THE EUROPEAN WAR.

THE SITUATION BEFOGGED.

To read the contradictory dispatches that are sent us across the submarine wires from London, Paris and Berlin, and form a correct idea of the situation of affairs between the two giants contending for the mastership of Europe, would prove a useless task to one unacquainted, as we are, with military strategy—yea, we are of opinion that one possessing the brains of the conqueror of Austerlitz would become befogged in the endeavor. Day after day we have picked up the papers and sought for something intelligible to present to our readers, and every time we have been compelled to lay them aside in disgust Every idea that flashes across the mind of some newspaper correspondent who may be located within two hundred miles of the armies, every rumor and sensation story that is mouthed about by idlers, is seized upon and sent to us in order to make news. This much is known, however, that no serious engagement has occurred since the battle of Gravelotte.

On the 28th ult., Verdun, a French fortress west of Metz, was attacked by 10,000 Prussians, and after a fierce combat of several hours, the besieged repulsed them with considerable loss.

Vitry, garrisoned by about 800 French, surrendered to the Prussians

The bombardment of Strasburg continues, and although the Prussians investing it represent that the condition of the garrison is becoming perilous, its defenders are still defiant. Many buildings in Strasburg are said to have been battered down by the Prussian cannon.

Of the situation of the main armies not much is known, but we will try and deduce from the despatches the events and operations represented to have lately occurred.

After the French under Bazaine were forced back upon Metz—which result was accomplished by the hard fighting referred to in our last issue—the new army formed at Chalons and placed under the command of Marshal McMahon—who had succeeded in reaching said place with the remnants of his command saved from the wreck of defeat at Woerth—moved nothward on Stenay and Montemedy, evidently with a view of effecting a junction with the beleaguered forces of Bazaine, in order to extricate them from their cooped up position.

Meanwhile, the Prussians, after having consumed some time in burying their dead and caring for their wounded, with a reinforced and re-organized army proceeded to march on Paris by way of the valley of the Aube, leaving behind them a force under Gen. Steinmetz sufficient to invest Metz. Whether this movement was a ruse on the part of the Prussians to entrap McMahon into an effort to release Bazaine, or whether they expected that their advance would decide the French Marshal to hold his army so as to cover Paris and thus leave the forces in Metz to the fate of being starved into a surrender, we are not able to say. Certain it is, that had the Prussian army continued to move on Paris, McMahon would have been able to set Bazaine free, and the two united French armies would have fallen on Steinmetz's command and annihilated it, and then wheeled their columns on the rear of the army commanded by the King of Prussia, and defeated it. But the Prussians abandoned their march on Paris, and, having thrown themselves between said city and McMahon, are now doubling their efforts to bring that Marshal to battle.

McMahon is said to have a force of 180,000 men; the Prussian strength is stated to be 250,000—estimations that are all conjectural. A great battle is imminent, and on its result will depend the hopes of France. Should McMahon be beaten badly, there seems to be no way of escape open for him, and, therefore, the power of France would be destroyed; while, on the other hand, the defeat of the Prussians would place them in a position equally as perilous. These suggestions are based upon the situation as it is represented to be in the despatches, upon the truth of which we cannot rely.

Marshal McMahon, as a commander, has the entire confidence of the French nation. His fitness and ability for the position of general-in-chief has been demonstrated on former fields. The Paris Moniteur, in referring to his conduct at the battle of Woerth, where he was overwhelmed with numbers, thus compliments him.

"In those telegrams laconic as they are, we find one brilliant individuality, one splendid military figure, a true soldier—we knew him before, at Malakoff and Magenta. This man—this soldier, this lion, who combats at the frontier—is MacMahon. From the despatches we found that he fought against several Prussian armies. It is not man against man but one against ten. He fought not during an hour or a day, but from the 3rd to the 6th, in a foreign country full of enemies. He was almost surrounded it appears, several times. He attacked those masses of troops, whose fallen ranks were filled at once. He fought, he resisted, he withstood the shock; there was no disorder in his army. It is a grand—solemn—epic!—and the glory of French arms will receive new lustre from this Homeric struggle."

North Carolina.

The Democratic State Central Executive Committee of North Carolina has issued a congratulatory address to the people of the State on their recent signal victory over the radical party.—From this address we select two paragraphs, which we deem worthy of consideration at the hands of our readers:

"We very well know, fellow-citizens, that this is not a mere party triumph—true it is, the victory has been won in the name of our party. But let us not forget that it is a victory due in a great degree to the uprising of honest and conservative men of all parties. The election returns show that thousands, who in the former elections voted with the radical party, have come to our aid and helped us to win the signal triumphs which now gladden our hearts. Even the colored race, controlled as it hitherto has been by evil counsels and gross misrepresentations of our motives and purposes as to them, in many portions of the State, in very considerable numbers, broke away from the trammels in which they were bound and materially aided in swelling our majorities.

