UP AND DOWN THE Eastern Shore

Bigwigs in Net

Cambridge—The names of Motormaker Walter P. Chrysler, Packer Albanus Phillips, and Joseph B. Weaver, Chief of the Bureau of Navigation and Steamboat Inspection of the Department of Commerce, were included in a list of 26 persons asked to appear in District Court, Baltimore, on Oct. 27 for alleged violations of the U. S. migratory bird act relating to duck hunting. Albird act relating to duck hunting. The various charges: shooting over baited areas, using live decoys, shooting without a stamp, and using unplugged guns. Chrysler and Weaver have shooting lodges in Dorchester County.

Ocean City's Season

Ocean City—This seashore resort, able now to look back upon the summer season and compile figures, called the year the best in its history. Record crowds marked the week-ends during the height of the season. Fourth of July drew 65,000 visitors, Labor Day 40,000 Bank deposits were $437,000 for July, $3,000 higher than previous records, August topped the record for that month by $60,000, and milk consumption at the hotels, cottages and apartments topped the old marks by 500 quarts daily. A thousand more boats passed through the drawbridge than ever before.

Farmer Kills Self

Princess Anne—Emery T. Nyquist, 23, despondent since his father was struck and killed by a train several months ago, committed suicide at his farm home, near here. A shotgun was found near his body.

Religious Relic

Crisfield—Workmen on a sewer line in the downtown section unearthed a part of the prow of an old barge, known locally as "The Ark", on which a religious Englishman, Mr. Denike, conducted Sunday school and church services in the period following the Civil War. Through the week Denike had the craft fitted up as an oyster house. Suggestions have been made that the section of the prow be painted and preserved on the City Hall as a relic of early Crisfield.

"Bootleg" Ordinance Invalid

Chestertown—An ordinance passed by the City Council prohibiting the sale of coal within the city limits except by licensed dealers has been declared unconstitutional by the Council's counsel, former Senator S. Scott Beck. If vendors bring their coal here to peddle it from door to door the ordinance prohibits such sales, but the Council has no authority to prohibit residents from ordering consignments of coal from the mines, Beck held.

Tilghman for F. D. R.

Salisbury—Col. Wm. B. Tilghman, manufacturer, banker, civic and religious leader and lifelong Republican who was appointed by Gov. Nice to the Wicomico County Board of Education, has announced that he will support President Roosevelt for reelection. Tilghman ran for State Senator on the Republican ticket in 1930, losing to Senator David J. Ward by 9 votes.

Nightwatchman Robbed

Federalsburg—A thief turned prankster at Bill Jones' place near town. The culprit not only emptied the till of its contents but removed the eyeglasses and badge from a sleeping night watchman and placed them in the money drawer from which the cash had been removed. The whereabouts of a nightwatchman hired to watch the dozing watchman at the time of the robbery was not revealed

Fall Strawberries Move

Princess Anne—Somerset and Wicomico Coutny farmers who cultivate ever-bearing varieties of strawberries have been receiving good prices for their fruit. Thirty-pint flat crates are bringing $4.20 per crate, or 14c per pint.

Salvo Upon Salvo

Snow Hill—Summer Wells, Under Secretary of State, and U. S. Solicitor General Stanley Reed will be among an imposing list of speakers at a Worcester County Democratic rally to be held here on Oct. 27. A detachment of State police will escort the dignitaries to Snow Hill and the 40-piece Cambridge band will furnish the music. Commented the Democratic Messenger: "The heavily loaded guns of the Democratic party will fire upon salvo of fine addresses from the courthouse."

Plea for GOP Cash

Easton—"If the (Republican) leaders have all that money they say they have, why don't they send some of it down here. Bills of several years standing remain unpaid. Hats and baby carriages promised to colored voters in past campaigns are yet undelivered." In that manner, Herbert T. Seymour, Chairman of the State Central Committee of Talbot county, summarized GOP problems after State Republican Chairman Lawson had denied that National Republican headquarters had cut off funds to Maryland because of the strong Roosevelt vote in the Sunpapers poll. Lawson said no shortage of funds had come to his attention.
