Huge Hay Crop Forecast For 1938

A 1938 hay crop of 92 million tons—the largest in 10 years and one of the laregst on record—has been forecast by the United States Department of Agriculture. The 1937 crop was 83 million tons and the 1927-36 average (including several drought years) was less than 80 million tons.

This year's crop, together with last spring's farm carry-over stocks of nearly 13 million tons, makes the second largest seasonal supply per animal unit in the 26 years for which comparable data are available. The 1938 alfalfa hay crop is the largest on record, 8 percent larger than the 1937 crop, 2.5 percent larger than the 1935 crop, and 22 percent larger than the 1927-36 average.

JUNIOR WOMEN

MORNING OFTER FROST

Now the sun has removed a delicate lens of ice from the pond,
The spiderweb of crystal spun there in the night,
And once more the unmoving water
reflects the sky's pure arch
With its profound blue of late October light
And sunlight transmutes to brighter
amber the pale maple leaves, Releasing them from their uncertain
hold;
Rose haws are stained a deeper red
that speaks the ripened seed,
And slender ferns are flaments of sheerest gold.
No cricket sings; there is a peaceful silence in the smoky air;
Only the chrysanthemums lift their tawny heads.
Perennial roots, preparing for a season of sleep, draw close The yellow quilts of maple leaves across their beds.

1938 Cross Section Of Queen Anne's

The first settlement in Queen Anne's was on Kent Island and the first coming of the white man to the county was in 1631 when William Claiborne landed to trade with the Indians, eventually to war and lose with the later Calvert proprietors of Maryland.

The county was erected in 1706 from portions taken from the earlier Kent and Talbot counties. It was named in honor of Queen Anne of England, then directing the destinies of the British Empire. As a county Queen Anne's was incorporated in 1890 and could, if it chose, mark one semi-centennial in 1940. But fifty years is only the top soil of Queen Anne's long history.

The county seat today is at Centreville.

The population is placed at 14,591, chiefly rural and wtih four incorporated towns. None of these is large by the standard of densely populated areas. But for the middle Eastern Shore they are sufficiently important. Centreville, the largest town includes 1,291 people in its incorporate limits. Queenstown has 288; Sudlersville, 279; and Church Hill, 232.

The county area is 375.36 square miles or 240,230 acres. There are 1109 farms in the county and the number of acres in farm land is 211,086, or nearly ninety percent. The waterfront measures 264.5 miles.

The chief crops today are wheat, corn, tomatoes. There are 10,232 cattle on 996 farms.

The Court House was erected in Centreville in 1794 and is today the oldest one on the Eastern Shore. Jails have come and gone. The present one was built in 1908.

For fire protection the county is dependent upon Volunteer fire companies. Four of these exist, the Centreville Good Will, Church Hill, Queenstown and Sudlersville companies.

There are forty schools in Queen Anne's eighteen white elementary, five white high, one colored high and sixteen colored elementary schools. Ninety teachers are employed, 65 whites and 25 colored.

The road mileage of Queen Anne's with dirt roads first and hard-surfaced second are as follows—First District 82.40 dirt, 26.27 hard, total 108.67 miles; Second District, 58.71, 23.78, total 81.49; Third District, 77.68; 25.01, total 102.67; Fourth, 18.00, 20.06, total 38.06; Fifth 39.82, 17.25, total 57.07; Sixth 48.58, 16.10, total, 64.68; Seventh, 44.00, 9.53, total 53.53.

The total real and personal property assessment is $17,000,000. The current tax rate is County, 20 cents; Schools, 50 cents; total for the county, 70 cents. The total delinquent taxes amount to $602. The bonded indebtedness is entirely set off by a sinking fund composed of United States bonds. The cash surplus is $73,956.04.

The public officials include William R. Wilson, state senator; Joseph W. A. Evans, Percy E. Thomas, House of Delegates; Charles I. Boyle, J. Sudler Cockey, Joseph M. George, county commissioners; Edwin H. Brown, jr., State's Attorney; William H. Carter, Clerk of Court; Dr. Norman S. Dudley Register of Wills.
