Allan Stafford Wants Road Cop In Templeville

Calls New Highway Boulevard For Speedsters. Writes Police Head

Allen (Mike) Stafford, Templeville business man filed a plea with Superintendent Beverly Ober of the Maryland State Police asking that Templeville be patrolled sufficiently to break up speeding through the town. Mr. Stafford asserts that the new Templeville-Barclay highway has been turned into a boulevard and cars race through at speeds exceeding fifty miles, with consequent danger to residents.

His letter to the Police Superintendent is as follows:

"Templeville? Templeville? Could it be located in Maryland? It evidently appears to the writer to be on the Eastern Shore and it seems to us that our town should be visited occasionally by some member of our efficient fleet of motor policemen.

"We, the small village folks of Upper Queen Anne's county pay taxes to the "Free" State of Maryland which indirectly aids the maintenance of the Maryland State Police Department and we want immediate protection for the safety of our citizens.

"Templeville, like any other small community ,is infested with children who could easly fall prey to a thundering truck or an automobile driven by a motor-maniac such as those which speed through our town too frequently. We can truthfully say that it is so seldom that we see a trooper in this town that when one arrives it reminds one of the model "T" days back in 1914, everyone becomes excited and scrams to the front door to see what all the curiosity is that's attracting everyones' attention.

"Occasionally a Delaware patrolman passes through Templeville while on his beat, but we think that more protection by our own State Police force would be very justified. He would not be required to hide behind telephone poles or secluded spots to catch a motorist violating the law or see these so-called speed-demons who actually pass through this town at a rate of 50 to 60 miles per hour.

"Since the newly completed highway between Templeville and Barclay is opened to traffic this invariably makes our town, or less, a boulevard town without enforcement of speed regulations and not any stop sign at one of the most dangerous intersections in Maryland.

"It is urgent now that you give this your utmost attention and please allow one of our state troopers to pay us a business visit some Saturday or Sunday night at our expense to pick up some nice business for our protection and public safety."

Montana Woman Finds Shore Delightful

Mrs. Newton Umphress, of Great Falls, Montana, who was a guest for the latter part of last week of Mrs. Ida B. Carter of Templeville, rates the Eastern Shore a delightful section. She was much impressed with the Shore and could see no signs of a drought here, even though farmers could use a bit more rain.

Mrs. Umphress has been journeying East by slow degrees since June 10, stopping at Kenton, Ohio, Washington, Philadelphia and Wilmington. She left for her Montana home last week making a stop-over with friends at Chicago to break the trip.

Obituary

WILLIAM A. WALLS

William Asa Walls, veteran farmer of the Queen Anne neighborhood, died at his home in Queen Anne Tuesday morning at 1:20 o'clock from complications after an illness of nine months. He was 75 years old.

He was taken ill with heart trouble on Armistice Day, was bedridden for six months and by sheer determination was able to get up and around for six weeks before illness struck again. He was able to move around his home on Monday but died during the night.

Mr. Walls was born near Preston, the son of the late Asa Walls and Jane Rickards, on May 5, 1864. He was for many years a prosperous and successful farmer in Queen Anne's, Caroline and Talbot counties. He was a member of the Episcopal Church and for years was an active worker in Democratic politics.

In 1910 he married the former Miss Roxanna Adams at Cordova, who survives him.

Also remaining are three sons, J. Harry Walls, of Ridgely; Charles B. Walls, of Easton; Carlton A. Walls of Woodbridge, N. J.; a daughter, Mrs. Laurence M. Callahan of Centreville; a brother, James H. Walls, of Wichita, Kansas; and ten grandchildren.

Funeral services will be held from his late home in Queen Anne this afternoon, Thursday, at 2 o'clock with the Rev. Durrie Harden, rector of Christ Episcopal Church at Easton officiating.

The bearers will be John J. Reese, W. James Hopkins, Ralph Baynard, De Butts Moore, Palmer C. Pippin and Harvey Baker.

Interment will be in Spring Hill Cemetery in Easton.
