Corcoran Named As Gunning Delegate

Chosen By Upper Shore Conservation Association

Despite weather that hovered at or below the zero mark, sportsmen from five counties gathered in Centreville last Thursday night for the banquet and business meeting of the Upper Eastern Shore Conservation Association.

John P. Corcoran, President of the Association, was named as delegate to President Roosevelt's Wild Life conference to be held in Washington beginning next Monday, February 3. It was the feeling that he should go to the conference uninstructed.

At an open forum led by Nash Buckingham, representative of the Wild Life Institute who was also the speaker of the evening, gunners aired their views on what the Upper Shore should ask in the way of wildfowl regulations.

Mr. Corcoran, who left Monday for Carthage, N. C., on a three months' trip, will go to Washington from that point.

It is understood that the Tri-County Wild Fowl Association of Perryville while working in conjunction with the Upper Shore group, will also send a delegate to the Washington conference. The Tri-County organization contend that problems on the Susquehanna flats differ from any other gunning section of the country and will require special consideration.

Ingleside Homemakers' Club Holds Organization Meeting

The following officers were elected: President, Mrs. Clifford Harbidge; Vice-President, Mrs. Clarence Eley; Secretary, Mrs. Howard Dukes; Treasurer, Mrs. W. Rodger Wilson; Publicity, Mrs. Charles Brown.

It was announced that a reading project will be carried on by the club, with a State Certificate to be awarded to any member of the club who reads eight books.

Noisy Beer Drinkers

Cambridge—Vowing that "they would get him before the evening is over," Lemuel Harrison and Effie Rosetta drew sentences of 18 and 12 months respectively in the Maryland House of Correction after they had assaulted Otis LeCompte, tavern employee, on his way home. LeCompte had sought to quiet the pair while they were drinking in the establishment.

Jack Robinson Wins 2d Award

Crumpton Youth Scores In Nat'l Contest

Jack Robinson, a graduate of Sudlersville High School who is now a student at Beacom College, Wilmington, has been awarded second place in a national advertising contest conducted by Boston University and financed by the Saturday Evening Post.

The contest was conducted for the purpose of determining how well students of advertising actually apply the principles learned in the clasroom. Over nine thousand students participated, and more than two hundred and forty schools were represented. Some of the schools entered were Franklin & Marshall, Boston University, University of North Carolina, Skidmore College, University of Arkansas, and University of California.
