THE WORLD WE LIVE IN

Needs Pied Piper

Tristan De Cunha—The inhabitants of this lonely South Atlantic Island have appealed to England for aid against rats. A wrecked ship was responsible for the first rodents settling there 50 years ago. Since then rats have multiplied to the point that wheat and corn may not be raised, not even potatoes stored.

Lawful Spooning

Washington—A man may kiss his wife when he pleases in this city, ruled Judge Robert E. Mattingly, freeing A. W. Gilliam and his wife, four years married, who were arrested for kissing in their car in front of their house at midnight. The judge added that it was better for a man to kiss his wife than to "wonder who's kissing her now".

"Baby Lizzie" Dead

Indianapolis—Mrs. Mary Riley Payne, James Whitcomb Riley's youngest sister whom he immortalized in the famous "Baby Lizzie" stanza, is dead at seventy-one. She was the last surviving member of the Riley family.

Sinkless Bathing Suit

Vienna—It's late news for bathers but V. Veldomon, gadget creator, has designed a swimming suit which may be turned into a life preserver. The swimmer can use his last breath to inflate the front of the suit and float on his back until help comes.

Champion Mother

Budapest—An investigation to determine the champion mother of Hungary gives the honor to Mrs. Anna Tihaly, 51, who has given birth to twenty-seven children of whom eighteen are living.

Sober Test

Toledo, O.—Drivers suspected of being drunk will have to face a Sway Test. They will have to walk a chalk line, shut their eyes and pick up a coin from the floor and look up telephone numbers.

Drying Up

Salt Lake City—The Great Salt Lake is not only getting almost solid with salt but it is shrinking. The depth has dropped six feet in seven years and people can stand now where they would have been over their heads in 1929.

For Better Or Worse

Salt Lake City—Miss Ruth Peterson and R. S. Saley started sharing "better-or-worse" even before their marriage. When Saley was given a 15-day stretch in jail for reckless driving, Ruth received permission to serve seven and a half days of it so as not to delay the wedding. The girl was not required actually to go behind the bars.

Clothes Peeler

Easton, Mass.—Caught by the machinery of a stone crusher Frank A. Wilbur had his coat, trousers and shirt chewed off without further damage except to his modesty.

Going American

Granville, N. Y.—After seventy-five years of existence the Welsh Presbyterian Synod is surrendering its identity and joining with the Troy Presbytery. Not enough Welsh-speaking members remain.

Belching For A Purpose

New York—Trained use of a belch has been devised by Dr. Wallace Morrison as a means of enabling people whose larynx is lost through cancer to speak. The patient first learns how to make himself belch at will.

Refuses To Pass Out

Pelham Manor, N. Y.—The original Toonerville Trolley seems to have as many lives as a cat. Still another hearing is to be held on a petition to abandon the Third Avenue Railway, believed to have been Fontaine Fox's inspiration.

The Pure Of Heart

New York—A leading department store advertises: Now, we don't advocate gambling but you should see our inspiring list of Vice Promoters! Roulette, 2.19 to 32.50, Bingo, a very snooty version (2.88), horse racing games. And, of course, a neat little array of dice and chips at neat little prices.

Empire Building

Liverpool, Eng.—The Right Rev. Arthur Winnington, Bishop of London, returning from a visit to Canada, declares that Britain's empty empire is a danger to the world. He says Canada needs millions of men, advocates sending Englishmen over instead of keeping them on dole.

Navy In Short Pants

Washington—Americans in the Far East may be pardoned if they fail to recogniz e Yankee sailors hereafter. New uniforms to gobs in the Asiatic fleet include polo shirts and white and khaki colored shorts, which will help to set off the famous sea legs of the sailor.

Warmer Below

New York—How's the weather up there? is no longer a joke on the sidewalks of New York. The first snow fall of the season was visible only at the top sixteen stories of the 102 storied Empire State building. Below that level it turned to rain. Even then the snow arrived six weeks earlier than last year's first flurry.

Boy Wonder Booed

Fairmont, W. Va.—Senator Rush D. Holt, the Boy Wonder of West Virginia politics, walked out on a crowd here in the home town of Senator M. M. Neeley, his Democratic colleague but factional opponent, when the crowd booed Holt as he stepped upon the platform at the Courthouse.

