Jack Perry Comes Up With More All-Stars Than Friel, Wins 7-1

Tony Hudson Hits Home Run With Two On. Fountain And Killen Outpitch Schelberg And Copple. Another Game Set For Sunday.

Baseball may have vacated the throne in other parts but in Centreville it still holds forth. Under bright October skies and in the presence of a huge turnout, there was a keen game here Sunday.

Jack Perry's All Stars put the skids under Jim Friel's similarly stellar aggregation, 7 to 1. The game was heralded as a test between Perry and Friel, but long before the first ball was pitched the fans started calling the teams Centreville vs. Queenstown, and so it went. Thus Centreville defeated Queenstown.

To get right down to the nub of the proposition, Perry rounded up more pitching talent than Friel could corral.

Hickey Fountain, ex-Washington College and now Federalsburg tosser, was Perry's No. 1 sharpshooter, and for seven innings he had Friel's lads handcuffed, save for one run. Killen, Milford moundsman who had a trip South with the Phillies last spring, took over the chores to start the eighth and carried on brilliantly.

Meanwhile the veteran Jack Schelberg, who opened for Queenstown, let Tony Hudson of Princess Anne mace him for a home run with two on in the fourth. Nothing mattered after that. Addis Copple took up the lost cause in the fifth.

Friel's boys got their only run in the sixth when Gray walked, took second on a passed ball, moved to third on an infield out, and jogged in when Biscuit Morris slammed a regulation double over the right field fence.

It looked like Queenstown might go places in a hurry. Hump Campbell, first man up, tripled into left. But Gray grounded out and Fountain whiffed Legates and Casper Clough. Incidentally, siege-gun Casper had a harmless day. He failed to get a ball out of the infield and whiffed twice.

Joe Williams scored Centreville's first run in the third. After forcing Cole, who had singled, Joe went to third on the hit and run when Holloway drove the ball in center. He scored when Rinehart failed to come up cleanly with Eddie Turner's grounder.

Howdy Pfund, crack all-around Washington Colleeg athlete, personally accounted for a marker in the sixth on a daring piece of base running. He drew a base on balls. When Maggs laid down a perfect sacrifice, Howdy started running and never stopped until he crossed the plate. In the interim First Baseman Gray made a wild throw to third trying to catch him.

Joe Williams put on another of these near-personal affairs in the seventh when he tripled to deep center and came in on Holloway's single. In the next round Joe was on the other end of a one-run sortie, his single driving in Maggs.

The game was such a huge success that Perry and Friel will put on another one next Sunday—barring hail, sleet or a blizzard. Umpire George, who made the announcement of another game, prefaced his remarks with . . . unless it snows. Also that dignitary said there would be "more stars in the game". Whether it's Perry or Friel who fortifies remains to be seen.

Terps Hit Timely, Win Series From Kent Island Blue Jays

Queenstowners Take Advantage of Bases on Balls To Hammer Out 7-3 Win Against 3 Pitchers. Copple Settles After Rocky Start

The Queenstown Terps won the rubber tilt of a three game series and with it the championship of Queen Anne's County when they defeated the Kent Island Blue Jays last Sunday afternoon, 7 to 3.

Addis Copple, 18-year-old left-hander from Federalsburg, was on the mound for the Terps. After emerging from several hot spots in the early rounds, he settled down to pitch a workmanlike game and was never seriously threatened. The Jays had three men on the mound during the day and of the trio, only O'Neill, who came in after the damage had been done, exhibited anything resembling steadiness.

The Jays hopped into a two run lead in the second. Tormillen, first up in that chapter singled, and Gehirman drove a long wallop across the road in centerfield to come all the way home while Burkman and Clough beat the weeds in mad search of the ball. The Kent Islanders finished their scoring in the fourth on a double by Tormillen, an error by Warner and one of Copple's shoots which got away from Nichols. With the bases full and nobody out, Copple tightened to whiff Stein and Benny Clough and make George hit into a forceout at second.

The Terps, their opportunities considered, should have turned the game into a field day. Bates, opening Jay moundsman, filled the bases in the first but nothing came of it when Eddie Turner flied to center to retire the side. Burkman led off with a single in the third and Bates again grew overly indulgent, walking Barlage, Casper Clough and Carey to force in a run.

At this juncture, Kent Island's Brain Trust, headed by Monsieur Dubnow, conferred wildly, and walked Bates to the sidelines. Anshel transferred his activities from third base to the mound and got out of the jam with only one more run, scored by the medium of Eddie Turner's out at first.

Anshel was still admiring himself for this feat when he strolled to the mound in the next stanza. Before he emerged from the daze of self-adulation he had dusted Nick's bosom with a pitched ball, walked Copple, and allowed Rinehart to pop one just over second to fill the bases with nobody out. A run trickled in on Burkman's smash to the box, and Anshel promptly jammed the bases again by walking Barlage.

Once more M. Dubnow and his staff of managers conferred with considerable length and heat and agreed tentatively to offer up Chet Carter as a sacrifice to the terrible Terps. This suggestion, however, was vetoed—possibly because Chet did not have "Chesapeake Cakes" on his uniform like the rest of the boys.

Anyhow Anshel stayed on and his next effort was to whiff the redoubtable Casper Clough. But he fell to preening himself again and walked Carey to force in another run. Turner injected a two base hit at this moment to top off the four-run rally. Then the Jays switched O'Neill to the mound from first base and he did well.

Save for the sixth inning, when Burkman tripled and Carey singled, there was no more scoring.

Copple had nine strikeouts and whiffed the side in the first inning.

A biting October wind swept the field and left field was a swamp from the heavy rains, but a big crowd turned out for he finale.
