. We call the attention of our brethern of the press to the communication of Mr. Hanson, and suggest that it would be gratifying to him if they give it a place in their columns.

FREDERICK, 30TH MAY, 1870.

JOHN W. BAUGHMAN, Esq., Editor of Republican Citizen, Frederick, Md.

MY DEAR SIR:—I propose to write, for publication, the History or Annals of Frederick County—Political, Social, Personal, Religious, Moral and Literary.

The Political portion will treat of its early settlement and organization, its subsequent division and present sub-division into districts, etc. The Social will portray the manners and customs, civilization and culture of the first settlers. The Personal will contain memories and sketches of the settlers and their descendants, and also of other noted residents, with characteristic annecdotes and interesting reminiscences. The Religious will embrace a succinct account of the establishment, growth and progress of the various Churches, Denominations and Sects. The Moral will contain a rapid narration of the history of the Ancient, Free and Accepted Masons, the orders of Odd Fellows, Red Men and other benevolent, humane or beneficiary Societies. The Literary will be devoted to the Schools, Colleges and Seats of Learning.

For more than ten years my attention has been turned, more or less, to this subject, and I am confident that a work, such as I have indicated, conscientiously and accurately prepared, will be of great interest and some importance to the good people of our county.

Will you, through the columns of your very able paper, request all persons interested in the subject, and possessing information, to assist me in this undertaking.—Any and all information will be thankfully received by me, and gratefully acknowledged, in due form, at the proper time.

With renewed assurance of my friendship and esteem, I remain

Yours truly,
GEO. A. HANSON.

STRAWBERRY FESTIVAL.—The ladies of Urbana intend holding a Strawberry Festival, for the benefit of Zion Church, on Thursday, June 9th, commencing at 2 o'clock P. M. All the delicacies of the season will be found in abundance, and a brass band will be in attendance to enliven the occasion. The public is cordially invited to attend.

RABID DOG.—A dog supposed to have been mad, chased a colored man, on Market street, near the square, on Sunday last, who escaped by jumping on a store box. The dog was soon after taken with spasms, and afterward passing into the yard of Dr. Webb's residence was there killed.

CONFEDERATE MEMORIAL DAY.—We would again remind our readers that a floral decoration of the graves of the Confederate dead now lying in Mt. Olivet Cemetery, will take place to-morrow, (Saturday) the 4th of June, at $2\frac{1}{2}$ o'clock p. m. The exercises will be of a very impressive character, and will excite much feeling and interest in the hearts of all sympathising with this ceremony who may avail themselves of the opportunity to be present. We understand that a large number of the ladies of this city and county are preparing to be present, with an abundance of flowers to strew over the graves of the Confederate slain, as a tribute to their valor and memory, in the hope that the relatives and friends of these dead heroes may borrow some consolation for their loss from the fact that their fathers, husbands and sons are not lying unthought of and uncared for by the good people of Maryland. Maj. H. Kidd Douglas, of Hagerstown, a young and talented orator, and who, during the war, was a member of Stonewall Jackson's staff, will deliver the oration. All persons who intend taking part in the excercises are requested to bring with them what flowers they can to the Cemetery. Flowers may be left at the United Hall before one o'clock p. m.; and ladies having no convenience for sending their floral tributes to the Hall, are requested to leave their names with Capt. Otis Johnson or R. Brown Henderson, Esq., who will see that their tributes are called for and delivered at the Cemetery. The exercises will open about $2\frac{1}{2}$ o'clock in the afternoon, at which time it is expected all parties intending to be present will have assembled, when the following programme will be observed;

1–Anthem, by Ladies.
2–Invocation, by Rev. Mr. Balthas.
3–Hymn, by Ladies.
4–Letters to be read by W. N. Young.
5–Reading of Poem.
6–Address, by Maj. H. K. Douglas.
7–Remarks, by Messrs. Levy and Brengle.
8–Prayer, by —— ——
9–Floral Distribution.

We are authorized to state that if the weather proves inclement on the day above specified, the exercises will be postponed until the following Saturday.

THE PEABODY LYCEUM, encouraged by the large and appreciative audience attendant on its last meeting, announce the following attractive programme for Tuesday evening next, June 7th, at 8 o'clock. Original Essay—M. E. Smith, subject: The Ruins of Time. Declamation—Francis Brengle. Select Reading—W. Y. Page. Original Essay—W. H. Nicodemus. Declamation—H. F. Sleeper; subject: Scene between Henry VI. and the Duke of Gloster, from Shakspeare. Declamation—M. E. Smith, by request, from Homer. Subject for debate: "Do inventions improve the condition of the laboring classes?" affirmative—Wm. P. Maulsby, jr., W. H. Nicodemus; negative—M. G. Urner, John Ritchie. Ladies and gentlemen are respectfully invited to attend. Free tickets of admission may be obtained by calling on M. E. Smith, chairman of com.

