Plum Pudding Crowns the Winter Table

Courtesy Schrafft's Restaurants, New York

RICHLY fruited, steaming plum pudding, as popular now as in Dickens' day, is a festive finish to any winter meal. Topped with holly, and all a-blaze on a worthy platter, it deserves to be carried triumphantly aloft to the holiday table and there served to the eagerly waiting family and guests.

Solid with goodness, it brings together the most mellow company of candied fruits, nuts, raisins and spices that can be blended into one dessert.

Serve it with not one but two sauces, if you want to bring out all the wonders of its flavor, say Schrafft's restaurants' experts on fine food. Make a hot sauce to pour lavishly over each serving. Then top with hard sauce whipped to fluffy, fine-grained creaminess.

The following recipes are suggested:

Hot sauce

1¾ cups granulated sugar	¼ cup butter
¼ cup flour	¼ cup lemon juice
1 pinch salt	2 cups boiling water

Mix sugar, flour and salt together. Rub in butter. Mix well with lemon juice and boiling water. Put on stove and boil 3 minutes. Take off fire. Add 6 tablespoons brandy, if desired. This quantity serves 10.

Hard sauce

1 cup light brown sugar ½ cup butter

Cream butter and sugar. If you wish to have a special flavor, stir in 3 tablespoons brandy or sherry, blending well with butter and sugar. Serve in a separate dish, so each person may help himself.
