The Pomp and State of a Notorious Man.

James Fisk, Jr., is about to create a new sensation. In a few days he will turn out with a new six-in-hand, and this six-in-hand is expected to be the most costly of the sort that ever put in an appearance on the drives in and about this city. For nearly a month Waldron—who has made heraldry a life long study—has been engaged in designing and manufacturing the harness which the animals belonging to the six-in-hand are to wear. The bit-basses which are to be fastened to the sides of the bits are of heavily plated gold, each bearing the monogram "J. F., Jr." The bits are of nickle plate. The martingales, which are gold plate, are very heavy, and each of them carries a centre shield, on which the monogram again appears. The gag-drops are gold; so are the brow-bands and the coupling-rings. Below each of the rings a shield will dangle, and on this shield the Fisk monogram will again appear. The twelve rosettes to be worn by the horses will be of gold, each illustrated by the Fisk monogram. The hooks, tents, hames, and buckles, are all gold, as are also the drops, face-pieces and pads. The hames will cost $3,000, the mountings $1,000, while the whole equipage, including horses and carriage, will cost $35,000. Over one hundred and forty monograms will appear on the harness. The mountings for this splendid turnout are the finest ever made in this country. Mr. Fisk, it is expected, will take his six-in-hand to Jerome Park next week, where, among the brilliant turnouts, it will doubtless attract a great deal of attention.—N. Y. World.

White Men, not Indians.

It seems that some of the horrible outrages committed on the Western frontier have been the work of white men, who have disguised themselves as Indians, and thus sought to turn the indignation consequent thereon, upon the Red Man. In reference to this, the New York World has the following:

"It has been frequently asserted and as often denied that some of those Indians, who harass the border, were really white men plumed and painted; but we have now General Sherman's official declaration that, 'in a recent case between Fort Hayes and Camp Supply, the Indians, on being captured, turned out to be white men in disguise.' The reader will also remember that in the case of the late horrible outrage at Ladore, Kansas, it was stated in the first dispatch that it was thought the ruffians who so brutally maltreated two girls were either Texans or Indians; whereas when the villians were brought to the gallows they were found to be white men, one and all, from the Eastern States. These cases, coming so close together and in a time of a threatened war upon the Indians for alleged outrages, would seem to imply that while the red men are no doubt bad enough—rendered so, we believe, in most cases, by wrongs done to them in the first instance—they should not be held responsible for all the outrages on the border. A little soap and water might reveal many an Apache rape or murder to be the work of white men."

The Color Question in the Theatre.

Washington city being immediately under the supervision of a Radical Congress, the great doctrine of the party is being rapidly worked out to perfection there. Negroes have been admitted to the public schools and are received at the entertainments given by public dignitaries. The Washington correspondent of the New York Herald, records the following instance of the pushing impudence of the blacks:

"The equality of color is making rapid progress in this town. Last night two negroes, dark as the ace of spades, occupied conspicuous seats in the orchestra at the National Theatre, enjoying the English opera. The night preceding, an officer of the House of Representatives created an immense sensation, by appearing at the same theatre with two dashing and elegantly dressed colored ladies. He bore his honors manfully and meekly, paying no attention whatever to the curious looks directed towards him by his white brethren. Some very excited white folks went to the manager of the theatre to protest against the "outrage," as they called it, and to suggest the propriety of putting the colored gals and their white escort out of the theatre. The manager declared he couldn't do it short of a fine of five hundred dollars, which he did not propose to incur this season."

A SPLENDID LOT OF WHEAT.—In our walks to and fro from the heart of the city we pause daily to admire a lot of wheat belonging to one of our bank officials, which we are free to say gives promise of a more bountiful yield than any we have ever seen. The lot contains precisely one acre. It was in wheat last year, and produced forty bushels from a dressing of about 300 pounds of superphosphate. This may be supposed to have been nearly exhausted by so heavy a crop; and last fall at the time of seeding an additional application was made of 500 pounds of fine bone—bone meal. We should adjudge the present crop to be not less than 50 per cent. better than the last. It stands evenly over the ground neck high, the ears of large size and crowded together, all well "thirded" and a good portion "fourthed." Farmers who are familiar with these terms, will of course be able to estimate a liberal product; an expert, such as we have seen, could tell by the eye what it will be within two or three bushels. Our own opinion is that it will not fall much if any short of 60 bushels, if no casualty befals it between now and harvest. It will probably be ripe from the 10th to the 12th of this month. The variety is the "German amber," grown in North Carolina, and one of the kinds distributed by the Agricultural Department a few years ago.—Petersburg Index.