To the colored people we say, fear nothing. We pledged ourselves in the last Legislative address issued in March last, that all their rights under the constitution and laws of the country, in case of our success, would be alike respected and protected with those of white citizens. Time will show that these pledges will be faithfully redeemed. We know that efforts will still be made to alarm, delude and mislead them, for without their aid the faction that has just been defeated, will hereafter be powerless. The interests of the white and colored races in North Carolina are the same, and what injures one will surely and inevitably result in injury to the other. Let there, then, be no strife between them. Let each respect the rights of the other, and peace and harmony will prevail.

Democratic District Meetings.—We again remind our Democratic friends of the primary meetings to be held in various districts on to-morrow, Saturday, the 3rd inst., for the appointment of delegates to the county convention to be held in this city on the 10th inst., and urge a full attendance.

Republican Candidate for Congress.—The Republican Congressional Convention met in this city yesterday, and nominated Judge John E. Smith, of Carroll county, for Congress on the first ballot, he receiving the vote of Carroll, Frederick and Washington counties. Allegany cast five votes for Pearre and one for Hoffman.

Colored Man Killed.—On Friday of last week an unknown colored man was killed by the eastward bound freight train, near the Pt. of Rocks, in this county He was attempting to cross the track, when the engineer sounded the alarm, but becoming, it is supposed, confused, he did not get out of the way in time, and the whole train passed over his body, crushing and mangling it in an awful manner.

Agricultural Society.—The last regular meeting of the Frederick County Agricultural Society prior to the exhibition, will be held at the Court House to-morrow, Saturday the 3rd inst. It is to be hoped that there will be a full attendance of members. The more active members, and especially the committees, and officers of the Society, have been meeting from time to time, for several months past, and zealously laboring to perfect arrangements for a successful exhibition. In the success of the Fair not only the members of the Society, but every citizen of the county should feel a deep interest. A large amount of capital has been expended in the grounds and improvements; and obligations have been contracted by public spirited members of the Society, which it should be the desire of all good citizens to see liquidated. He who through petty zealousy, or from disappointment in not receiving premiums at past exhibitions, seeks to damage the Society, not only defeats the laudable efforts of the officers of the association to promote its success and increase its usefulness, but does great injustice to those public spirited members who have made themselves personally liable for large sums expended in improvements; and they also retard or defeat all enterprises destined for the public benefit, which depend so often, in the commencement, upon the liberality and public spirit of a few individuals. Mistakes, errors of judgment, may and do occur, no doubt, in all such associations, where most of the labor of all preliminary arrangements are confined to the few who constitute the more active membership; but these errors or mistakes can constitute no just ground for opposition to the society. If inefficient officers have been selected, they can be displaced, and others substituted in their place, since there are regular elections and every member has a vote in the choice of the chief officers of the society. If committees neglect the duties assigned them, others who take a deeper interest in the character and success of the society, will, no doubt, at the proper time, be selected to fill their places. We have no manner of doubt that our society is as fairly, and honorably conducted, as any in the State; and it is but simple justice to assume that the chief, if not the sole purpose of the officers and managers, is to promote the noble objects for which it was established. And, hence, we are gratified to learn, notwithstanding some criticisms and complaints in regard to former decisions of one or more of the committees on the award of premiums, that there has been as general satisfaction as in all such competitions may be reasonably expected; and that there is every reason to expect that the approaching Fair will rival, in attractiveness of its several departments, any that has preceded it in this county. Every farmer in the county, as well as every citizen, no matter in what pursuit engaged, should feel a pride in and endeavor to promote the success of the Frederick County Agricultural Society, whose public exhibitions have heretofore surpassed in attractiveness those of any county in the State, and frequently rivalling those of the State Agricultural Society.

Mr. Jas. Moore, a soldier of the war of 1812, died at his residence in Urbana district on the 18th ult., aged about 83 years. The deceased was esteemed an honest and upright man in the community where he resided.

Robbery on the Highway.—Mr. Harrison Connelly of this city was beset by two highwaymen about 4 o'clock on Wednesday morning of last week, while returning from the camp meeting held in Mr. Cramer's woods, and robbed of his money. This daring piece of villainy was committed about 2 miles from town.

DeHaven's Circus.—The greatest Circus of the age will visit Frederick city on Tuesday, the 13th of September, and give two entertainments, afternoon and night. The fame of this great show preceded its appearance here, and we have no doubt that all, young and old, will go to see it. See advertisment in another column.

