WORMSEED PLANT BEDS DAMAGED

The wormseed plant beds in the county are suffering severe damage. In many cases the entire bed has been destroyed. Field observations and microscopic examinations made at the labratories of the University of Maryland by County Agent Walrath shows that the injury is caused by a very small flee-like insect. This tiny bug, which is the lowest order of insect life, does not have either true chewing or sucking mouth parts, but scrapes or rasps the tender surface of the leaves, stem and roots and thus secures the juice of the tender plants.

The season has been so cold and backward that the plants have not grown fast enough to get away from the injury, as they do in ordinary years. In some cases spraying in the early part of the season with some form of insecticides such as arsenate of lead, pyrox, and nicotine preparations gave some control. The plants are now so weakened and the insect so numerous that heavy applications of ground tobacco dust or finely ground tobacco stems is recommended by Dr. E. N. Cory, State Entomologist. This should be broadcasted at the rate of about a pound to 80 square feet of bed. More than one application may be necessary if rain leaches away the strength of the tobacco. The material is cheap and effective.

It will also be advisable to stimulate the growth of the weakened plants by some quick acting fertilizer that will not cause damage such as

Lost~ 466 Carloads of Coal!

A COAL COMPANY recently learned that two firms in Milwaukee were in the market for a large tonnage. Instantly it dispatched one of its best men to the Wisconsin city, equipped with favorable prices and terms.

But while their representative sped westward in a fast train, a competitor in Charleston, W. Va., learned of the situation. Immediately he called the two Milwaukee firms by long distance telephone and sold 466 carloads of coal! When the salesman for the first concern arrived the order was lost.

The long distance telephone has become the right-hand man of modern business. In tracing shipments, in checking overdue accounts, in building better customer relations, and in direct selling, the magic of voice-to-voice communication is showing direct results on the business balance sheet.