County Gets Relief Check, 1st Since April

Comptroller Gordy Allows Queen Anne's $3,506.23. Larger Awards Seen

Queen Anne's obtained its first money for relief purposes from the State since February when the Board of County Commissioners received a check for $3,506.23 from the office of Comptroller William S. Gordy, Jr., Thursday. The check represents Queen Anne's share of the $500,000 distributed to Baltimore and the twenty-three counties under the welfare program passed by the last session of the General Assembly.

Except for Baltimore City, which received 60% of the entire allotment, or $300,000 minus a small deduction for administrative expenses for aid to the blind, the distribution was made according to population. Queen Anne's, 21st in size among the counties, received 1.76% of the $200,000 allowed the counties.

No intimation was given by Comptroller Gordy as to whether the distribution covers the six months period from April 1 until September 30 or for what length of time it is to last. The money may be used for relief purposes by the County Commissioners through the Welfare Office or any agency they choose to use and any balance not spent may go into the county treasury to reduce the tax rate.

Some of it may be used to reimburse the county for money advanced for relief purposes since June, at which time the Commissioners advanced $100 a month for needy cases.

At present the Welfare Office is giving relief to fourteen families, classed as unemployables in dire need. Their average monthly check is about $7 per

County Rural Loans Hit $4030

Largest Grants Made To Young Tenants

Rural rehabilitation loans in Queen Anne's county under the Federal resettlement program have amounted to $4030 for seven grants, according to County Agent Kenneth W. Baker, with the largest loan amounting to $990.

In all cases the loans have been made for the purchase of personal property as livestock and implements, for lime, fertilizer and occasionally minor repairs. Two of the largest grants were made to young men just starting out in life who wanted to make their way as tenants rather than as hands.

Loans are to be repaid in five years or less. Under the terms of the grant County Agent Baker has to lay out a farm management plan for the borrower and Miss Bewick a hom e management plan for his wife and the borrower has to keep necessary records.

In one important loan made jointly by the resettlement office and the Farm Loan bank a debtor's tangled liabilities amounting to upwards of $6,600 were straightened out and whittled down to a much smaller sum.

No loans are being granted now because of drought relief in the West.

The county quota of five whites still has two vacancies which are open until Thursday, October 15. The quota of six colored erollees was considerably overtaxed, about twenty-five applying from which six have been accepted.

Contracts Let For Gravel And Double S Curve

Work To Start On Centreville-Church Hill Highway Project

The State Roads Commission has awarded the contract for straightening Dead Man's Curve north of Centreville on the Church Hill road to Phillips Brothers of Salisbury at a price of $24,723 the Board of County Commissioners were advised on Tuesday.

Under the terms of the contract, work is to start within thirty days.

At the same time, contract to furnish and haul gravel in the county-wide lateral road improvement program was awarded to John S. Teeter and Son of Taneytown for $17,841.00. The gravel will, of course, be obtained from pits in this county.

The County Commissioners have expressed considerable concern over the lateness in awarding the gravel contract. The schedule was made up and sent to the State on July 7. However, Roads Engineer Blackwell has assured the Board that if the contractor moves in on the job quickly that the work can be completed before the onset of winter. The specifications call for 18, 360 cubic yards of gravel.

The latest figures from the State Roads Commission indicated that Queen Anne's was in the "red" $3,753.00 at the end of the fiscal year on September 30. In the last six months of the year the county moved from a cash balance of approximately $25,000 to that deficit because of the Commissioner's desire to spend all available money on roads this year.

Incidentally, the cost of straightening Dead Man's Curve does not come out of the county's allotment. It is a part of the State highway system and not chargeable to the county.

Soy Bean Oil Found Useful For Car Enamel

Queen Anne's Farmers May Get New Outlet For Crop

Queen Anne's county farmers who went into soy bean raising rather heavily this year as a secondary crop may find a new outlet for the beans in years when other crops are plentiful. Henry Ford, tireless searcher for American materials to be used in his huge factories, believes that the use of soy bean oil in the manufacture of enamel for car bodies may prove more profitable to farmers than the use of the legume for livestock food only.

Ford's research workers have been seeking a means of utilizing farm products in line with Ford's theory, "If we want the farmer to be our customer we must find a way to become his customer."

Various farm products were tested experimentally with soy beans proving the most adaptable.

The oil from the beans was found to contain matter which could be used in making an enamel for painting automobile bodies. It was also found that the oil was effective for mixing with sand to make foundry cores.