Lippincott's Magazine for September has been received, and, as usual, contains a variety of interesting matter. The following are the contents:—Admetus; The Story of the Sapphire; By Steam and Paddle to Manitoba; About Dogs; Sir Harry Hotspur of Humblethwaite; Mexican Reminiscences; A Pilgrimage; The House of Pennypacker & Son; Waifs from Field, Camp and Garrison; On the Hypothesis of Evolution, Physical and Metaphysical; A Glimpse of Quebec; My Story; Errata; Monthly Gossip, and Literature of the Day.

Peabody Lyceum.—This popular literary society will resume its exercises at Kemp Hall on next Tuesday evening the 6th inst., at 7½ o'clock. The gentlemen composing its membership will devote their time and talent towards rendering their entertainments attractive during the season, and they hope their efforts will receive, as heretofore, the encouraging presence of an appreciative public. The exercises embrace select reading, essays, original declamation, debate, &c. Ladies and gentlemen are invited to be present at the hour named.

Census.—The following are the census statistics of the several districts herein named:

	No Inhabitants.	No. Dwellings.	No. Families.
Emmittsburg,	2,464	379	392
Creagerstown,	2,005	355	369

Mechanicstown,	2,319	429	322
Hauvers,	1,388	238	249
Total	9,502	1,648	1,509

The town of Emittsburg, as officially shown, has 707 inhabitants, 145 dwellings and 392 families; Mechanicstown has 563 inhabitants, 119 dwellings and 125 families.

Robbery Foiled.—On Wednesday night of last week, after Mrs. Mary Young and Miss Sophia Hergesheimer, living on East Third street, had retired, about 11 o'clock one of them was awakened by a noise at the door leading to their bed room, and seeing a human face peering into their room, she screamed, and jumping from the bed, ran and shut the door in the face of the burglarious intruder, who immediately fled. He had effected an entrance to their bed room by way of a back building standing near the door. Several robberies have been committed at this house within a few years, and the robber has, it is supposed, always effected his entrance in the manner described.

Death of Mr. John J Willson.—We regret to announce the death of this much respected gentleman, which occurred at his residence in this city, on Thursday of last week, after several weeks' illness, in the 65th year of his age. Possessed of ample fortune, Mr. Willson never pursued any business or profession, nor did he ever take any active part in politics. Though courteous to all, he cultivated only a limited circle of friends. Such were his habits and temperament, that we presume he had not an enemy in the community.—He leaves a large family to mourn their loss. His remains were interred in Mt. Olivet Cemetery, attended by a very large concourse of relatives and friends.

Sudden Death.—Mr. Luther M. Schaeffer, a well known druggist in this city, and highly esteemed citizen, was attacked with appoplexy while alone in his store on Thursday evening of last week. He was discovered lying on the floor behind the counter, in an apparently dying condition, by Dr. Mitchell, who entered the store for the purpose of making a purchase. Assistance was promptly rendered and proper remedies administered; but medical skill failed to restore the death-stricken man, and after lingering in an unconscious state until Friday night, expired. Deceased was a son of Rev. Doctor Schaeffer who was, for many years, pastor of the Lutheran Church in this city. Deceased was an upright, amiable, courteous gentleman, and enjoyed the good will and esteem of all classes. His remains were interred in Mt. Olivet Cemetery on Saturday last, attended by a large concourse of distressed relatives and friends.

Another Sudden Death.—We are also compelled to announce the sudden death of Mr. John H. Wood, of New Market district, who was stricken with paralysis at his residence on Tuesday of last week, which caused his death in a few hours. Deceased was the father of J. E. R. Wood, Esq, of this city, was 65 years old, and was well known and highly esteemed throughout the community in which he resided. His remains were deposited in their last resting place on Thursday, the ceremonies of which were attended by a large circle of sorrowing relatives and sympathising friends.

The sale of lager beer in this country last year amounted to $21,000,000.

Twenty applications for a divorce a week is the average in Vigo county, Ind., which has 20,000 inhabitants.

The Odd Fellows of the United States according to a late enumeration, are something over 250,000 strong.

Gen. Humphery Marshall, an ex-Confederate, is a candidate for Congress in the Louisville district, in Kentucky.

The Chicago Times says of the Radical party "it is a political organization whose only succes has been based upon a theory." In place of "theory," the Times of course meant thievery.

Very little faith, says an exchange, is to be placed in the Democracy of a man who does not patronize his county paper, and use all his influence towards advancing its prosperity.

A wild cat attempted to take a baby out of its cradle in a cabin near Mankato, Minn., but a little black and tan dog attacked and fought it until the mother came in and drove the wild beast out with a brand of fire.

Gov. Alcorn of Mississippi, has vetoed and defeated a bill passed by the Mississippi Legislature giving all the State advertisements to Radical papers. The consequence is, four have died within a few weeks.

It takes seventeen seconds to send a written message through a pneumatic tube from London to a point four hundred miles distant. This beats steam and is not much behind electricity. Bags of heavy mail matter are sent three miles in two seconds.

The Fall Elections.

