The Republican Citizen.

Cool and Impudent.

The New York Tribune has been taking feudal authority to task, and cites an extraordinary case of submission to it. We quote:

"Lately, in Dunfries, the Duke of Buccleugh ordered all his tenants to vote for the Tory candidate for the House of Commons. His Grace had employed a certain Dr. Macauley to attend upon the sick among his miners, and the doctor was also medical officer of the parish of Canrobie. Dr. Macauley, with real Scotch independence, saw fit to support the Liberal candidate. For this iniquity he was commanded to cease his attendance upon the colliers, and by the influence of the great man his appointment as parochial doctor was cancelled. The tenants petitioned to have Dr. Macauley retained, and were laughed at for their pains. The workhouse people might as well have petitioned, with Oliver Twist at their head, for the removal of Mr. Bumble. The persecuted physician tried to make a living in Canrobie as an independent doctor; but the Duke set up a Tory doctor in opposition, and commanded every body to be physicked by his protege. Consequently, Dr. Macauley was forced to flee to some other part of this lonely land of liberty."

The comment of philosopher Greeley upon this "relic of barbarism," is very characteristic. He says: "Petty despotism like this would drive free and enlightened Americans to insanity or rebellion." Now, we call that cool and sublimely impudent, unless, indeed, it be intended for the supreme of sarcasm. When it is known that the white slaves of the North, especially in manufacturing districts, are regularly coerced and dragooned into voting as the task-master desires; and when it is perfectly well understood that Southern negroes are driven to the polls by oath-bound loyal leagues; and when it is not forgotten that the President-General and his central conspirators live and breathe and have existence mainly by the intimidation of the bayonet at the ballot box, and by military interference with State governments; and when the sword can perpetrate any violence, in defiance of law and pig-headed people—this spread eagle tribute to "free and enlightened Americans" would fill us with laughter if it were not too pathetic a thing to be merry when ones country is going to the devil pell-mell.—Augusta Constitutionalist.

We are pleased to see that the suggestion we made in our last meets with a concordant sympathy from a number who have formerly been opposed, and some of them bitterly, to the Democratic party.

They clearly understand that to secure the success of the opposition to Republicanism we must form a close union with the great National party now so successfully opposing that party. That to organize for the next Presidential Campaign there must be no break in the ranks—no "Conservatives" in Virginia while there are only Democrats elsewhere. All must be Democrats or perfect failure will be the result.

We have been clearly of this opinion for a long while, but, on account of the feeling engendered by old party prejudices, and for the good of our whole people, we did not insist upon it. At this day a clearer view can be had of the whole political field than heretofore, and prejudice has given away to a great extent, before stern facts. In consequence, the general desire is to unite with that old organization, which has continued to battle with the Republican party through good and ill, and is today reaping the result of its incessant contest. The object is to restore the Government to its pristine purity, and this it is acknowledged, can only be done through the instumentality of the Democratic party. It stands to-day the bulwark and support of the country—the hope of the nation.

All who look to results in the future, will rejoice that a party exists to-day upon which they can lean as a staff and support. The columns of Democracy are rapidly increasing. Fall in and swell it to the utmost.

The long-roll of the next Presidential contest will be sounded ere long, and the friends of good Government will be summoned to rally, to restore and preserve the Constitution of our fathers. There must then be no wavering. He, who fails to oppose the infractions of Republicanism, had as well be with that party. Quibbling will not answer. Dislike to names will not avail with a people ground down by unjust and unnecessary taxation. But a manly opposition to the extravagances of the party in power will be required—aye, is necessary to accomplish the full defeat of that party, which has been so favorably begun in the late elections. This done, and Radicalism dead, there will be time and opportunity afforded to all to unite with parties differing on the issues of the day, and both striving to preserve the government under the Constitution handed down to us. Then away with all prejudice and let Democracy be the rallying cry until the Radicalism of today has ceased to exist on American soil.—Staunton (Va.) Vindicator.

The Richmond Dispatch says that the nomination thus early of Gov. Hoffman for the Presidency is injudicious, and that he is likely to be "killed off" before the canvass begins. It adds: "The man who will be next President is not named, probably not thought of, in connection with the office. He should be a man not inculpated prominently in the old party strifes. He should be a man of strong intellect, unimpeachable integrity, a good judge of law, with a strong devotion to the equality of the States and the personal liberty of the citizen. He should be a man whose nomination would not bring into the campaign the old rancors and prejudices inspired by dead issues and engendered by the war. Such a man can be elected." And in our judgment that man is Thomas A. Hendricks of Indiana, who supplies most admirably all of the above conditions.

One of the results of the election in Missouri was the adoption by that State of six Constitutional amendments, which, abolish, first, the district court system; second, the jurors' test oath; third, the double liability clause for private corporations; fourth, the voters' test oath; fifth, the disqualifications for holding office on account of disloyalty, &c.; the sixth adds a clause forbidding the General Assembly, or "any county, city, town, township, school district, or other municipal corporation," to make appropriations either im money, real estate, or other property to any sectarian purpose whatever.