The meal, or residue after the oil is extracted, is an excellent food for cattle because of its high protein content of 45 per cent. In the laboratories it was found that it could be used in composition for making plastic mouldings, the horn button, the gear shift lever ball, the distributor case and cover, window trim strips and other moulded articles.

Carrying still further his idea that the farmer become an industrial worker as well as a supplier, Mr. Ford has developed a processing unit which he believes can be purchased or built by groups of farmers, he contends, can process their beans, extracting the oil, during the winter, when there is little work on the farm. The oil would be sold for industrial purposes, and they can sell the meal or feed it to their livestock, he says.

Queen Anne's Forges Ahead In Milk Yield

Makes Largest Gain Among Shore Counties. Little Butter Churned

Queen Anne's is steadily surging forward in the production of fluid milk, it was indicated in a report just issued by the Census Bureau.

Although the state of Maryland as a whole showed a reduction in the amount of milk produced in the last five years, Queen Anne's moved up slightly from 3,231,457 gallons produced in 1929 to 3,636,737 gallons produced in 1934.

The increase in production kept Queen Anne's in second place among Shore counties, Cecil being first, and raised it from 10th to 9th place among all the counties in Maryland. Garrett, which had been 9th, dropped to 11th, being passed by Kent also.

Among the trends in milk production shown by the report is that the three lower Shore counties, Worcester, Wicomico and Somerset have each shown a drop while the six middle and upper counties have shown increases ranging from 5,000 gallons in Caroline to 400,000 in Queen Anne's

Queen Anne's showed a drop in number of farms reporting for the milk census from 1,079 in 1929 to 981 in 1934. However, the number of cattle both milk and beef two years old and over showed an increase from 8,111 to 9,892.

An indication of how completely Queen Anne's is interested only in fluid milk is revealed by its drop clear to the bottom among Maryland counties in the amount of butter churned on the farms. Queen Anne's cut its production in halves in five years, decreasing from 31, 481 in 1929 to 15,179 in 1934. Kent county with only 17,170 pounds produced in 1934 is also interested in fluid milk. Butter was churned on 107 Queen Anne's farms, the smallest number reporting in any county.

The state in its entirety showed a drop in butter production on the farms as did all the Shore counties except Caroline and Dorchester, each of which showed moderate increases.

Federal, State Exhibits Due At Poultry Show

Elaborate Plans For Game Section. Chickens, Turkeys To Be Featured

Preliminary announcements for the annual Poultry and Game Show of the Queen Anne's Poultry and Game Associtaion to be held at the Centreville Armory on November 18, 19 and 20 indicate that the affair will be on a plane excelling all previous shows.

Several important changes are being made this year. Much more emphasis will be placed upon the game section. The poultry section will be confined solely to turkeys and chickens. There will be no classes for domestic ducks, as heretofore, and the 4-H section, hitherto separate, will be merged in the main show.

Plans for the game section are especially elaborate. The State Game Commission is to send a wild turkey exhibit and this will be featured with the entire stage at the Armory arranged to show the fowl in natural surroundings.

The Federal exhibit consisting of sixteen species of fish in aquariums is expected to be a particularly attractive display. Rarely allowed out of Washington, it was secured through the efforts of John P. Corcoran, manager of the game section and also president of the Upper Shore Conservation Association. How important this exhibit is rated is evidenced by the fact that a watchman will have to be engaged to insure that the aquariums are not molested.

Besides the Federal and State displays there will be a well-rounded exhibit from the Pioneer Point Farms game preserve.

In the poultry section efforts are to be made this year to increase the number of exhibitors but secure fewer exhibits from each one. John H. Moffett, president of the Poultry and Game Association is general manager of the Show and is also manager of the chicken department. Mrs. Algernon Carter of Queenstown is manager of the turkey department and Charles Chance of the 4-H group, which is not to be a separate department.

Banquets are to be held on the first two nights of the Show. On Wednesday, November 18, the Queen Anne's Poultry and Game Association will gather around the board with the Poultry Dinner Club invited to attend. On Thursday, November 19, the Upper Eastern Shore Conservation Association will hold its annual banquet.

In connection with the poultrymen's banquet on Wednesday evening talkie movies of poultry will be run at a special showing at the Opera House while similar movies of game will be shown on Thursday evening for the conservation dinner. These movies will also be shown on Thursday afternoon for school children of Queen Anne's county.

Testimony has been ordered by the Circuit Court at that time.

Work on the road has been at a standstill since the proceedings were instituted, and the contractors have moved their equipment off the job.