The 1st State election occurs on the 6th of September. Vermont leads off on that day with her usual State and Congressional election. The Senatorial question is not a matter of controversy in Vermont at this time, inasmuch as there will be no vacancy until 1873, when the term of Senator Morrill will expire. In California local elections occur on the 7th of September. The question lies between the Irish element as endorsed by the Democracy and the the Chinese element as endorsed by the Republicans. In San Francisco the main question is upon the election of school trustees.

But the most important election in September is that in Maine, which occurs on the 12th. Maine has had the credit of leading off—"Dirigo" is her motto—in the State elections, which make their impress upon national politics. This year in Maine the Democracy have thrown their strength into the canvass in favor of electing Governor Chamberlain, a Republican, to the United States Senate, in place of Lot M. Morrill.

Following Maine will be the State elections in October—the first on the 1st of the month in Indiana, succeeded by Mississippi and Florida on the 3rd; Iowa, Ohio and Pennsylvania on the 11th, and West Virginia on the 27th. These conclude the electioneering campaign for the month of October. The October elections will be especially important, as preparing the way to decide the question whether the Republicans shall have a majority of two-thirds, if any, in the Forty-second Congress. November is the month for the gathering of the clans in shapes so formidable that the foreshadowing of the result of the Presidential election in 1872 may be limned by careful observers. Kansas, Louisiana, Minnesota, Misouri and Delaware lead out on the 1st of the month, succeeded by New York, Virginia, Massachusetts, Illinois, Michigan, Wisconsin, Maryland, New Jersey, South Carolina and Tennessee on the 8th of the month.

"Old Kaintuck."—What was won in Kentucky is thus summed up: "The Democratic majority in Kentucky will exceed fifty thousand. The Radicals have not carried a single county in the State. With all their efforts, with the aid of the independents, with the acquisition of the negro vote, with a perfect organization arrayed against a party whose strength has made it weak at least in discipline, they have been able to achieve nothing. They had the eager undeveloped assurance of a new hope to inspire them. They had encountered a divided and undrilled antagonist. The result is an overwhelming victory for the Democratic party.

"The Radicals will never have a better chance. They have shown themselves just strong enough to consolidate the Democratic elements and to enforce strict Democratic discipline."

Impeachment of Holden.—Advices from North Carolina state that the preliminaries are being arranged for the impeachment of Governor Holden. The Conservatives state that they have sufficient evidence in their possession to show that the Governor has done more than enough to cause his removal from office through the form of impeachment. Some of the Republicans who blame Holden for politically losing the State, expresses a willingness to assist in getting rid of him.

A Murderer Hung by a Mob.—Beck the alleged murderer of the Good family on Favorite Island, Austin county, Mississippi, who was brought there last week by the sheriff of Tunica county, Mississippi, was taken from the jail at Austin, Mississippi, Wednesday, morning by forty citizens and taken to Favorite Island, and hanged to a tree over the spot where the murderer had buried Mrs. Good. It is said that Beck acknowledged the murder.

A curious case occurred in Fryburg, Me., on Wednesday last. Two cows come together on the banks of the beautiful Saco. They hooked and pushed and twisted until they got their horns locked, when one of them went over the bank and broke her neck, and of course dragged the other too, both going into the water, the living one only to be held down by the dead one until drowned.

What Does Reason Say?

The little mongoose when bitten by a deadly serpent resorts to a certain plant, eats of it, and escapes the effect of the poison. That is instinct. Human beings on the other hand, must depend on reason and experience in selecting the means of protecting health and life against unwholesome influences Now, what does reason say on this vital subject? Does it not tell us that to invigorate and purify the system is the best way to protect it against the invisible poison which generates disease? Surely it does. The next question is, what guide shall we follow in choosing a medicinal safeguard? Reason replies let your monitor be experience. Well, the experience of eighteen years comprised in one unbroken series of satisfactory testimonials assures us that Hostetter's Stomach Bitters possess strengthening, regulating and antiseptic properties which are not combined in the same happy proportions in any other preparation extant. This therefore is the antidote to which reason bids us resort when our health is imperilled either by the malaria which produces epidemic disorders, or by any other cause, whether inherent and constitutional or connected with our habits, occupations and pursuits.

The venom of a noxious reptile is scarcely more subtle and dangerous than that which lurks in foul air and impure water. To escape the fevers, bilious disorders, disturbances of the bowels, and other serious maladies produced by these insalubrious elements, it is absolutely necessary that the stomach and all the secretive organs should be, so to speak, in a robust condition. Upon the amount of resistance which the vital system can oppose to the deleterious influences that assail it, the safety of the health depends, and it is because the GREAT VEGETABLE INVIGORANT imparts energy and regularity to the most important functions of the body, that it can be recommended and guaranteed as an invaluable preventive medicine.
