UP AND DOWN THE Eastern Shore

Knocked Into Next County

Federalsburg—The old story of knocking a man into the next county occurred at Hynson in nearby Dorchester when automobiles operated by Grover C. Wheatley of Hurlock and Richard Green of Preston collided with such force that they knocked each other into Caroline county. A passenger riding with Wheatley suffered a broken leg . Green's wife incurred possible internal injuries and both cars were crumpled.

Suit Over Bequest

Chestertown—Two Maryland colleges are interested in litigation here in which Attorney L. W. Barroll of Baltimore is trying to show that Washington College has not met terms of a bequest of $20,000 made under the will of the late State Senator Garrett Foxwell. Washington College claims it has done so. In the event that Washington College loses out St. John's College would receive the bequest. If the latter fails to meet the requirements the amount would revert to heirs of the late Hope H. Barroll.

Missionary Home

Denton—Miss Mary Martin, missionary at Cape Palmas in Africa, returned to her home in Tuckahoe Neck after a four year term ,her second, on the Dark Continent. Miss Martin was twenty days traveling from West Africa to England, twelve more crossing the Atlantic and arrived on the liner Washington which carried, 2,300 people, twice the normal number, and took twice as long to make the voyage.

Fire Bears Down

Snow Hill—Fire made a complete job at the farm of Joe Figgs six miles from here, even if it had to work in relays. Figgs, hearing the siren in town, learned the blaze was at his farm, hurried out to find his home burned to the ground. When he returned to thank firemen for their efforts the siren blew again. This time Figgs' barn, poultry house and livestock and chickens in them were destroyed, apparently started by sparks from the first blaze. Damage was $3,000.

Victims Of Gas

Delmar—James T. Zimmerman and Mrs. Gladys W. White were asphyxiated at a tourist cabin at Roseland at the junction of the old and new Salisbury roads when a gas burner in the cabin apparetly consumed all the oxygen in the small structure, went out, and continued to pour fumes upon the sleeping couple. Zimmermans brother found the bodies.

Bingo Is Gambling

Snow Hill—Bingo with cash prizes was viewed as gambling by a jury here when Thomas Shill, Ocean City bingo game operator was found guilty on three charges and fined a total of $300 and costs.

Skull Fractured

Elkton—Edward Devine, 32, suffered a fractured skull in a near escape from death when a steam shovel part hit him. Devine was carrying coal to the shovel when a weight on the monkey line came loose, dropped through the swinging boom and hit the man a glancing bow on the head.

Sportsman Dies

Cambridge—Fred W. Gore, widely known Eastern Shore sportsman, farmer and breeder of excellent English setters, died of a heart attack after a short illness. Mr. Gore was active in politics, made a fruitless try for the Democratic nomination for Registrar of Wills last year. His dogs were rated among the best of their breed in the country.

Slips On Bridge, Drowns

Salisbury—John W. Watson, 64-year-old Fruitland bricklayer, was drowned in the Wicomico river at the Camden street bridge when he apparently lost his footing on the bulkhead at night and fell into the stream . A large crowd watched grappling efforts as a big spotlight played upon the scene. A verdict of accidental death was rendered.