LIVING FUEL IN CINCINNATI—THREE THOUSAND HOGS ROASTED ALIVE.—The stock-pens of Gaff's distillery, in Cincinnati, containing 4,200 hogs, were burned on Wednesday morning. Three thousand hogs were roasted to death. The scene is said to have been as grand as it was horrible. Great columns of flame, fed by the living fuel, shot upwards thousands of feet, and rolled off in dense masses of black smoke. The outcry of the frightened animals, as they crowded one above the other into the corners of the pen remotest from the fire, until its rapid approach first scorched and then consumed them, awed the spectators, who stood looking helplessly on. Every effort was made to save at least a portion of the hogs, the greater portion being hoplessly cut off. But a little over a thousand of the animals were gotten out in all, and the rest of the 4,200 were literally broiled alive. The oder of the burned or roast pork pervaded the city for many blocks in all directions after the fire. Cows died out for want of fuel. The loss on live stock alone is estimated at $60,000. The loss on the building at $60,000. The from $25,000 to $35,000.

The days are six hours longer than they were in midwinter.

SPRING CAMPAIGN OF 1870.

TERRIFIC TUMBLE IN GOLD!

Dry Goods away down below old prices!

REVOLUTION!

CARPET BAG PLAYED OUT!

Sauve qui peut. Quem deus vult perdere.

Smash of Eighty-seven Dry Goods Houses in February!

ONE THOUSAND cases of Dry Goods thrown into the Auction Rooms every week

FOR THE ALMIGHTY DOLLAR.

Two Hundred Cases of Domestics every day

FOR THE EVERLASTING DOLLAR!

Crowding everything into the Auction Rooms. Converting every available article into Gold.

This is our battle-field—Here where we fight the old fogies, swindlers, high prices, monopoly and speculation—and here we shall some day in the not far distant future, crush them.

STAND FROM UNDER!

Read these unanswerable lines and save your money. Standard Prints, 10c; Standard Muslins, 12½c; all fifty cent Dress Goods at 25c; seventy-five cent Dress Goods at 37½c.

EVERYTHING DOWN ABOUT HALF.

Pins, 3c; Needles, 3c; Hooks and Eyes, 3c. Ribbons and Velvets less than half price. Laces and Embroideries about quarter price. Best 200 yard Spool Cotton, 3 and 4c.

The entire stock from the failure of C. H. Bowman & Co.—upwards of one thousand dozen Handk'fs, at about 28 cts. in the dollar. About half the Notion Stock of Payne, Foster & Brink, of 32 Leonard street, 32 cents in the dollar. Large share of Zinn, Aldrich & Co. Bulk of Loder Bros. & Co., Broadway. Thus they have gone down in the pitiless storm, and we have watched and embraced the hour of our opportunity to gather the fruits of the victory. Through the inevitable Auction Machines, they have gone crashing by hundreds, and thus in the general smash, we have with money, sleepless energy and brains, gathered in these grand and splendid drives.

THIS IS ABOUT THE STORY:

Here lies the power of the Almighty Dollar. We live in the Auction Rooms day and night. Through these avenues are cleared out day after day, thousands upon thousands. It is the principle of buying under the relentless hammer of the Auctioneer, for a half, quarter, or tenth their value, entire stocks, and in turn giving them to the people at a small advance, that has built up this enormous business.

A few short years ago we came out of the fighting ranks—penniless; aye, poorer than poverty itself, and to-day we are the monarchs of the Auction Rooms.

Like sheep we have driven them. We have the inside track, and shall hold it.—The old tale, "Goods at Cost," avails nothing when we give them away at one-fourth gold cost. Everything below its market value. The Syren Song of the swindler is played. They must learn how to buy and how to sell, or go down. Everything down upon the panic basis. Twelve dozen Buttons for 4 cts. Ante Bellum prices no where. Why waste your money when you can save it? Such goods at such prices will at once and forever drive into obscurity every man, who, in these dark days of panic and poverty, has the face to ask a profit upon his goods. Eternal curses upon a man who would rob the people now. Linen Handkerchiefs, 6c. Hair Nets, 3c. Envelopes, 4c. for 25. Best Writing Paper, 10c. Hosiery in every variety, about 40 in the dollar. Terrific breakdown in Notions.

White Goods from failure of McDonald and McCauley, 114 Walker street, 40 cents in the dollar.

And thus it is that we are enabled to clear out goods at less than other merchants can buy them. Carpets and Oil Cloths—grand panic here. Then on with the ball. Deal where you can get the best goods for the least money, and call upon us often and get posted.
