All-American Design Is Advanced Design  For Example -

General Motors Research laboratories. Oakland engineering staff. General Motors Proving Ground. All working toward one end. Little wonder that All-American design is advanced design.

For example . . . it embodies the G-M-R cylinder head. It offers a whispering brute of an engine . . . 81 lb. crankshaft . . . AC fuel pump. Features combined in no other six of similar price.

When you buy an All-American Six you buy the product of three great engineering agencies devoted to progressive design. And you profit time and time again. In satisfaction . . . in consistent high value in justifiable owner pride.

Landau Coupe, $1045; Sport Roadster, $1075; Phaeton, $1075; 4-Door Sedan, $1145; Cabriolet, $1155; Landau Sedan, $1265. New Series Pontiac Six, $745 to $875. All prices at factory. SOY BEANS POOR FOR FATTENING

While the soy bean is one of the most valuable summer legume crops for North Carolina, it is a poor feed for fattening hogs

"Experiments conducted by our workers have shown conclusively that soy bean seeds are unsatisfactory for pork production because they are lacking in palatibility, produce a soft carcass and give a low amount of pork per acre when compared with other standard feeds used for fattening swine," says Earl H. Hostetler, in charge of swine investigations at the North Carolina State college "On the other hand, soy bean meal has been found very palatable and when used as a supplement to corn rapid and uniform gains are secured."

Professor Hostetler conducted one test in three different trials, using 188 pigs, comparing soy bean meal with fish meal. He found that the pigs made about the same daily gain in weight, but that the cost of the gain was greater where the animals were fed the soy bean meal and that both lots paid about the same price for each bushel of corn consumed The pigs used were high grade Poland China animals and were sold on the Richmond market and there was no dockage because of soft or oily carcasses.

In another test where he used 235 pigs in four trials, he compared fish meal with one-half soy bean meal and the other half fish meal. In these trials, the total feed required to produce 100 pounds of gain was about the same. However, the pigs consumed about twice as much of the soy bean meal and fish meal mixed and therefore brought down the value of the soy bean meal to about $30 a ton instead of $50, which was the price actually paid.

Slow Movers Preferred by a Minnesota Farmer

It is cheaper to raise the good draft horse that weighs 1,500 pounds at four years than it is to buy them, but the inferior type can be bought cheaper than raised, as there are lots of them throughout the country.

I prefer the heavy horses for the farm as they do their work easier and do not reduce in flesh as fast as the light horse, writes M. P. Deizer of Dodge county, Minnesota, in the Farmer. I also prefer the slow movers for they are easier to handle and do not heat up as the fast horses will and most of the farm work is done at a slow gait. This means that all the work is done with horses and none of the heavy work is done with a tractor.

If the mare is in good condition she is worked right up to the day she has the colt, but not worked too hard If in thin condition she is only worked when an extra horse is needed. In either case she is not worked for ten days or two weeks after she has the colt or not at all as long as it is possible to get along without her.

Skim Milk Is Valuable for the Growing Pigs

Every breeder of pigs knows how valuable skim milk is for growing pigs. In the standard book "Feeds and Feeding" Professors Henry and Morrison state: "For swine of all ages, and especially for young pigs, skim milk is unsurpassed as a supplement to the carbonaceous grains." In districts where there is no fresh skim milk dry skim milk will supply the same healthy growth as fresh skim milk will. One pound of dry skim milk (dry in grain mix, or in water to drink) equals three pounds of corn for gain in weight.

Live Stock Notes

Live stock as well as people need sunlight.

• • •

Corn, oats and oil meal will push lambs along for the early summer market.

• • •

Careful experimenting long ago proved that it doesn't pay to cook corn for hogs even in the winter time.

• • •

When docking with a knife, if you see one lamb bleeding too much, you can tie a twine around his tail for a day.

• • •

For baby beef, heifer calves finish quicker than steers and are worth more on the market than steer calves fed for the same length of time and under the same conditions.

• • •

You may have your ewes in ever so fine condition and still the lambs won't do exactly right unless you feed the ewes a milk-making ration.

• • •

Colts given kind treatment when young give little or no trouble later when first harnessed and driven, as they have confidence in the driver.

• • •

After the calves are two weeks old they will generally start eating small amounts of grain if it is offered to them in their pails after they have finished drinking.

For the Sentinel.

SCHOOL ROMANCE

A school day romance came to a climax on last Monday afternoon at Freedom M. E. church when Miss Amy Mildred Flohr, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. M. Flohr became the bride of Celius L. Brown, son of Mr. and Mrs. A. C. Brown. The ceremony was performed at one o'clock in the presence of the immediate families and a few friends, Rev. Baker and Rev. Main officiating. Following the wedding a luncheon was served to the guests at the home of the bride's parents.

The bridal party entered the church to the strains of Lohengrin's wedding march, played by Miss Edith Flohr. The bride wore a gown of tinted georgette, trimmed with cream lace and a Neapolitan picture hat. She carried a shower bouquet of roses and lilies of the valley. The maid of honor, Miss Eleanor Flohr, sister of the bride, wore honey dew pointed georgette trimmed in crystal, with picture hat to match and carried butterfly roses. Mr. Allan Brown, brother of the groom, was best man, and the ushers were Messrs. John Flohr and Landan Selby. The young couple left immediately for a motor trip.

The bride and groom were graduated from Sykesville high school with the class of '24. Mrs. Brown is a graduate of the Maryland State Norman school and is a member of the Alumni.

Mr. Brown continued his education in business college and took a special course at the Johns Hopkins University. He is now connected with the Sykesville National Bank.

ROBB—HESSON

Miss Mary, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. D. J. Hesson, Taneytown, and Doty Robb, Dery, Pa., were united in marriage at the home of the bride's parents, Wednesday afternoon, June 20. The home was beautifully decorated. The bridal party entered the drawing room to the music of the "Lohengrin" wedding march played by Miss Ada Englar. Dr. C. F. Sanders, of Gettysburg college, an uncle of the bride, performed the ceremony. The bride was attired in a gown of white satin and wore a veil of tulle caught about the head with a wreath of orange blossoms. After the ceremony a luncheon was served. The bride and bridegroom left immediately for a honeymoon of a week or ten days. Mrs. Robb is a graduate of Hood college, Frederick. Mr. Robb is employed in the offices of the Pennsylvania railroad at Derry, Pa.