PUBLIC SALES.—The following sales are advertised to take place between this and our next issue.

To-morrow, the 4th inst., at 2 o'clock p. m., Cornelia V. Smith, adm'x., will sell on the premises, about $1\frac{1}{2}$ miles south of Frederick, on the Keefer's Mill road, horses, cattle, farm implements, &c.

On Thursday, the 9th iust., at 10 o'clock a. m., John C. Hardt, President, will sell at the Dill House the splendid property of the Deutchen Scheutzen Gesellschaft Park, consisting of the handsom brick mansion house and $28\frac{1}{2}$ acres of land, adjoining this city. Same day and hour, Henry Baker, trustee, will sell in Buckeystown, all the real estate of the late Grafton Duvall deceased, consisting of a farm of more than 188 acres, dwelling houses, and valuable lots, &c.

TO BE RE-PAINTED.—Workmen have been engaged for some days past in scaffolding the steeples of the Lutheran Church in this city, preparatory to a thorough renovation rendered necessary by the defacements of time and the weather. The scaffolding is already completed up to the spire on the west steeple. The passer-by can scarcely restrain a shudder at seeing men working on such a structure at such a giddy height. Tedious and dangerous as the work may be it is an improvement which has been long needed.

SUDDEN DEATH.—Mr. Lewis Peters, one of our most respected citizens, died very suddenly on Monday morning last. He arose about 4 o'clock in the morning as usual, and attempted to dress, but failed, and his wife noticing his condition, called in several neighbors and a physician, when it was found that death was near. He lingered speechless, until near 9 o'clock. He was in the 65th year of his age, and leaves a wife and three children.—Liberty Banner.

A LUSUS NATURÆ.—We were shown at the Dill House a few days ago, a stuffed Lamb, taken from the ewe after her death, which had four perfectly formed legs in front—two in their natural position and two growing upwards from the shoulders. From about the center of the back commenced two separate and distinct bodies, each terminating with a tail of the usual length, and two legs. This curious monstrosity had however only one head and that perfectly formed.

CHURCH DEDICATION.—A new Reformed Church was dedicated at Westminster, on Sunday the 22d ulto. Rev. Dr. Zacharias of this city preached the dedicatory sermon. Rev. J. M. Titzal, of Emmittsburg, and A. R. Kramer, of the Glade Church, also delivered addresses; Rev. S. S. Miller, of Jefferson, Gilds of Mechanicstown, Seiner, and others, participated in the services on the occasion.

STATE SCHOOL BOARD.—On the 25th of last month, the Board of State School Commissioners, Messrs. Carman, Newell, Page, Carrico and Aydelott, met in Baltimore and organized by electing Prof. Newell of Baltimore President, and John W. Page, of this county. Secretary. No change was made in the faculty of the State Normal School.

THE WHEAT CROP.—Although ten days ago cheering the hearts of our farmers by its glorious promise of an abundent fruition, it is now feared, in consequence of the heavy and continuous rains of the last five or six days, has been greatly damaged, especially the more forward wheat which was in blossom.

REMOVAL.—Messrs. Stewart & Price, dealers in seeds and agricultural implements, have removed to their large store room in the new three-story building recently erected by Mr. Henry Boteler, near the bridge on South Market street.

At New Orleans, on Monday morning, a committee of eight attempted to introduce colored children into two of the public schools. Their admission was refused on the ground that the superintendent had not given instructions to admit colored children. Considerable excitement followed, and the police had to be called to disperse the crowd. Trouble is feared.

LETTER FROM CHICAGO.

CHICAGO, May 21.

"Why hast thou been so long silent, O muse?" The answer comes borne upon the fresh breeze which gently fans my cheek, as it floats in from off the bosom of the Lake, "spring fever." "Thou art excused," for I think if there is anything that can possibly excuse indolence it is "spring fever," for, to use a mild term, I fear it. But Spring has already passed into Summer, as the warm days, suggesting delicious ideas of ice cream and strawberries, the delicious odors of the Chicago river and all the other appliances to render us cool that human ingenuity can invent, amply testify. Speaking of the Chicago river, perhaps you would like a description of that classic (forgive the application,) stream. Conceive a channel filled with a fluid of stygian blackness, called, for politeness sake, water, though it bears no resemblance to that limpid fluid, from which there constantly arise odors the most pestiferous that can be imagined, and you have a pretty correct idea of one of the great arteries that supply Chicago with life. This, combined with its thirteen railroads, is what makes us what we are.

