UP AND DOWN THE Eastern Shore

Appointment Strikes Snag

Elkton—The appointment of Dr. Norman Cameron as Superintendent of Cecil County's School to replace Howard T. Ruhl, resigned, has struck a snag in the refusal of State Superintendent Dr. Albert S. Cook to approve Dr. Cameron for the post. Two rumors going the rounds for Dr. Cook's refusal: 1) He favors one of three local high school principals for the post; 2) Age. Dr. Cameron would be eligible for a pension with less than 5 years' service.

Switch Minority Leaders

Salisbury—In a surprise political move among the Republicans, Senator O. Straughn Lloyd of Wicomico was named minority floor leader for the Special session of the General Assembly, replacing J. David Baile, Carroll County. Senator Harry T. Phoebus, Somerset Republican insurgent, reputedly engineered the switch, because Baile favors extension of the Sales Tax.

"25 Years In Hell"

Princess Anne— A stirring phrase from the mouth of a minister landed Princess Anne in daily newspapers throughout the land when the Rev. R. Ward Mills, being sued in Circuit Court here by his wife for non-payment in a separation agreement, testified that a reconciliation was impossible. "Twenty-five years in hell is long enough for any man", the minister replied. Further hearing will be held March 14.

Easy Pickin'

Ocean City—A house cat which came home with a white perch in its mouth tipped off its owner, Joshua Bowdoin, to a quick, easy way to pick up a nice piece of change. Bowdoin watched the cat, followed it and found that the fish had come from the warm ocean water and had been rendered numb by the colder waters of Sinepuxent Bay. Bowdoin picked a bushel or so out of the water, sold them.

Garment Trades Resume

Federalsburg—Idle for nearly two years the shirt factory here owned by Topkis Brothers, Wilmington, has been sold to a New York concern and is to resume operation with a payroll of 50 to 75. Similar developments at Snow Hill drew a half-page ad sponsored by Worcester County business men in thanking S. Leibowitz for "outstanding progressiveness".

Shore Farm Sold

Chestertown—"White House Farm" near here owned by the widow of Dr. Thomas W. Sparklin and claimed to be the original site on which the building of Chestertown was planned, has been sold to Roy E. Diamint of Olean, N. Y. for $18,000.

Fan Dancing in Cecil

Elkton—In the opinion of Sheriff Racine's forces a floor show at Earl Bunker's road house near Appleton which featured Cecilie Ray, a Nebraska fan dancer, was a bit too rough. Cecilie drew a $15 fine for indecent exposure, and the proprietor was assessed $50 for a disorderly house.

Bequest to Churches

Princess Anne—Episcopal churches in this section and the Children's Home at Easton were named as beneficiaries for three quarters of the more than $60,000 estate of the late Cassius M. Dashiell, canner, churchman, and historian who died last Christmas Day.

Fancy Police Court

Salisbury—People's Court in Wicomico County dissolved by the Court of Appeals last summer, is to be reestablished if three measures introduced at the Special Legislative Session are enacted and will cost $4,500 annually. Salaries: Judge, $2,400; court clerk, $1,500, and $600 additional to the State's Attorney for attendance at court.

Cannon for Caroline

Denton—The courthouse green here is to be decorated with an 8,000 pound German field piece captured in the World War as a present from the War Department to the Caroline Post of the American Legion. Commander Winfield T. Nichols, Legion Commander, said the cannon will be transferred here from Aberdeen as soon as a concrete base is installed to receive it.

Schooner Limps In

Crisfield—Believed to have run afoul of a disabled beacon at the mouth of the Little Annamessex river, the 200-ton schooner Ida B. Conway limped into Crisfield harbor with a gaping hole in her hulk below the waterline, and local firemen pumped her out preparatory to temporary repairs. Owned by Harvey B. Conway, Cambridge, the schooner is captained by George Johnson.

City Sued for $25,000

Salisbury—The City of Salisbury has been named defendant in a suit for $25,000 filed in U. S. Dist. Court by Alice G. Castellow, Portsmouth, Va., widow of Gilbert Castellow, truck owner-operator who lost his life here Feb. 27, 1935, when his truck, loaded with 154 coops of chickens and 80 crates of eggs failed to negotiate the curve at Camden bridge and plunged into the Wicomico River.

Trapper Catches Mink

Rock Hall—Minks are rare in this section but last week John Boulter, local trapper, caught one. He is keeping the animal as a pet.

Shore Leave

Chestertown—Several sailors off the U. S. Coast Guard Cutter "Travis", assigned to the Chester river on an ice-breaking mission, came ashore here for a frolic, wound up in a free-for-all, and forked over $20 each in Police Judge John Vickers' court.

Herring on the Menu

Crisfield—Capt. Steve Pruitt, Tangier Island commercial fisherman, officially opened the 1936 "fish season" when he brought the first boat load of herring into port. He had 350 aboard and found a ready market at 5c each.

Ban Virginia Boats

Ocean City — Vessels licensed to dredge Virginian waters cannot be employed in Worcester County areas by Ocean City oyster packers, according to State Conservation Inspectors. Local concerns, anxious for a quick catch in Isle of Wight and Sinepuxent Bays, sought additional labor from Chincoteague, Va Hiring of individual labor was approved but Virginia registered craft was not permitted.
