NOTICE.

AT the time I assigned a part of my private property for the security of all debts due by the late firm of Yates and Campbell, I had reason to hope that the collections of debts due to them would have met my engagements with the creditors; but from the many insolvencies and other causes, I find that I am disappointed in my expectation; and although I obtain indulgence from the creditors of two years longer for the payment, (by instalment), still I am desirous to have the said debts immediately paid; and for that purpose have requested G. Wood and Edward Harris, esquires, trustees, to sell (without reserve) so much of my property, as will fully satisfy the same: and therefore the debtors to the late firm of Yates and Campbell, cannot think it unreasonable in me to notify them, that any bonds, notes, or open accounts remaining unsettled by the first of February next, will be deposited in the hands of William M'Mechin, esquire, my attorney.

THOMAS YATES.

December 14. d

TO THE PUBLIC.

THE friendship and support which I have experienced from the merchants, traders, and others in this and other states, since my re-commencement of the vendue business, claims my grateful thanks;—and being now in possession of the most convenient and commodious vendue warehouse on the continent, will, I hope, enable me to expose my employers' property to the best advantage, and accommodate (with convenience) those who favor me with their company to purchase—and am, with much respect,

Their most obedient,
Humble servant,
THOMAS YATES.