When John Saxon, editor of the Canton Repository, the oldest paper in Ohio, heard of the battle of Sedan and the capture of the Emperor, he wrote and published the account of the event in a column parallel with a reprint of the account he wrote and published in the same paper of the surrender of Napoleon at Waterloo in 1815. He is the only editor probably in the world who has written of the exit of both Napoleons in the same paper.

Coming Home.

The curses which his Accidency has been indulging for some time upon members of his own party who did not choose to do his dirty work are coming home to roost. Day after day one and another party organ has turned upon him, until he, to-day presents the spectacle of the worst cursed man that ever sat in the Presidential chair—Andrew Johnson not excepted. The latter was abused by the party he had deserted, while Grant is abused by all parties. The Democratic journals have said a great many severe things of him, but none that in point of bitterness and severity will compare with those we find in the editorial columns of leading republican papers. As a specimen of the style of some of these chice philippics we extract the following from the Chicago Republican:

"It has been no uncommon thing for party organs in the United States to accuse Presidents of their own party of party offences, untruth to the party principles, or unfaithfulness to their actual or implied pledges in respect to individuals or policy. It is the common fate of acceding Vice Presidents to suffer under accusations of party perfidy in general, accompanied, for the sake of emphasis, with suggestions of official malfeasance. But the official career of General Grant presents a case that is peculiar. He stands charged not so much with unfaithfulness to his party as official misconduct and personal meanness; and these charges are so well established, so universally believed, and so freely enlarged upon, that the organs of his own party even which speak in his favor or attempt his vindication are the exception. No American President taking for it the testimony of the Republican press, was ever more thoroughly despised or deserved it better than the one who now dishonors the highest place in the gift of the people by his tenancy."

DISINTERMENT OF THE REMAINS OF LADY FENWICK.—The authorities in the town of Saybrook, Conn., last week removed the monument erected there to Lady Fenwick, the first white woman buried in Connecticut soil, removal being necessary for railroad improvements. In searching for the remains the bones of the deceased were discovered, the skull being found intact and the teeth well preserved, and about the skull were the remains of the hair, which crumbled at the touch. Lady Fenwick was buried at Saybrook Point in 1648, 222 years ago. The remains and monument are to be placed in the Saybrook Cemetery with formal ceremonies.

The American Dollar! MASTERS OF THE SITUATION.

"We have met the enemy and they are ours."

The Best Goods at the Lowest Prices!

Our system of buying under the relentless hammer and clearing them out like lightning at a close shave over cost, has absolutely cleared out the old fogies and land pirates like chaff, like mist before the rising sun. Living in the Auction Rooms of New York, Boston, and Philadelphia, standing there with the almighty power of gold upon a market demoralized by speculation, panic, and failures, fighting alike and upon the same level, the wavering, the bankrupt, and the Dry Goods gambler, we have again and again beaten them in a struggle where the titan power of genius and ambition, and sleepless energy was bound to triumph over rotten profligacy, old fogyism and wholesale robbery. Then what's the use of talking about fighting men who would rather die than stand second to any living man! Every brand and grade of

DOMESTICS, PRINTS & FLANNELS,

under the lowest wholesale quotations.—Woolen and Cotton fabrics at about half the current prices. Alpacas, Silk Warps, Poplins, Mohairs, Reps in fancies, plain and changables, at a figure far below their gold cost.

DRESS GOODS

of every grade, at prices that must tell of frightful butchery somewhere. So with Linens, White Goods and Silks; and in Laces, Embroideries and Trimmings; as well as Ribbons, Feathers and Flowers—you will especially note the panic here. They were thrown into the Auction Rooms by a grand old house who had battled nobly against fate, but at last went down with a "present arms," and we got the entire stock. Hence these unaccountable bargains; these prices that arouse the suspicion of the buyer, that they might have been stolen or smuggled.

Ah! who knows the waste of money when you get your goods of men who buy and sell on credit? Look at the vast amount of money squandered in this rotten old cut-throat system. Pay the cash and save your money. Buy of the men who are the acknowledged leaders and masters of business. Waste not your time with these high-priced buzzards who have fattened upon the masses, and who are now madly trying to regain the position whence we have driven them. Alas; they are to-day the servile imitators of our advanced and scientific system, but lack the brains and nerve to follow us.

Let them match our panic prices in Hosiery, Gloves and Notions! Let them approach within long range of our figures upon our grand specialties in Domestics and Dress Goods. They would have to sell at half cost and then not come within a mile of us. Not by favor but by merit, do we maintain our reputation. Gold is a good thing, but give us genius and ambition, and then with an energy that never sleeps and a brain that never tires, we will ride rough shod over the world.

"Aut Cæsar aut Nihil."

Everywhere we have forced them to follow where we have led, or starve.

Come and see us often and judge us by our matchless goods and low prices. We will meet you at the threshold with civility, cortesy and low prices, that will bewilder you—that will at once impress you with this fact, that you are saving your money and trading with men who understand all about business
