Disease Fatal To Shore Pine

Southern Pine Beetle Damaging

In the lower section of the Eastern Shore timber growers and foresty officials are much concerned over the damage being done by the Southern pine beetle Where yellow pine tracts have yielded millions of dollars to the industry, it is reported that virgin tracts of forest are being killed.

The disease, found on the property of Paul Gunby in Brinkley's district, is like that found on various tracts in Worcester county recently.

Nelson H. Fritz, District Forester attributes the damage by the beetle, which is followed by the ribbed pine web borer, to the loss of vitality in the trees, which is brought about by too much sale being absorbed in the clay substance when that area was swept by tidal waves many years ago.

Remember Prohibition?

Snow Hill—Five men were arrested a couple of stills destroyed and three boats were confiscated, along with 44 gallons of liquor when U. S. Alcohol Tax Agents swooped down to the water front to grab three men who were trying to escape in a motor boat.

Radio To Link Isle Shut-Ins And Crisfield

Chesapeake Bay Isles Hope Radio Tests Will Prove Aid

The residents of Smith's Island and Tangier Island are eagerly hoping that two-way rado communication between those islands and Crisfield wil prove satisfactory. Tests are being made now, which, if successful, would prevent the isolation which has prevailed for many years during winter bad weather.

At the present time the only communication with the world outside is by boat.

Each Winter island residents dread the possibility of a freeze. In such an event, the oyster fleet, their economic hope, is landlocked and their food and fuel supplies are cut off from Crisfield which is twelve miles distant.

In 1935, when the bay froze, food was carried to the islanders by airplanes from the Red Cross.

THE POET'S CORNER

A LOVELESS HOME

By Casper L. Newcomb

John, all day, he works and earns a mite;
Then homeward he saunters; when its night,
Yea, weary and hungry from turmoil;
He wearily struggles on, home from toil.

Then fire of affection it should turn
To seething flames of love, and there burn
Ardently; with its light, banish gloom
Where, if, unbrightness shades a room.
But wife spurns, harasses his tired mass;
Unkindly blows a loud bugle blast;
Sound aloud; screaming like winds that chill;

Forbears not, her damned evil will.
The fiendish monster, all of her days
Upflares and splutters and widely sways.
Aggravates; day and night, to torment.
Hands out wrath, that a devil's sent.

This hard working one, He likes to keep
A grand house to enjoy; not to peep
In a room where he might quietly dwell,
And call it home instead of a Hell.