Determined not to be outdone by any city in the Union, even in the amusement line we have organized, what we believe to be, the best base ball club in the country, and, for the amusement of those who are fond of such things I will give you a brief record of their doings. They have traveled through the Southwest and defeated all the clubs with which they have come in contact, one of their adversaries not scoring a single run, and defeating another, with a score of one hundred and forty-seven to one, two of the greatest feats on record. We are determined to take the lead.

And now, dear "Valerian," a word for you, although you effectually wear the mask with which I tried in vain to conceal my features. I read your letter in the Examiner and was thankful for your sympathy, although bright May has driven away the lonely feelings engendered by stern Winter. Can you not make yourself more recognizable? I sometimes envy you your free, country life, for I, too, have dwelt among the hills and valleys of "My Mother State"—Maryland; and there are many memories of that happy time that serve as refreshing oases after traveling, wearily, the deserts of city life. Circumstances, however, often force us to forgo the claims of our native home for different spheres of action, and we can then but adopt the happy faculty of extracting sweets from the most bitter experiences. Let me hear from you again, and that soon, for "a voice from home" is ever welcome. But the CITIZEN comes with its bright face and tells me of your pleasures and pains, joys and griefs.

By the way, we have quite a colony of Marylanders in this city, and only a week ago an old friend, fresh from our native State, called upon me, and his pleasant words are still ringing in my ears, leaving a sweet cadence that refreshes the heart, and renders it less sensitive to the rude jostlings of the cold world.

We have our first experience of the workings of the Fifteenth Amendment in the form of a grand juryman selected from among our sable brethren, bearing the rare title of Jones; we have not yet had an exhibition of his wisdom, but are anxiously awaiting his first verdict. How does it effect my native State? Am I to return and find the places that, of right, belong to Maryland's most high and gifted sons, usurped by those who were our slaves? To find true worth and greatness compelled to yield to ignorance and force? Great God forbid! May we never live to see the day when brute force shall triumph over mental superiority. But we are surprised at nothing, now that the highest place in the nation is filled by a man whose only claim to greatness lies in that same force and the knowledge that he is a good judge of whisky, cigars and fast horses. Spirits of our Fathers, look down upon us in pity, and curse us not.

THE NEW YORK JUDICIAL ELECTION.—By a provicion of the new constitution of New York, two of the five Supreme Judges are required to be those candidates of the minority party receiving the highest number of minority votes. Thus, while the Democrats have carried the State by an average majority of about 85,000 votes for their ticket, two of the Radical candidatea will be judges. These two are supposed to be Folger and Andrews, who run ahead of their ticket.

The Albany Argus makes the Democratic majority, on the Judicial ticket in New York, 88,000.

The Living Machine.

Injure the main spring of a watch and every portion of the works become disordered. The human stomach is to the human system what that elastic piece of metal is to a chronometer. It influences the action of the other organs, and controls, to a certain extent, the whole living machine. The comparison may be carried further: for as the weakness or other imperfections of the main spring is indicated on the face of the time piece, so also is the weakness or other disorder of the stomach betrayed by the face of the invalid. The complexion is sallow or faded, the eyes are deficient in lustre and intelligence, and there is a worn, anxious expression in the whole countenance which tell as plainly as written words could do, that the great nourishing organ whose office it is to minister to the wants of the body, and to sustain and renew all its parts, is not performing its duty. It requires renovating and regulating, and to accomplish this end Hostetter's Stomach Bitters may be truly said to be the one thing needful. The broken main spring of a watch may be replaced by a new one, but the stomach can only be repaired and strengthened, and this is one of the objects of the famous vegetable restorative which for eighteen years has been waging a successful contest with dyspepsia in all climates. As a specific for indigestion it stands alone. When the resources of the pharmacopœia have been exhausted, without, at best, doing more than mitigating the complaint, a course of this wholesome and palatable, yet powerful, stomachic effects a perfect and permanent cure. In all cases of dyspepsia the liver is more or less disordered, and upon this important gland, as well as upon the stomach and bowels, the Bitters act with singular distinctness, regulating and reinvigorating every secretive and assimilating organ on which bodily and mental health depend.
