a governor. He quickly came into national prominence from his outspoken opposition to the Eighteenth Amendment and his advocacy of the doctrines of State Rights.

In 1924 he was named as a candidate for the Democratic Presidential nomination. He had increasing support in both the conventions of 1928 and 1932.

During his fifteen years as Chief Executive of Maryland he brought about changes in the state. He reduced the state tax rate, cut the number of departments and boards in two, put through the contract which resulted in the building of the Conowingo dam, established a road system and made improvements in practically every branch of state public activity.

At the height of his career he had a tremendous hold upon the esteem of Maryland citizens who swept him into office with constantly mounting pluralities. Even his defeat in 1934 which was caused by a variety of reasons was accomplished only by a small margin in a huge vote.

Mr. Ritchie's life was practically a public one. He was an only child. He married the former Elizabeth Catherine Baker of Catonsville in 1907, and after their divorce in 1916 he never remarried.

Agencies which seek to scuttle American ideals of religion, morality and government were condemned by the speaker. To offset these he urged that civic organizations seek to protect our system of government and our traditional beliefs as to what is best for American life.

Mr. Byrd concluded with an appeal for the retention of American ideals and sturdy patriotism.

Two vocal selections were offered by a male quartet composed of Norville Rodney, the Rev. L. Colvin Randall, J. Hall Barton and Roy H. Wilson. They were accompanied by Mrs. Milton B. Wolcott.

The program was arranged by Ernest W. Grubb and Kenneth W. Baker with the ladies of St. Paul's Church serving the dinner.
